HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examinations and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

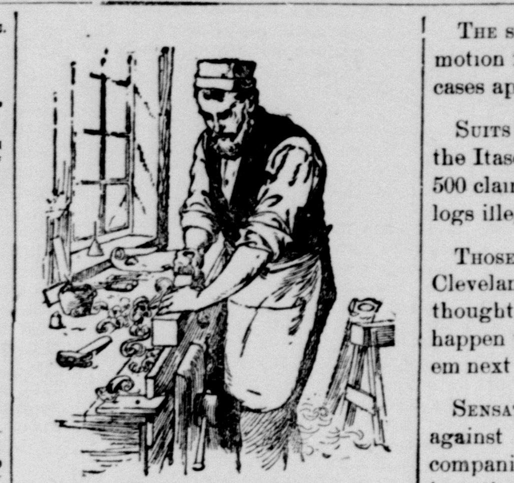

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory.

The Best Medicine.

J. O. WILSON, Contractor and Builder, Sulphur Springs, Texas, thus speaks of Ayer's Pills:

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever tried; and, in my judgment, no better general remedy could be devised. I have used them in my family and recommended them to my friends and employes for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge, many cases of the following complaints have been completely and by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Third day chills, dumb ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above."

Permanently Cured

"I have been selling medicine for eight years, and I can safely say that Ayer's Pills give better satisfaction than any other Pill I ever sold."—J. J. Perry, Spottsylvania C. H., Va.

THE supreme court has denied the motion for a new trial in the land tax cases applied for by A. Y. Merrill.

SUITS have been commenced against the Itasca Lumber Co. to recover $74,500 claimed to be due the state for logs illegally cut in Itasca county.

THOSE who are anxious to see Cleveland resign have probably not thought of the calamity which would happen with Stephenson and Gresham next in line.

SENSATIONAL suits are looked for against several prominent lumber companies as a result of the pine land investigation, the committee having about finished its labors.

IN his closing remarks before the editorial association at Minneapolis on Thursday last Bob. Ingersoll said: "I firmly believe that, if the republican party was placed in power tomorrow, on the following Monday the country would have good times."

BOSS MCKANE has defied the law of the land for some time but during the next six years he will have ample time to consider the difference between a political boss and a common voter. The fate that has overtaken him is well merited and all patriotic people will rejoice at the outcome.

THE rumble of republican thunder in Pennsylvania has nearly frightened the democrats to death. The tariff policy of the present administration has been condemned by 175,000 plurality in that state at the recent election. The great manufacturing states of the east have but voiced the sentiment of the people through the length and breadth of the Union—democracy must go.

REPORTS from Winnipeg state that the big lumber syndicate which controls the entire lumber trade of the Lake of the Woods and part of northern Minnesota, intends to build a railroad from Lake of the Woods to Winnipeg, for the purpose of obtaining cheaper transportation for lumber than the present railroad facilities afford. A grant of $1,000 per mile is asked of the Manitoba legislature.

New Town Platted.

Minneapolis lumberman have platted a new town site under the name of Hiawatha on the upper Mississippi, one of the new schemes of the north part of the state which is not connected with the iron mining country. The site is fifty miles up the river from Aitkin, in the lower end of Itasca county, and is where the logging road of the Michigan and Weyerhaeuser concerns, known as the Duluth, Mississippi River & Northern railroad reaches the Mississippi river, which is at the mouth of Swan river.

The Rainy Lake Rage.

The excitement in regard to the Rainy Lake country increases daily and from every section of the state comes news of people who have started or expect to start to the new gold fields. The Vermillion Iron Journal, at Tower, says that work on the road to the gold fields from that point is progressing rapidly and that 80 men are working on it at present. Among other notes is the fact that J. H. Hallet & Co. of Brainerd, Minn., will be in the city in a few days with about 20,000 pounds of merchandise, which will be transferred to Rainy Lake City. Mr. Hallet and party are old reliable traders, with past headquarters at Brainerd. They have let the contract for building a substantial store building on the new townsite, the building to be of hewn logs.

Vast number of teams are in use hauling supplies. A teamster engaged in the traffic says another week will see a genuine boom in that country. From 150 to 200 men are arriving daily at Rainy Lake City. Twenty men are on their way to clear the townsite which was organized in Duluth and is composed of D. G. Cash, president, W. C. Sherwood, vice president; S. W. Rogers of Minneapolis and L. H. Fally of Chicago. There are already 400 people there and only two small restaurants to supply them with edibles, the big hotel not yet being completed.

Neighborhood News.

The Weyerhauser saw mill at Rock Island, Ill., was totally destroyed by fire on Monday.

The G. A. R. members of Aitkin enjoyed a masquerade on the evening of Washington's birthday.

The Little Falls Transcript congratulates Mrs. Sylvester on the fact that her husband, Celestine Sylvester, has given the lady her "time."

August Jahn, slayer of J. T. Stanley, near St. Cloud, has been bound over for murder in the second degree. The sentiment appears to be that Jahn acted in self defense.

The Minneapolis Journal say's Rev. W. H. Ware, of Cloquet, Minn., who is suffering with nervous prostration, was taken to St. Luke's hospital, St. Paul, today accompanied by his physician, Dr. Allen. Mr. Ware is the Presbyterian pastor of Cloquet.

The St. Cloud Times published a "Want ad." signed by a young lady of Stearns county applying for a position as wet nurse and now has a job on its hand in trying to discover who put up the job on the young lady. The girl's father is after the entire outfit.

An Indian was arrested in Aitkin county by Sheriff Mausten on Tuesday last, according to the Age, charged with killing dear out of season. He was given a hearing before Justice Williams on Thursday and in default of a fine was sentenced to sixty days' imprisonment in the county jail. It is said that Indians in that vicinity are slaughtering deer every day and that they have no difficulty in disposing of the carcases.

BRAINERD TO RAINY LAKE.

The Brainerd and Northern Minnesota Road to be Extended.

The Minneapolis Tribune says it is proposed to make the Brainerd & Northern Minnesota railroad part of a new system which shall extend from Minneapolis north, passing through the counties of Chisago, Isanti, Sherburne, Mille Lacs, touching the great inland sea of Mills Lacs lake, and thence to Brainerd to connect with the road already built. The present road is constructed nearly to Leech Lake, and is operated forty miles north from Brainerd. Heretofore the plan, as far as Governor Pillsbury has been concerned, was to run west of Leech lake, and thence pass into the grain country, running west and south of Red Lake. It is now proposed to turn to the east side of Leech Lake, and run to Grand Rapids, the county seat of Itasca, and thence northeasterly to the Rainy Lake gold fields, provided they promise what is now the outlook for a large settlement in that county. For the present, local assistance would be voted, as several of the counties have notified the projectors that local aid will be given. Itasca county is said to offer $100,000 for the road.

The scheme is largely endorsed and is being set on foot by Maj. R. W. Jones, of the Northern Mill company. During the past 10 days a party including W. H. Truesdale, of the Minneapolis & St. Louis road; R. B. Langdon, C. A. Pillsbury, W. F. Brooks, B. F. Nelson, J. W. Day, E. W. Backus, E. L. Carpenter and G. H. Cook went over the Brainerd & Northern road constructed by the Northern Mill company with the assistance of the citizens of Brainerd, and inspected the field with the ultimate view of the construction of an other line of line of railway from Minneapolis northward. These gentlemen, it is understood, were very much pleased by the feasibility of the sceme especially as everyone along the proposed line heartily endorsed it and it is claimed that the new road is but a question of a short time.

Kicked the Wrong Man.

A young Poughkeepsian picked up a friend on Market street and took him home to lunch without notice to the former's wife. She called him one side and explained that there were only a dozen raw oysters, and when their friend had eaten his quota of four he must not be asked to take more. All this the husband promised to remember.

When their guest had eaten his four oysters, the host asked him to take some more. The wife looked distressed, and the guest declined. The husband insisted that his friend should have more. The wife looked as if she were in agony, and the guest firmly refused to allow the rest of the oysters to be brought from the kitchen. Later the wife said to her husband:

"How could you urge him to have more oysters when I explained to you that there weren't any more?"

"I am very sorry," said the penitent husband, "but I forgot all about it."

"What do you suppose I was kicking you under the table for?" retorted his wife.

"But you didn't kick me," said the husband.—Poughkeepsie News-Press.

A Chinaman's Joke.

The love of a good joke is not unknown even among those "childlike and bland" Celestials who are crowding together in several parts of the Australian colonies. A storekeeper, wishing to secure extra trade by advertising his goods in the Chinese language, made a bargain with a Celestial to paint a sign, expecting of course that it would be a very entic ing one.

It did not answer his expectations, however, for the only perceptible effect it had on the emigrants from the Flowery Land was to excite a grin of the broadest dimensions. At length the puzzled storekeeper, by means of a considerable monetary inducement, obtained a correct rendering in English of the announcement and found to his intense chagrin that it read, "Don't buy anything here; storekeeper a rogue."—Melbourne Letter.

An Impetus-Gravity Problem.

An impetus-gravity problem which has not yet been solved is now vexing the theorists and cannot well be carried to the point of experiment. The proposition is this: A train is traveling at the rate of 60 miles an hour, and on the rear platform is a cannon pointing directly away from the direction of the train. This cannon fires a ball at the rate of 60 miles an hour. If the train is going at a specified speed and the ball is fired in the opposite direction, what will become of it? Will the speed of the train and the speed of the ball compensate and the ball drop to the ground as if dropped from a solid stationary platform, or what will become of it? This paradox has only been theoretically demonstrated.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How He Revenged Himself.

"I don't understand you," said Mr. Harlem Heights to Mr. Uptown Boulevard.

"What is there about me you don't understand?"

"You have been down on Mr. Cortland Street for the last 10 years, and now you have consented to his marriage with your daughter. Isn't that a trifle inconsistent?"

"Not when you know the facts. Just keep quiet until after the wedding before you accuse me of letting up on Cortland Street. He gets my wife for a mother-in-law. If that's not vengeance, I don't know what vengeance is."—Texas Siftings.

An Accommodating Artist.

An artist, celebrated in his day as a successful painter of portraits, while making a counterfeit presentment of a lady, perceived that when he came to draw the mouth, she tried to render it smaller by contracting her lips. "Pray do not trouble yourself so much, madam," he exclaimed; "if you like, I will draw your face without any mouth at all."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Another oddity in the matrimonial line is reported from New York. A German married couple, who had lived together for 22 years, applied at the city hall to be remarried. They said that they had lost their marriage certificate and wanted another, which was granted.

The finest opal of modern times belonged to Empress Josephine. It was called "The Burning of Troy." Its fate is unknown, as it disappeared when the allies entered Paris.

The flimsy paper called tissue paper was originally made to place between tissue cloth of gold or silver to prevent its fraying or tarnishing when folded.

"Dyspepsia is a dreadful thing," sighed the afflicted one. "It makes a man feel as if he were dead and his monument was erected upon his chest."

The agricultural capital of Europe has doubled since 1840. That of the United States has increased over six fold.

Probate Notice.

State of Minnesota, County of Crow Wing, } ss. In Probate court. Regular Term. Feb. 5 1894.

In the matter of the estate of Zillah Goss, deceased:

Whereas, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of Zillah Goss, deceased, late of said county, has been delivered to this court;

And whereas, Thomas Blackburn has filed therewith his petition, representing among other things, that said Zillah Goss died in said county on the 31st day of January, 1894, testate, and that said petitioner is the sole executor named in said last will and testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to him issued thereon;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument and the said petition be heard before this court, at the probate office in said county, on the 5th day of March, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon when all persons interested may appear for, or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Brainerd Dispatch, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Brainerd, in said county.

Dated at Brainerd, Minn., the 5th day of Feb. A. D. 1894. By the Court:

MILTON McFADDEN, Judge of Probate.

[Seal.]

LEON E. LUM, Attorney for Petitioner.

Receivers Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Crow Wing. } District Court, 15th Judicial District

In the matter of H. Rosenblatt, Insolvent.

On reading and filing the above and foregoing petition of the receiver herein and the affidavit of P. C. Schmidt, one of the attorneys for said receiver, wherein and whereby it appears that the Hon. Geo. W. Holland, the presiding Judge of the 15th Judicial District is now absent from the state, and said receiver prays the Court for an order for his discharge;

Now therefore, it is ordered, that the matter set forth in said petition praying for the discharge of said receiver be and the same are hereby ordered to be brought on for hearing at the next general term of said Court, held at Brainerd, in the County of Crow Wing, on the 19th day of March, 1894, at the opening of the Court on that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard.

It is further ordered, that this order be published in the Brainerd Dispatch, for three successive weeks, once in each week, being a newspaper regularly published in the City of Brainerd, County of Crow Wing and State of Minnesota.

Dated Feb. 19th, 1894.

By the Court,
CHAS. L. LEWIS,
Judge of the 11th Judicial District, acting for and in behalf of the Judge of the 15th Judicial District.

Something Good In Silverware;

we don't mean choice cakes or fruits, but the ware to hold them, all in solid silver, rich, elegant and beautiful. The whole range of table silver is here, including knives, forks, spoons, sugar bowls, water sets, etc., all in the most tasteful, novel and artistic designs. Silverware is costly because somewhat high in price, and cheap because you buy it for a lifetime. What wears so long should be bought with judgement and care. The fall in the value of silver places solid ware within the reach of all. We have a full line.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examinations and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

The Best Medicine.

J. O. WILSON, Contractor and Builder, Sulphur Springs, Texas, thus speaks of Ayer's Pills:

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever tried; and, in my judgment, no better general remedy could be devised. I have used them in my family and recommended them to my friends and employes for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge, many cases of the following complaints have been completely and by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Third day chills, dumb ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above."

Permanently Cured

"I have been selling medicine for eight years, and I can safely say that Ayer's Pills give better satisfaction than any other Pill I ever sold."—J. J. Perry, Spottsylvania C. H., Va.

MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

THE supreme court has denied the motion for a new trial in the land tax cases applied for by A. Y. Merrill.

SUITS have been commenced against the Itasca Lumber Co. to recover $74,500 claimed to be due the state for logs illegally cut in Itasca county.

THOSE who are anxious to see Cleveland resign have probably not thought of the calamity which would happen with Stephenson and Gresham next in line.

SENSATIONAL suits are looked for against several prominent lumber companies as a result of the pine land investigation, the committee having about finished its labors.

IN his closing remarks before the editorial association at Minneapolis on Thursday last Bob. Ingersoll said: "I firmly believe that, if the republican party was placed in power tomorrow, on the following Monday the country would have good times."

BOSS McKANE has defied the law of the land for some time but during the next six years he will have ample time to consider the difference between a political boss and a common voter. The fate that has overtaken him is well merited and all patriotic people will rejoice at the outcome.

THE rumble of republican thunder in Pennsylvania has nearly frightened the democrats to death. The tariff policy of the present administration has been condemned by 175,000 plurality in that state at the recent election. The great manufacturing states of the east have but voiced the sentiment of the people through the length and breadth of the Union—democracy must go.

REPORTS from Winnipeg state that the big lumber syndicate which controls the entire lumber trade of the Lake of the Woods and part of northern Minnesota, intends to build a railroad from Lake of the Woods to Winnipeg, for the purpose of obtaining cheaper transportation for lumber than the present railroad facilities afford. A grant of $1,000 per mile is asked of the Manitoba legislature.

New Town Platted.

Minneapolis lumberman have platted a new town site under the name of Hiawatha on the upper Mississippi, one of the new schemes of the north part of the state which is not connected with the iron mining country. The site is fifty miles up the river from Aitkin, in the lower end of Itasca county, and is where the logging road of the Michigan and Weyerhaeuser concerns, known as the Duluth, Mississippi River & Northern railroad reaches the Mississippi river, which is at the mouth of Swan river.

The Rainy Lake Rage.

The excitement in regard to the Rainy Lake country increases daily and from every section of the state comes news of people who have started or expect to start to the new gold fields. The Vermillion Iron Journal, at Tower, says that work on the road to the gold fields from that point is progressing rapidly and that 80 men are working on it at present. Among other notes is the fact that J. H. Hallet & Co., of Brainerd, Minn., will be in the city in a few days with about 20,000 pounds of merchandise, which will be transferred to Rainy Lake City. Mr. Hallet and party are old reliable traders, with past headquarters at Brainerd. They have let the contract for building a substantial store building on the new townsite, the building to be of hewn logs.

Vast number of teams are in use hauling supplies. A teamster engaged in the traffic says another week will see a genuine boom in that country. From 150 to 200 men are arriving daily at Rainy Lake City. Twenty men are on their way to clear the townsite which was organized in Duluth and is composed of D. G. Cash, president, W. C. Sherwood, vice president; S. W. Rogers of Minneapolis and L. H. Fally of Chicago. There are already 400 people there and only two small restaurants to supply them with edibles, the big hotel not yet being completed.

Neighborhood News.

The Weyerhauser saw mill at Rock Island, Ill., was totally destroyed by fire on Monday.

The G. A. R. members of Aitkin enjoyed a masquerade on the evening of Washington's birthday.

The Little Falls Transcript congratulates Mrs. Sylvester on the fact that her husband, Celestine Sylvester, has given the lady her "time."

August Jahn, slayer of J. T. Stanley, near St. Cloud, has been bound over for murder in the second degree. The sentiment appears to be that Jahn acted in self defense.

The Minneapolis Journal say's Rev. W. H. Ware, of Cloquet, Minn., who is suffering with nervous prostration, was taken to St. Luke's hospital, St. Paul, today accompanied by his physician, Dr. Allen. Mr. Ware is the Presbyterian pastor of Cloquet.

The St. Cloud Times published a "Want ad." signed by a young lady of Stearns county applying for a position as wet nurse and now has a job on its hand in trying to discover who put up the job on the young lady. The girl's father is after the entire outfit.

An Indian was arrested in Aitkin county by Sheriff Mausten on Tuesday last, according to the Age, charged with killing dear out of season. He was given a hearing before Justice Williams on Thursday and in default of a fine was sentenced to sixty days' imprisonment in the county jail. It is said that Indians in that vicinity are slaughtering deer every day and that they have no difficulty in disposing of the carcases.

BRAINERD TO RAINY LAKE.

The Brainerd and Northern Minnesota Road to be Extended.

The Minneapolis Tribune says it is proposed to make the Brainerd & Northern Minnesota railroad part of a new system which shall extend from Minneapolis north, passing through the counties of Chisago, Isanti, Sherburne, Mille Lacs, touching the great inland sea of Mills Lacs lake, and thence to Brainerd to connect with the road already built. The present road is constructed nearly to Leech Lake, and is operated forty miles north from Brainerd. Heretofore the plan, as far as Governor Pillsbury has been concerned, was to run west of Leech lake, and thence pass into the grain country, running west and south of Red Lake. It is now proposed to turn to the east side of Leech Lake, and run to Grand Rapids, the county seat of Itasca, and thence northeasterly to the Rainy Lake gold fields, provided they promise what is now the outlook for a large settlement in that county. For the present, local assistance would be voted, as several of the counties have notified the projectors that local aid will be given. Itasca county is said to offer $100,000 for the road.

The scheme is largely endorsed and is being set on foot by Maj. R. W. Jones, of the Northern Mill company. During the past 10 days a party including W. H. Truesdale, of the Minneapolis & St. Louis road; R. B. Langdon, C. A. Pillsbury, W. F. Brooks, B. F. Nelson, J. W. Day, E. W. Backus, E. L. Carpenter and G. H. Cook went over the Brainerd & Northern road constructed by the Northern Mill company with the assistance of the citizens of Brainerd, and inspected the field with the ultimate view of the construction of an other line of line of railway from Minneapolis northward. These gentlemen, it is understood, were very much pleased by the feasibility of the sceme especially as everyone along the proposed line heartily endorsed it and it is claimed that the new road is but a question of a short time.

Kicked the Wrong Man.

A young Poughkeepsian picked up a friend on Market street and took him home to lunch without notice to the former's wife. She called him one side and explained that there were only a dozen raw oysters, and when their friend had eaten his quota of four he must not be asked to take more. All this the husband promised to remember.

When their guest had eaten his four oysters, the host asked him to take some more. The wife looked distressed, and the guest declined. The husband insisted that his friend should have more. The wife looked as if she were in agony, and the guest firmly refused to allow the rest of the oysters to be brought from the kitchen. Later the wife said to her husband:

"How could you urge him to have more oysters when I explained to you that there weren't any more?"

"I am very sorry," said the penitent husband, "but I forgot all about it."

"What do you suppose I was kicking you under the table for?" retorted his wife.

"But you didn't kick me," said the husband.—Poughkeepsie News-Press.

A Chinaman's Joke.

The love of a good joke is not unknown even among those "childlike and bland" Celestials who are crowding together in several parts of the Australian colonies. A storekeeper, wishing to secure extra trade by advertising his goods in the Chinese language, made a bargain with a Celestial to paint a sign, expecting of course that it would be a very enticing one.

It did not answer his expectations, however, for the only perceptible effect it had on the emigrants from the Flowery Land was to excite a grin of the broadest dimensions. At length the puzzled storekeeper, by means of a considerable monetary inducement, obtained a correct rendering in English of the announcement and found to his intense chagrin that it read, "Don't buy anything here; storekeeper a rogue."—Melbourne Letter.

An Impetus-Gravity Problem.

An impetus-gravity problem which has not yet been solved is now vexing the theorists and cannot well be carried to the point of experiment. The proposition is this: A train is traveling at the rate of 60 miles an hour, and on the rear platform is a cannon pointing directly away from the direction of the train. This cannon fires a ball at the rate of 60 miles an hour. If the train is going at a specified speed and the ball is fired in the opposite direction, what will become of it? Will the speed of the train and the speed of the ball compensate and the ball drop to the ground as if dropped from a solid stationary platform, or what will become of it? This paradox has only been theoretically demonstrated.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How He Revenged Himself.

"I don't understand you," said Mr. Harlem Heights to Mr. Uptown Boulevard.

"What is there about me you don't understand?"

"You have been down on Mr. Cortland Street for the last 10 years, and now you have consented to his marriage with your daughter. Isn't that a trifle inconsistent?"

"Not when you know the facts. Just keep quiet until after the wedding before you accuse me of letting up on Cortland Street. He gets my wife for a mother-in-law. If that's not vengeance, I don't know what vengeance is."—Texas Siftings.

An Accommodating Artist.

An artist, celebrated in his day as a successful painter of portraits, while making a counterfeit presentment of a lady, perceived that when he came to draw the mouth, she tried to render it smaller by contracting her lips. "Pray do not trouble yourself so much, madam," he exclaimed; "if you like, I will draw your face without any mouth at all."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Delinquent Tax List

—OF—

Crow Wing County

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Crow Wing. } ss.
District Court, Fifteenth Judicial District.

The State of Minnesota to all persons, companies or corporations who have or claim any estate, right, title, or interest in, claim to or lien upon, any of the several pieces or parcels of land in the list hereto attached, described.

The list of taxes and penalties in real property for the county of Crow Wing remaining delinquent on the first Monday of January, 1894, has been filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the county of Crow Wing of which that hereto attached is a copy. Therefore you, and each of you, are hereby required to file in the office of said clerk, on or before the 20th day of March, 1894, your answer in writing, setting forth any objection or defense you may have to the taxes, or any part thereof, upon any piece or parcel of land described in said list, in, to or on which you have or claim any estate, right, title, interest, claim or lien, and in default thereof, judgment will be entered against such piece or parcel of land, for the taxes on said list appearing against it, and for all penalties, interest and costs.

[SEAL.] S. F. ALDERMAN, Clerk of District Court, Crow Wing County, Minnesota.

A List of Delinquent Taxes upon Real Estate within the County of Crow Wing, State of Minnesota, for the Year A. D. 1892, remaining delinquent and unpaid on the first Monday in January, 1894, and the penalties accrued thereon.

Another oddity in the matrimonial line is reported from New York. A German married couple, who had lived together for 22 years, applied at the city hall to be remarried. They said that they had lost their marriage certificate and wanted another, which was granted.

The finest opal of modern times belonged to Empress Josephine. It was called "The Burning of Troy." Its fate is unknown, as it disappeared when the allies entered Paris.

The flimsy paper called tissue paper was originally made to place between tissue cloth of gold or silver to prevent its fraying or tarnishing when folded.

"Dyspepsia is a dreadful thing," sighed the afflicted one. "It makes a man feel as if he were dead and his monument was erected upon his chest."

The agricultural capital of Europe has doubled since 1840. That of the United States has increased over six fold.

Probate Notice.

State of Minnesota, County of Crow Wing, } ss. In Probate court. Regular Term. Feb. 5 1894.

In the matter of the estate of Zillah Goss, deceased:

Whereas, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of Zillah Goss, deceased, late of said county, has been delivered to this court;

And whereas, Thomas Blackburn has filed therewith his petition, representing among other things, that said Zillah Goss died in said county on the 31st day of January, 1894, testate, and that said petitioner is the sole executor named in said last will and testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to him issued thereon;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument and the said petition be heard before this court, at the probate office in said county, on the 5th day of March, A. D. 1894, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon when all persons interested may appear for, or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Brainerd Dispatch, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Brainerd, in said county.

Dated at Brainerd, Minn., the 5th day of Feb. A. D. 1894. By the Court:

MILTON McFADDEN, Judge of Probate.

[Seal.]

LEON E. LUM, Attorney for Petitioner.

Receivers Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Crow Wing. } District Court, 15th Judicial District

In the matter of H. Rosenblatt, Insolvent.

On reading and filing the above and foregoing petition of the receiver herein, and the affidavit of P. C. Schmidt, one of the attorneys for said receiver, wherein and whereby it appears that the Hon. Geo. W. Holland, the presiding Judge of the 15th Judicial District is now absent from the state, and said receiver prays the Court for an order for his discharge;

Now therefore, it is ordered, that the matter set forth in said petition praying for the discharge of said receiver be, and the same are hereby ordered to be brought on for hearing at the next general term of said Court, held at Brainerd, in the County of Crow Wing, on the 19th day of March, 1894, at the opening of the Court on that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard.

It is further ordered, that this order be published in the Brainerd Dispatch, for three successive weeks, once in each week, being a newspaper regularly published in the City of Brainerd, County of Crow Wing and State of Minnesota.

Dated Feb. 19th, 1894.

By the Court, CHAS. L. LEWIS, Judge of the 11th Judicial District, acting for and in behalf of the Judge of the 15th Judicial District.

Something Good In Silverware;

we don't mean choice cakes or fruits, but the ware to hold them, all in solid silver, rich, elegant and beautiful. The whole range of table silver is here, including knives, forks, spoons, sugar bowls, water sets, etc., all in the most tasteful, novel and artistic designs. Silverware is costly because somewhat high in price, and cheap because you buy it for a lifetime. What wears so long should be bought with judgement and care. The fall in the value of silver places solid ware within the reach of all. We have a full line.

BRAINERD, - - - - MINN.

There has been twenty officers and two hundred men killed in the terrific warfare which is in progress in the republic of Brazil. With corresponding activity for a few years more there is a possibility of the war being brought to a close.

A Pittsburg young man shot his father twice through the head in a laudable endeavor to convince the old gentleman that he should eat pie with a fork. True culture is not confined to the charmed circle of Ward McAllister's "400."

Queen Victoria's life has been threatened by a crank. It is no new experience to her, as for many years she has been the recipient of such attentions. Her goodly age is an illustration of the old adage that threatened people live the longest.

Fires in the world's fair buildings are becoming so frequent as to remove all doubt of their incendiary origin. It would, perhaps, be a measure of economy for the city to destroy them at once, for the cost of their protection is fast exceeding their value.

A second edition of the Siamese twins, now being exhibited at Hong Chow, are two nice-looking boys about 6 years old, bound together by a ligament of flesh near the middle of the sides. They are as much alike in appearance and as near equal in size as it is possible to be.

Vaillant, the French bomb-thrower who recently expiated his crime on the guillotine, seems destined to have many imitators among the hare-brained cranks of Paris. Another outrage was perpetuated at a restaurant there the other day, and several persons were killed and mangled. The executioner promises to have his hands full if the homicidal mania continues.

Miss Harriett Ann Tebbutt, whose death occurred lately in London, was one of Florence Nightingale's chief coadjutors in the Crimea. She joined Miss Nightingale on the outbreak of hostilities, became Superintendent of the General Hospital, retained the post till the end of the war, and continued hospital work in English cities for many years.

The University of Wisconsin has come into possession of an interesting curiosity in the shape of a dynamo which was one of the first by Edison in his experiments in incandescent lighting. It was obtained from the Edison exhibit at the world's fair, and was made in 1880, in Menlo Park. It is still serviceable and illustrates well the principles upon which the first dynamos were made.

Anent the proposed annexation of New York's suburbs to that city, the Chicago papers, that are greatly exercised lest the Windy City be distanced in population and territory, might reproduce the jokes perpetrated by the Gotham papers at Chicago's expense while the annexation fever prevailed there. Some of them were very good—equal to any which the Chicago wits could evolve.

Mr. Redmond, one of the Irish leaders in the British parliament, thinks that if Gladstone would appeal to the people he would have an enormous majority in the new house of commons. The difficulty at present is not with the commons. That body is in full accord with the premier on the Irish question. The trouble lies in the house of lords, and that body would not be affected by a thousand elections.

The great oaks in Waverly, Mass., are survivals of an oak forest that must have existed in that region, according to the geologists, as far back as the tenth century. They bear every evidence of great age and an elm tree in the neighborhood is now almost dismantled, with its great limbs lying around on the ground. Only one other oak tree in New England is known that can be compared with them. That is located at Ipswich and is larger and more venerable than the Waverly oaks.

Billy Deutsch, "the man who broke the bank of Monto Carlo," has just died at Denver in extreme poverty. His exploit at the famous gambling den brought him a large fortune. He was notorious the world over and thought himself a genuine social lion. He spent his money freely, gambled recklessly, and ultimately "went broke" in Denver. For some time past he has been practically a pauper. His life and death again illustrates the dangers of sudden wealth acquired by questionable means.

Mrs. Rebecca Ann Lichner, who lives near New-May, Ill., is supposed to be the oldest living woman in Illinois, if not in the United States. She was born Dec. 18, 1776, and is consequently over 117 years old. She is of the Norwegian descent, and her father was for many years an officer in the Norwegian army. She was married in 1800 and had eight children, of whom the youngest, Samuel, 81 years old, lives with his mother and works daily in the fields. Mrs. Lichner moved to this country in 1820 and got a small piece of land from the government, which she has ever since retained. Her experience with Indians in the early days of Illinois were adventurous. She is at present feeble, and cannot live much longer.

The safety and rapidity of communication between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, across the Cordilleras, will be facilitated and improved through a recent decree of Senor Jorge Monnt, the president of Chili. It is shown that work is actively being pushed to cut the immense tunnel through which the railroad is destined to connect Chili and the Argentine Republic. It will pass under the top of the Andes, or rather, the Cordilleras. But until this tunnel is completed, which will not be before six or eight years, the portion of the route which occupies the summit of the mountain, between the terminus of the Argentine and that of the Chilian railroad, has to be traversed by means of a road, or rather, a path, not always in good shape for traveling. The decree of President Monnt says that "Whereas, there exists between Juncal and the summit of the mountain only a path dangerous for riding, especially in the portion called the Suesta de los Caracobs," the government approves the plan proposed by the department of public works, the cost of which will amount to $88,070, and bids are invited from the contractors toward the improvement of that part of the Cordilleras road.

A MISER'S FORTUNE.

It Amounted to $100,000 and Was Left Outside of His Relations.

A peculiar history has been revealed by the filing of the will of William Larkin, who died recently in St. Mary's hospital. Larkin has led a miserly and solitary life ever since his arrival in this city from Ireland in 1850. He worked at odd jobs and had no means until a few years later, when a brother died and left him $8,000.

With this money Larkin commenced the business of selling flour to miners. At the same time he made fortunate mining investments and lived on a mere pittance. For five years prior to his death he occupied a miserable room at 1307 1-2 Polk street, for which he paid $5 a month. The room was so filthy with dirt as to be almost uninhabitable.

Amid these squalid surroundings Larkin lived and hoarded his money. His only companion was his library, which embraced a few old battered volumes. Everything that came into his house he saved, including even the wrapping paper from his groceries. His meals he cooked on a little oil stove.

The expenditures of this queer character did not exceed a few cents a day. The amounts were carefully noted from day to day in a memorandum book made of paper sacks cut and sewed together. As the result of all this miserly saving Larkin died at the age of sixty years worth $100,000, nearly all of which he bequeathed to the family of Eliza Kavanagh, a widow, residing at 2025 Pacific avenue. When Larkin was taken sick he sent for Mrs. Kavanagh, who had him removed to the hospital, where he died. His will was executed at midnight on the day of his death. It was drawn by ex-Judge Sullivan, and left the dying man's property to Mrs. Kavanagh.

The miserly instinct remained with Larkin up to the time of his death. The night before he tried to induce his landlady to accept his ragged clothing for the room rent of December, which he had not paid.

The Kavanaghs took immediate possession of the old man's books, bonds and papers. Mrs. Kavanagh states that she had no claim upon Larkin, although he had been a friend of her husband and she had known him for years.

Larkin had made two wills previous to the one now offered for probate. The contents of these wills and their present whereabouts are unknown. The latest will gives Mrs. Kavanagh everything except $500 for a coffin, $500 for masses and $10,000 for a tombstone.

It is not known whether or not Larkin had any relatives in Ireland or elsewhere who may come forward to contest the distribution of his property.—San Francisco Chronicle.

BANDITS ARE CAPTURED

EVANS AND MORRELL NOW SAFE BEHIND THE BARS.

They Visit Evans' House in Visalia, Cal., When They Are Discovered by a Sheriff's Posse and Are Forced to Surrender.

Visalia, Cal., Feb. 20.—Chris Evans, the train robber and outlaw who escaped from Fresno jail a month ago, is again in custody. It was discovered last night that he had come into Visalia from the mountains with his partner, Edward Morrell, who assisted him to escape from Fresno jail, and that the two men had hidden in Evans' house here. Officers surrounded the house early this morning and a few hours later practically all the inhabitants of the town were present. Evans recognized the fact that escape was impossible, and after brief negotiations with Sheriff Kay, of this county, he and Morrell surrendered.

The town of Visalia was thrown into a state of wild excitement by the news which was brought last night to the officials that the notorious bandits had come down from their mountain retreat and were at Evans' house. They arrived in town on foot, having left a horse and cart tied to a fence at the ranch of Elijah Perkins, near the stone corral. As soon as Sheriff Kay was informed of this a posse of determined men was quickly gathered and proceeded quietly to Evans' house. When Evans saw the house was surrounded he opened negotiations with the deputies to surrender, Evans' son carrying the correspondence. Evans agreed to come out if Kay would disperse the crowd. The officers ordered all the spectators to leave, which they did, then Evans came out on the porch unarmed and Sheriff Kay and Undersheriff Hall went forward and shook hands with him. Evans and Morrell at the time of surrender had two Winchester rifles, two pistols and plenty ammunition. Marshal Gard says the man arrested with Evans is Ed Martin, known here as Morrell; that he formerly ran a merry-go-round with Fredericks, who is a circus man, having killed Sheriff Pascott of Nevada county. Morrell assisted in stealing arms from a saloon in this city and Fredericks took them to Folsom prison for George Sontag. The bandits are worn out. The officers have kept them traveling, and they had to find some place to rest, and they took that chance here. The citizens are very indignant at Evans, and if the prisoners are not removed soon they may be lynched.

Willis to Dole.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The president has transmitted to congress another chapter in the volume of Hawaiian correspondence. Mr. Willis' reply to the letter of President Dole is the only other important enclosure. In his letter to Dole Mr. Willis protested his peaceful intentions in Hawaii and explained in detail his reasons for acts which President Dole had complained. He explained the demonstration made by the sailors of the Philadelphia on the night of Nov. 15, by saying that he had heard rumors of threatened mob violence and foreign residents had asked for protection. He denied being in constant communication with Liliuokalani, having had but three interviews with her. Regarding the refusal to allow the Dole government to send dispatches by the Corwin, Mr. Willis says that permission was withheld from everybody alike. Mr. Willis closes with a statement that the gentlemen whom ex-Marshal Wilson had in his interview of Dec. 9 cited as supplementary advisers had nearly all of them promptly denied his statements.

Fired by the Governor.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 20.—The governor to-day removed Secretary of State Jochim, Treasurer Hambitzer and Land Commissioner Berry. The result of the alleged carelessness or wilful misconduct of these officers, who compose the board of state canvassers, was the increasing of the state officers' salaries as follows: state treasurer and superintendent of instruction, from $1,000 to $1,000; secretary of state and land commissioner, $800 to $2,000 each; lieutenant governor, from $3 per day during actual service to $1,200 per year; attorney general, $2,500 to $3,000 per year. The latter officer's salary was also raised from $1,000 to $2,500 in 1891, but the returns of the vote on that amendment were also doctered, supposedly, after they reached Lansing, apparently in order to show a result in his favor.

Sixty Went Down.

New Orleans, Feb. 20.—The rumor prevailing here that the steamer Millard, belonging to the Nicaragua Navigation company, having on board sixty men, had been lost off the Nicaragua coast a week ago, has been confirmed. Not a man on board the unfortunate vessel survived to tell the story. A reporter met an English gentleman last night in the St. Charles hotel, who is going to Nicaragua to-day, and who has interests in that section. He has received word from Greytown confirming the rumor of the lost vessel. To-day this authority said a cable was sent to London telling of the loss and the watery grave found by all on board.

Anarchs on Trial.

Vienna, Feb. 20. — The trial of the twelve anarchists arrested in September last, charged with conspiring the life of Emperor Francis Joseph, began to-day. The defense asked that part of the proceedings be made public, but the court ruled that the trial should take place in secret. The proceedings promise to be memorable in the history of anarchy, as the case is one of the most sensational and romantic on record. The trial of these twelve men, in view of the recent anarchist exploits in Europe, will be followed with the keenest interest here, and doubtless in the United States as well, for the prisoners are said to be closely connected with the anarchists of America.

Matthew Ashton Dead.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 20. — Matthew Ashton, the Rock county murderer of his aunt, has been ill with smallpox at the Dane county jail in this city, and died during the night. No new cases have developed.

A Boom Hotel for Sale.

Barboursville, Ky., Feb. 20.—The $1,000,000 hotel at Middlesboro, Ky., constructed there a few years since in the palmy days of the "magic city," is advertised by the receiver for sale on March 12.

St. Paul and the G. A. R.

Minneapolis, Feb. 17. — The Grand Army department commander, Sam R. Van Sant, accompanied by his wife, left last evening for the West, to be gone a month. Part of his time will be devoted to a particular mission he has determined on. Otherwise he had intended to spend the entire four weeks at the midwinter fair at San Francisco. This mission is to make a campaign en route and back, in the interest of St. Paul for the national encampment in 1895, in the four departments of Montana, Oregon, Washington and California. This effort he has decided on account of the earnest indorsement given the St. Paul move in the recent department encampment, and the determination of the commander is to leave no stone unturned to secure the prize for the Capital City.

Sold Diseased Pork.

West Union, Iowa, Feb. 17. — John Benda, a farmer living in the southern part of Howard county, is in jail, the result of selling poisoned meat. A few days ago several hogs died from some unknown cause. Benda dressed them, took the pork to Cresco and Ridgway, where he sold it to the local butchers. The dealers soon learned of the facts and Benda was arrested, and in default of payment of a fine was jailed. It is said this is not the only time this has been done.

Morton Hanged in Effigy.

Omaha, Feb. 17.—Secretary of Agriculture J. Sterling Morton was hanged in effigy at his home town, Nebraska City, last night. The perpetrators are not known.

A Social Sensation at Belle Plaine.

Belle Plaine, Iowa, Feb. 17.—H. C. Sanford, a business man of this village, is charged with assaulting, with intent to outrage, Mrs. J. Martin, and also administering a drug with the intention of committing the assault. Mr. Martin stabbed Sanford, who is recovering. Sanford says Mrs. Martin was drunk, and he was taking her home.

In the Hands of a Mob.

Ironwood, Mich., Feb. 19.—A serious riot occurred at Bessemer yesterday over the distribution of supplies sent to this section for the benefit of the starving miners. It was learned recently that many of the men who had been receiving help were possessed of a plentiful supply of provisions and considerable money, and, in justice to those who have been sending contributions to this section it was decided to refuse further help to such people. Notices to this effect were sent out during the week. Friday W. J. Haggerson, justice of the peace and poor commissioner at Bessemer, received several threatening letters warning him of death if the decision of the poor commissioner should be enforced.

Yesterday morning a large gang of Italians and Poles assembled in front of the poor supply store and threatened to commit depredations unless contributions were continued. Three men entered the store and, brandishing knives and guns, helped themselves to a supply of flour and pork. Several officers stood by, but were so alarmed over the situation that they dared not interfere.

The mob then started for the residence of W. J. Haggerson, but he had removed his wife and children to a place of safety. He returned to his home with a Winchester and had been joined by about fifteen of his friends, who were thoroughly armed. They succeeded for awhile in subduing the disturbance, but an hour later the tumultuous gang became so strong that Haggerson and his friends were obliged to flee for the woods. Haggerson and his family and many of his friends drove through the deep snow to Ironwood.

They were forced to leave that place to protect their lives. A drunken mob of Italians and Polacks hold possession of the town and threaten death to all who have been instrumental in cutting off supplies.

A strong posse was organized in Ironwood last night for the purpose of proceeding to Bessemer to protect life and property. David F. Foley, ex-sheriff of this county, who became notorious through the United States in connection with the capture of Holzhay, the Black Bart of the Lake Superior country and a successful train robber, in that he held up half a dozen trains without any assistance, volunteered to go to Bessemer and quell the tumultuous gathering. Foley is a desperate man. He has been a cow boy in his time, and has roughed it in all of the tough mining camps of the West. He knows and fears no danger, and would willingly risk his own life for a friend.

St. Paul, Feb. 19.—Receipts—Hogs, 125 head; cattle, 25 head; sheep, 200 head.

Hogs—Not much offered; a few bunches on the market, selling early at strong prices.

Cattle—But one bunch offered, and yards cleaned up early at about steady prices with yesterday, at 10a25c lower than a week ago. There is a fair demand.

The Knights of Labor.

Philadelphia, Feb. 19.—If a bombshell had been exploded in the midst of their camp, local Knights of Labor could not have been more surprised than they were when John W. Hayes, general secretary-treasurer of the order, issued the following notice: "To the Order Wherever Found—Greetings: Brothers T. V. Powderly, past general master workman; A. W. Wright and John Devlin, of the late general executive board, have entered suit against the order of the Knights of Labor for balances of salary which they claim are due them. This notice is published to prevent any credence being given to unreliable statements which may be made in the public press. If by decree of court it is learned that the order is indebted in any way to these claimants, the order is, and will be, fully able to meet any just claims."

Pope Leo Says Mass.

Rome, Feb. 19.—The closing ceremony in connection with Pope Leo XIII.'s jubilee year took place yesterday and consisted of a mass celebrated by him in St. Peter's, followed by the "Te Deum." The details of this impressive ceremony were arranged by the executive committee of the jubilee fetes. Sixty thousand tickets were given out for this final celebration, and it is estimated that 50,000 people were present. The mass was celebrated at the papal altar. Leo was borne into the basilica in the sedia gestatoria at 9:40 o'clock. He was preceded by a cortege of cardinals and bishops. His appearance was followed by the enthusiastic cheering of the immense multitude.

After Arid Lands.

San Francisco, Feb. 19.—The trans-Mississippi convention passed a resolution memorializing congress to enact legislation donating to the various states and territories all arid lands within their boundaries susceptible to irrigation, prescribing such conditions as will secure the lands to actual settlers through purchase from the state. An ineffectual attempt was made to pledge congress in favor of the system of irrigation and control of lands by the general government. Adjourned sine die.

Statue of Napoleon Demolished.

Boulogne, Feb. 19.—The statue of Napoleon, which was erected here in 1854 by Englishmen, has been blown down and broken to pieces.

Mining Suit.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Attachment proceedings have been commenced here by the Davis Mining Company of Negaunee against the Weston Furnace Company of Manistique, Mich. The mining company claims that the furnace company is indebted to it in the sum of $11,484.

Bill Nye Ill.

New York, Feb. 19.—Bill Nye, reported dying, is lying ill at the Hotel Imperial, Niagara Falls, and his manager has canceled all his engagements for next week.

Charges Against Wanamaker.

New York, Feb. 17.—The names of John Wannamaker of Philadelphia and Mrs. Hart, wife of Dr. Ernest Hart, editor of the Medical Record of London, figure as the principal characters in an affidavit made yesterday before the United States immigration authorities. Four Irish immigrants, in their sworn testimony, make serious charges against both, and they may be prosecuted for a violation of the alien contract labor laws. The affidavits tell how they signed contracts to come here and work, and detail how they were sent to Mrs. Hart, manager of one of the Wannamaker departments. The immigration authorities will investigate thoroughly.

Grip Fatal Among the Sioux.

Chamberlain, S. D., Feb. 17.—Information from a reliable source at Pine Ridge agency is to the effect that quite a number of Indians have died at that agency from the grip, but that the reports of wholesale deaths from this cause are greatly exaggerated. The deaths this winter have exceeded those of other winters. The Indians at Pine Ridge are for the most part contented and happy.

Umatilla Reservation.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The senate committee on Indian affairs offered a favorable report on the bill providing for the sale of the unsold portion of the Umatilla reservation in Oregon.

The Terrors of Typhoid.

Rock Rapids, Iowa, Feb. 17.—Typhoid fever has been raging in Little Rock for a few days. John Tau lost his son Hoyt, aged eighteen years, about fifteen days ago, and last night his wife succumbed, while he, at last report, was not expected to live more than a few hours. This will leave only a girl of ten years out of the entire family. Hoyt had his life insured during the fall for $2,000, and the parents were surprised to receive the notice from the company that the money was ready on proof being filed.

THE MINNESOTA G. A. R.

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT AT MINNEAPOLIS.

Large Attendance of the Boys in Blue at the Flour City—Pulling the Strings for St. Paul for the Next National Encampment.

Minneapolis, Feb. 13.—Minneapolis is once more in the hands of the boys in blue. The state G. A. R. encampment began in Harmonia Hall to-day with a large attendance. The convention will last two days, and the most important matter to come up is the election of officers. John Day Smith, the present commander, will retire, and S. I. Van Sant of Winona and Adjt. Gen. P. H. Mullen are in the field for the position. The matter of pensions will probably come up in some form during the state encampment, but just what shape it will assume it is difficult to say at the present time. In all probability efforts will be made to get a resolution passed asking that all pension frauds be investigated very carefully in order not to work any hardship to old soldiers who are entitled to pension money.

Minneapolis, Feb. 14.—There was an increased attendance at the second day's sesion of the fourteenth annual encampment of the Minnesota G. A. R. Commander Smith announced the following committees: Officers' reports, Comrades W. P. Robinson of Minneapolis, L. M. Lange of Marshall, W. Jacoby of Mankato, W. G. Van Brook of Duluth, J. M. Bowler of Bird Island.

Resolutions, Comrades L. L. Wheelock of Owatonna, Ell Torrance of Minneapolis, Harrison White of Beaver Creek, G. S. Ives of St. Pter, L. Aldrich of Farmington.

A resolution expressing sympathy with Corporal Tanner, who has had to undergo another surgical operation, was adopted. It declared that the shorter he grows the more the G. A. R. loved him. A committee fro the W. R. C., consisting of Mrs. John Day Smith, Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Savage, appeared in the hall at this time, and a committee, consisting of Judge Ell Torrance, Gen. Baker and Col. John Richardson, was appointed to escort them to the front. Each of the ladies made addresses. Commander Smith made a brief reply.

The matter of attending the national encampment at Pittsburg was taken up, and a resolution adopted instructing the delegation to use their best efforts to secure the ensampment for 1895 for St. Paul. An adjournment was then taken for lunch.

The arrangements locally for the encampment have been confined for the most part to the details of the convention, but a grand camp fire has been arranged for. It will be held at the Lyceum theater.

The first thing taken up after dinner was the matter of sending delegates to the national convention at Pittsburg. It was decided that the delegates from each congressional district should meet and decide upon whom they want to represent them. Minnesota is entitled to seven delegates from districts and two at large, besides alternates.

The reading of the report of Assistant Adjt. Gen. J. K. Mertz occupied considerable time. The total membership at the time of the last encampment was 7,976, and the representation at the encampment was 415. The total gain during the year was 575. During the year the losses by death were 585, and net gain for the year 61. The total amount expended for charity during the year was reported to be $990.28.

The report of the department quartermaster was next read.

Apparently all the comrades of the G. A. R. now attending the department meeting have brought their "women folks" with them, and they are not behind their husbands, brothers and fathers in their patriotism and devotion to the G. A. R., for they are all members of the Women's Relief Corps or the Ladies of the G. A. R., both of which organizations are now in session in this city.

The sessions of the W. R. C. are being held in Century hall, and 275 delegates assembled there yesterday morning, besides a large number of visitors, both within and without the society, for the meeting was an interesting one. The convention was called to order by the president, Mrs. Leavens of Faribault. After the preliminary business, the president made her report and annual address. The outlook for the order is very encouraging and the growth is steady and healthy. The membership is 2,971 in 95 corps. The treasurer reported the expenditure of $2,828.89 in relief work, and 303 old soldiers have been aided during the year.

Minneapolis, Feb. 15. — Capt. S. R. Van Sant of Winona will be the commander of the Minnesota G. A. R. for the coming year. Two candidates had been prominently mentioned for the position of Commander, Capt. Van Sant and Gen. J. H. Mullen, and interest among the friends of each was at white heat. It was expected that the fight would be lively and that the victory would be close. Contrary to all expectations, Gen. Mullen finally concluded not to permit his name to be used. "Little Jack," as the comrades love to call him, gave a number of reasons for withdrawing it, and his speech was received with applause. Alphonse Barto then made a eulogistic address, nominating Capt. Van Sant, and the election was made unanimous by a rising vote.

Capt. A. H. Reed of Glencoe was elected to the position of senior vice commander. While the ballots were being counted for the latter office a committee consisting of Past Department Commanders Charles D. Parker and L. M. Lange was detailed to escort Gen. Mullen to the stand. The appearance of Gen. "Jack" on the platform precipitated a demonstration in his favor and three ringing cheers and a tiger greeted him. He balanced himself on his crutches, and, advancing to the front of the stage, made a characteristic speech in which he thanked those present for the kind manner in which they had acted toward him. He also congratulated Commander-in-Chief Van Sant upon his election.

Department Commander Van Sant said that the department headquarters would remain in this city. He prefers Minneapolis on account of the large number of Grand Army posts in the city and the following the order has here.

In regard to the office of adjutant general it is stated that he will reappoint J. K. Mertz, the present incumbent, and that there will be scarcely any change in the administration of affairs following the change in commanding officer.

For junior vice commander, Charles W. McKay of Fergus Falls was selected. A resolution was adopted instructing the assistant adjutant general to prepare a roll of the dead of the year, giving name, age at death and past record, also branch of service during the war, with regiment company and rank. This roll is to be designated "The Honored Dead," and the resolution was introduced by Comrade J. G. Graham, of Post 19, Mankato. It was adopted by a unanimous rising vote.

The delegates to the national encampment at Pittsburg were selected, as follows:

At Large—Delegate, Robert Stratton, Minneapolis; alternate, J. H. Davidson, St Paul.

First District — Delegate, George B. Arnold, Kasson; alternate, A. . Christie, Austin.

Second District — Delegate, J. H. Baker, Mankato; alternate, C. C. Goodnow, Pipestone.

Third District—Delegate, James Hunter, Faribault; alternate, D. S. Hall, Stewart.

Fourth District—Delegate, John Espy, St. Paul; alternate, Samuel Bloomer, Stillwater.

Fifth District—Delegate, L. W. Collins, St. Cloud; alternate, N. R. Gerhart, Duluth.

Seventh District — Delegate, M. S. Counse, Detroit; alternate, A. B. Ackerman, Ada.

The question of pledging the encampment to work for any particular city for the '95 encampment came up and created some discussion. It was decided to pledge the support of the entire state to St. Paul, and this decision was received with applause by the St. Paul delegation. It was decided to let the per capita tax remain at 40 cents per annum.

The Minnesota Association of Ex-Prisoners of War held a session in the rooms of the Business union, in the Lumber exchange. There were about fifty members present and eight new ones were added. The by-laws were amended to permit the holding of four stated meetings each year and two special meetings, one at the time of the G. A. R. encampment and the other on any date that it was deemed necessary. Post commanders will be requested to send to the officers of the association a list of all ex-prisoners of war under their respective jurisdictions.

The culminating event of the G. A. R. encampment was the camp fire at the Lyceum theater last evening. This was the formal ceremony that will close the encampment, and great preparations had been made. The theater was decorated by a committee of ladies, and the stage draped in the colors and there were displays of potted plants and flowers in the boxes and on the stage. Rousing speeches were made by well known men.

No Doubt Dead.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 15.—The rescuers at work in the Gaylord mine did not make much headway yesterday. At 3 o'clock there was another cave-in of the roof which wrecked the inside workings of the mine badly. The workers were compelled to retreat to the foot of the shaft. Great fissures have now appeared on the earth's surface over the mine, and a number of houses are in danger of toppling over. It is estimated that the area affected by the cave-in covers twenty-two acres. The crowds about the mine to-day were less demonstrative but no less eager and earnest for the faintest news that may come up establishing the fate of those below. Many prominent mine inspectors and engineers visited the scene, and it was the general opinion of those best able to understand the condition of things that all of the men have perished either by being crushed to death or by suffocation.

On the Tariff.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Senators Vest, Jones (Ark.), Gorman, Ransom and Cockrell were in conference to-day in the room of the senate committee on appropriations. At times they called in other Democratic senators for consultation. The senators who took part in the conference were exceedingly uncommunicative concerning the proceedings, but it is known that they had under consideration the Democratic policy with reference to the tariff bill, and that the sugar schedule engaged the greatest share of their attention. Their efforts were in the direction of harmonizing the Democratic party; and while no decision was reached, it is believed by those well informed that the conference is likely to result in the placing of a duty of a cent a pound on sugar.

Prey of Lions.

San Francisco, Feb. 15.—Carl Thieman, attendant at Col. Daniel Boone's wild animal show at the midwinter fair, was attacked by three lions last night and so horribly mangled that he may die. The large crowd of spectators became panic-stricken and started for the doors. Women shrieked and fainted, but the crowd was finally induced to remain seated by attendants who had retained their presence of mind. Finally lanterns were brought, and there in the cage lay Thieman, with three lions clawing and munching his prostrate form. Col. Boone seized an iron bar and entered the cage. With shouts and blows he drove the beasts from their prey and dragged the prostrate and unfortunate man from the cage.

Mineral Lands.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The house committee on public lands voted to favorably report the bill of Representative Hartman of Montana for determining the title to mineral lands in Montana and Idaho within the limits of the land grants of the Northern Pacific railway. Under this bill commissioners to be appointed by the president are to examine and classify as soon as possible all the lands within these grants with regard to their mineral character. They are to reject all claims which are made or may be made hereafter on behalf of the Northern Pacific on mineral lands, exclusive of coal and iron property. The action of the commissioners is to be final.

Clemency for All but One.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The president has acted on applications for pardon in the following cases: A. B. Johnson, Missouri, making false affidavit for pension claim, denied; James F. Newcomb, Texas, incest, granted; Rufus Black, Connecticut, postoffice burglary, sentence commuted to two years' imprisonment, granted; John B. Smith, Arizona, adultery, granted; F. H. Van Hoesen, Ohio, perjury, granted.

Attached Hill's Property.

Miller, S. D., Feb. 15.—Treasurer Rosenkrans, in behalf of the county, has taken out a writ of attachment against Receiver Hill's bank property, though no levy has been made yet. The assignee has not yet given bonds, and a few private depositors are becoming uneasy.

Working on the Tariff.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The senate subcommittee on tariff is sitting almost constantly now, not only through the day, but well into the night, and is holding frequent conferences with the full Democratic membership of the committee. The subcommittee has almost completed its work on the minor details of the bill, but the more important questions which have puzzled them from the beginning, unless it may be the income tax, are still giving them worry, and many of them do not appear to be any nearer settled now than they were when the bill first reached the senate. There no longer appears a disposition to change the income tax in any way, and it may be accepted that it will be returned. Indications still point to an increase of the whisky tax to $1.20 per gallon and an extension of the bonded period, though there is some disagreement in the committee.

One Dead, the Other Dying.

Brainbridge, Ga., Feb. 17.—From Colquitt county comes news of a double tragedy. Frank Byrd, an employe of a Mr. Brice, while burning over a tract of land, was assaulted by John Cooper, who also claimed the land. Cooper drew a pistol and Byrd struck him with a club. As he fell Cooper shot Byrd Cooper is dead and Byrd dying.

Veteran Congressman Dead.

Lansaster, Pa., Feb. 17.—Ex-Congressman A. Kerr Smith died to-day from a complication of diseases, aged seventy-nine years. He served in the Forty-third, Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth congresses.

Peers Know When to Hedge.

London, Feb. 17.—The Telegraph in a leading article says: It is becoming dreadfully probable that the lords will show such an amount of sweet reasonableness on parishes as to make it extremely difficult for the ministers to pick a quarrel with them.

A Lawyer in Limbo.

Ashland, Wis., Feb. 17—Sheriff O'Brien arrested John F. Dufur on the charge of perjury. Dufur is a member of the law firm of Sanborn, Dufur & Anderson. The firm has recently commenced forty different suits against the city for various citizens in order to prevent the city treasurer from collecting certain special paving and sewer taxes assessed against property. Mayor O'Keefe swore out the warrant for Dufur's arrest. Dufur signed complaints for one of his clients who is in Texas. The mayor alleges in the warrant that the complaint, which is the same in all cases, contains a number of allegations that are false. City officials claim that they will arrest several of the other plaintiffs on the same charge. The cases have aroused much interest, and as the arrest of Dufur was wholly unexpected, the action of the city officials couses considerable excitement. Dufur claims his arrest is made simply to frighten his clients, and expresses confidence that he will be acquitted.

Starting Up at Reduced Wages.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Feb. 17.—The Winnebago Furniture company will start up their plant, after being nearly four months idle, on Monday. Employment will be given to 250 hands. The wage scale will be cut from 10 to 20 per cent.

"Their Pictures Took."

St. Croix Falls, Wis., Feb. 17.—Quite a sensation was created here by the arrest of F. W. Purcell and Frank Harris, photographers. They had been in this village about ten days, coming here from Clear Lake, Wis., where they had been located for a short time in the same business. Harris was charged with "jumping" a board bill, and both he and Purcell were escorted to Clear Lake by Under Sheriff Jones. Their gallery, which is a portable one, is locked up in consequence, and many who have given their orders for work, paying part in advance, are anxious.

THE WORK OF CONGRESS

RESUME OF PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

Condensed Record of the Important Transactions of Our National Lawmakers—The Work Done in Both Branches.

Washington, Feb. 15.—All efforts to agree upon a time for closing the debate upon the Bland bill have so far failed, and debate is still proceeding without limit. Mr. Bland will probably permit this to go on until to-morrow night, and there are quite a number of gentlemen who insist upon their right to be heard. The opponents of the measure have decided that they will insist upon a quorum of the advocates of the measure being present at every stage of the parliamentary procedure hereafter, so that a motion to close debate will require a quorum of those who are in favor of it. There are many members of the house who are absent at this time and it will probably require two days at least to secure the attendance necessary to bring the bill to a vote. To-morrow it is Mr. Bland's intention to make a motion to close debate, and as this motion will probably develop the lack of a quorum, the opponents of the bill refusing to vote, he will then offer a resolution to bring in absentees. A quorum favoring the bill being here, if necessary, a special order will be brought in to bring the measure to a final vote. Mr. Raynor and some of the other Democrats who are leading the opposition, still insist that the bill can be beaten, but Mr. Tracy, who is floor leader of the opposition on the Republican side, frankly confessed that he believes the bill will pass when it reaches a vote. As to whether it will be vetoed, however, he gives no opinion. The debate was without startling incident of any kind.

The entire time of the senate was consumed in the discussion of the house bill compelling the Rock Island Railroad company to stop its trains at the new towns of Enid and Round Pond, in the Indian Territory. The measure is especially championed by Senator Berry of Arkansas, and is proving a subject of great attention, as some Democratic senators see in the proposed exercise of congressional power, usurpation of rights. No action was reached on the bill, but a vote will probably be taken to-morrow.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The vice president of the United States came to the rescue of the Oklahoma town-site bill today and by his vote broke the tie and passed the bill compelling the Rock Island Railroad company to stop its trains at the new towns of Enid and Round Pond. This measure has been under discussion in the senate nearly a week and has been one of the most hotly contested bills of the session. Senator Blackburn moved to lay the bill on the table. The roll call resulted: Yeas 25, nays 31, and the motion to table the bill was defeated. Senator Peffer then presented an amendment to provide that in any election for the location of county seats "all citizens of the United States," irrespective of sex, shall be entitled to vote. It was opposed by Senator Blackburn, but Senator Peffer made a strong speech in support of his amendment. "I intend," said he in conclusion, "to avail myself of every opportunity to give to woman—God bless her—every advantage, every right and every privilege that I have got." (Applause). The amendment was defeated, the vote being yeas 15, nays 4. Those voting for woman's suffrage were Senators Allison, Carey, Davis, Dolph, Frye, Gallinger, Hansbrough, Kyle, Manderson, Mitchell of Oregon, Peffer, Perkins, Stewart, Teller and Wilson. The bill was then reported as amended and after the third reading, the roll was called. The result was a tie. "The vote on this bill," said Vice President Stevenson, "is yeas 27, nays 27, a tie. The chair votes yea." This vote of the vice president saved the bill and it was declared to be passed. The senate then adjourned and the Peckham nomination goes over until to-morrow.

The debate on the Bland seigniorage bill in the house was characterized by several strong Democratic speeches against the measure. Mr. Bland has given up hope of reaching an agreement to close debate by unanimous consent and to-morrow he will move to close debate. As the opponents of the bill will decline to vote it will require a quorum of the advocates of the measure to carry this motion. Mr. Bland does not expect to secure a quorum to-morrow, but as soon as this lack of a quorum is demonstrated, steps will be taken to compel the attendance of absentees and Mr. Bland is confident that on Monday a quorum will be present to pass the bill.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The senate adjourned after spending the better part of two days considering the nomination of W. H. Peckham of New York to be associate justice of the supreme court. The nomination was rejected by a vote of 32 to 41. The vote in detail was as follows:

Ayes—Bate, Blackburn, Brice, Butler, Caffery, Dixon, Faulkner, George, Gray, Hale, Harris, Hunton, Kyle, Lindsay, McPherson, Martin, Mills, Mitchell (Or.), Mitchell (Wis.), Palmer, Pasco, Pettigrew, Platt, Proctor, Ransom, Roach, Squire, Stockbridge, Turpie, Vilas, Voorhees, White (La.)—32.

Nays — Aldrich, Allen, Allison, Berry, Call, Cameron, Carey, Chandler, Cockrell, Coke, Cullom, Daniel, Davis, Dolph, Frye, Gallinger, Gibson, Gorman, Hansbrough, Hawley, Higgins, Hill, Hoar, Irby, Jones (Ark.), Lodge, McLaurin, Manderson, Morrill, Murphy, Peffer, Perkins, Power, Pugh, Shoup, Stewart, Teller, Vest, Washburn, White (Cal.), Wilson—41.

Paired for Peckham—Camden, Gorden, McMillin, Martin, Morgan—5.

Paired Against Peckham — Dubois, Jones (Nev.), Quay, Vance, Wolcott—5.

Absent Without Pairs—Colquitt and Sherman.

Senator Colquitt released Senator Wilson, who voted against confirmation, and Senator Sherman released Senator Brice, who voted for confirmation.

Recapitulation—For confirmation, Democrats, 23; Republicans, 8; Populists, 1—32. Against confirmation, Democrats, 15; Republicans, 23; Populists, 3—41. Paired for confirmation, Democrats, 4; Republicans, 1—5. Paired against confirmation, Democrats, 1; Republicans, 4—5. Absent and unpaired, Democrats, 1; Republicans, 1—2.

Mr. Bland began his coercive tactics to compel a vote on the silver seigniorage bill. The bulk of the Republicans and the Democratic opponents of the measure inaugurated a filibuster with the intention of forcing him to produce a quorum of the advocates of the bill to pass it, and the entire day was consumed in roll calls. The highest number of votes Mr. Bland was able to poll was 163 in favor of his demand for the previous question on the motion to close debate. Of these 145 were Democrats, 9 Populists and 9 Republicans. Mr. Page (R. I.) and Mr. Ryan (N. Y.) refused to join the filibuster, but voted against the motion. The Republicans who voted with Mr. Bland are as follows: Bowers (Cal.), Broderick, Doolittle, Funston, Marshal, Hermann, Post and Sweet. Mr. Bland abandoned any further attempt to secure a quorum, and the house passed a resolution instructing the sergeant-at-arms to telegraph for absentees.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The Democratic members of the senate committe on finance have decided that they will not be able to report the tariff bill to the full committee on Tuesday next, as they had announced they would be, and one of the members of the subcommitte which has had the bill under consideration said to-day that he would not attempt to say when the bill could be reported. "I shall be very well satisfied," he said, "if the bill is in shape to be reported by the beginning of next week." The reason for the postponement is discovered in the fact that the work of satisfying Democratic senators has been found a very difficult one, and the construction of a bill that is sure to be accepted by them, the undertaking requiring many changes of purpose and alterations oft he figures as first made. When the subcommittee began their work they had before them the draft of a bill upon which it was believed it would be an easy matter to secure agreement, but this bill has been changed in some respects several times and has become so worn from handling and erasures that it has become necessary to destroy the original copy and replace it with a new one. There is still much demand for concessions on the part of senators on minor items, and many of the most important features in the bill are unacted upon. Sugar is included in this list and it looks as if its fate would be about the last question to be determined by the subcommittee.

The fight over the silver seigniorage bill was resumed in the house to-day, and Mr. Bland is confident that there will be a quorum on hand to order the previous question to-morrow. Once the necessary quorum is obtained, and that is only a question of time, as the opponents of the measure have practically abandoned hope of defeating the bill, it will be brought to a vote if need be by a special order from the committee on rules, the speaker having promised a special rule if the emergency demands it.

Minor matters occupied the attention of the senate to-day. Senators Daniel, Caffery and White of California have notice of speeches on the Hawaiian resolution for this week, and it is probable that other senators will speak upon the subject before next Saturday.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The president to-day sent to the senate the nomination of Senator Edward D. White of Louisiana to be an associate justice of the United States supreme court, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Blatchford. The senate had hardly time to recover from the surprise which the nomination had caused when the confirmation was announced. While months had been spent in consideration of the nominations of Messrs. Hornblower and Peckham, and much time devoted to them by the senate committee on judiciary, the name of Mr. White was not referred to the committee at all, and in less than an hour after the nomination had been received the senate had placed its seal of approval upon the selection and robbed itself of an esteemed member and had given the supreme court the one man necessary to make a full bench. Edward Douglas White will take his seat on the supreme bench as the youngest of the justices, and with the exception of Justices Field and Harlan, he will have entered at an earlier period in life than any of the other justices, and will have the exceptionally long term of twenty-one years to serve before retirement. He was born in the parish of La Fourche, La., and was forty-eight years of age last November. He was educated at Mount St. Mary's, near Emmetsburg, Md., at the Jesuit college in New Orleans, and finally at Georgetown college, District of Columbia. He entered the Confederate army, and after the war was admitted to the bar by the Louisiana supreme court, and practiced his profession during the troubled years which followed the reconstruction period. In 1874 he began his political experience as a state senator, lapsing into the law again he became associate justice of the supreme court of Louisiana in 1878, but again turning to political pursuits, he was elected to the United States senate to succeed Senator Eustis, at present minister to France, taking his seat March 4, 1891. By his appointment to-day he will leave a vacancy of full two years in his senatorial term. The new justice is a bachelor at present, but there is a well defined rumor afloat that before the year expires he will espouse a well known society woman who has been a brilliant figure in Washington.

The session of the senate was unusually devoid of interest. Senator Hale presented a resolution to investigate certain printing contracts, but the matter did not even create a discussion in the senate, although the resolution was adopted. Senator Daniel opened his argument in support of the administration in the Hawaiian matter, and will conclude to-morrow.

The filibuster over the silver bill in the house continued to-day, and an adjournment was had to give the Democrats an opportunity to consider the situation in caucus. An order arresting absentees was passed.

The success of the filibuster against the Bland silver seigniorage bill, which has blocked proceedings in the house for five days, forced the Democratic advocates of the measure to invoke the decree of a caucus. There were present 130 Democrats, but not a Democratic member of the New York delegation, all of whom have joined the obstructive movement, was present, nor in fact any of the others who joined hands with them. A resolution was unanimously adopted that all Democrats record their votes either for or against the measure. This will bring the bill to a vote to-morrow in all probability.

A Tailor Swindle.

West Union, Iowa, Feb. 20.—Swindlers have been roping in the farmers in the eastern part of Mitchell county on a cloth racket. They secured cash or notes, leaving a roll of cloth, securely wrapped, supposed to be like sample shown. A tailor was to follow in a few days and make the cloth into suits for only $3. When the bundle was opened it was found to contain the cheapest kind of shoddy goods and the tailor failed to show up.

Struck the Dock.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Feb. 16.—There was a free-for-all fight in the Bandbox saloon last night over the A. P. A. James Broderick, a well known sport, invited all present to drink with him, but excluded all who were friendly to the A. P. A. A doctor from Sioux City was present and innocently remarked that this was a peculiar request. Broderick said, "I believe you are an A. P. A.," and with that struck the doctor. A free-for-all fight resulted, during which Officer Mullen went into the saloon. Broderick struck Mullen, who fell. Broderick with a billy. McCarrier, another sport, who came to Broderick's rescue, was also struck with the billy. No arrests have been made and none will be.

First Navigator of the Soo Dead.

Bayfield, Wis., Feb. 16.—Capt. J. D. Angus, a pioneer of the Lake Superior region, died at La Pointe, on Madeline island, yesterday. He was 81 years of age, and was prominently identified with the early history of the development of this section. He sailed the first vessel that was brought over the falls of the "Soo" early in the 40's, and continued active marine life for many years. He has been incapacitated for work for several years. He is almost the last of the early settlers at the west end of Lake Superior.

M'Kane Is Guilty.

Brooklyn, Feb. 16.—The jury in the McKane trial filed into the court room this morning, and five minutes later the prisoner appeared in charge of a deputy sheriff. He was surrounded by his counsel and his faithful friends from Gravesend. Mr. Shephard and the counsel for the prosecution sat around their table. Clerk Byrne asked the foreman of the jury if they had agreed upon a verdict. "We have," was the answer. "What is it?" "Guilty." The prisoner sat quiet, but his friends were very much affected. The verdict may mean an imprisonment in state's prison for two years, or ten, at the discretion of the court. He was convicted on the charge of conspiracy to falsify election returns.

Treason Among Peixoto's Subordinates.

Buenos Ayres, Feb. 16.—Advices from Pernambuco say Jose Mariano, the leader of the autonomists, who was recently arrested, has escaped to Parahyba, where he is conducting an outbreak. A dispatch from Rio Janeiro says: President Peixoto, suspecting that Barbosa de Lima, the governor of Pernambuco, is plotting to make the Northern states a separate republic, with himself as president, has ordered Gen. Castro Leite to arrest the governor at the first sign of disloyalty.

Brithish Africa Were Merciless.

London, Feb. 16.—The Chronicle prints an interview which was obtained by a representative of the Pretoria Press with Capt. Lloyd Francis who was engaged that Capt. Francis admitted that wounded Matabeles, many of them naked and helpless, were shot by the forces of the British South Africa company, their orders being to take no prisoners, but to shoot every native they came across.

Selous Begins a Libel Action.

London, Feb. 16.—F. G. Selous, the South African hunter who obtained prominence during the Matable campaign, has commenced an action for libel against Henry Labouchere, M. P., charging misrepresentation in the columns of Truth regarding certain statements made in connection with the Matable war and the part which Selous took in it.

Enforced Vaccination.

Black River Falls, Feb. 16.—The school board to-day ordered the city schools closed for two weeks to give a chance for the pupils to be vaccinated. Upon the reopening of school no pupils will be admitted without a certificate of successful vaccination. Many of the parents declare they will not submit to the order.

Employes Will Fight.

Milwaukee, Feb. 16.—In the United States court late this afternoon, a petition for a modification of Judge Jenkins' famous strike order, was filed by the representatives of the different railroad organizations.

Brainerd Dispatch.

BRAINERD, - - - MINN.

There has been twenty officers and two hundred men killed in the terrific warfare which is in progress in the republic of Brazil. With corresponding activity for a few years more there is a possibility of the war being brought to a close.

A Pittsburg young man shot his father twice through the head in a laudable endeavor to convince the old gentleman that he should eat pie with a fork. True culture is not confined to the charmed circle of Ward McAllister's "400."

Queen Victoria's life has been threatened by a crank. It is no new experience to her, as for many years she has been the recipient of such attentions. Her goodly age is an illustration of the old adage that threatened people live the longest.

Fires in the world's fair buildings are becoming so frequent as to remove all doubt of their incendiary origin. It would, perhaps, be a measure of economy for the city to destroy them at once, for the cost of their protection is fast exceeding their value.

A second edition of the Siamese twins, now being exhibited at Hong Kong, are two nice-looking boys about 6 years old, bound together by a ligament of flesh near the middle of the sides. They are as much alike in appearance and as near equal in size as it is possible to be.

Vaillant, the French bomb-thrower who recently expiated his crime on the guillotine, seems destined to have many imitators among the hare-brained cranks of Paris. Another outrage was perpetuated at a restaurant there the other day, and several persons were killed and mangled. The executioner promises to have his hands full if the homicidal mania continues.

Miss Harriett Ann Tebbutt, whose death occurred lately in London, was one of Florence Nightingale's chief coadjutors in the Crimea. She joined Miss Nightingale on the outbreak of hostilities, became Superintendent of the General Hospital, retained the post till the end of the war, and continued hospital work in English cities for many years.

The University of Wisconsin has come into possession of an interesting curiosity in the shape of a dynamo which was one of the first by Edison in his experiments in incandescent lighting. It was obtained from the Edison exhibit at the world's fair, and was made in 1880, in Menlo Park. It is still serviceable and illustrates well the principles upon which the first dynamos were made.

Anent the proposed annexation of New York's suburbs to that city, the Chicago papers, that are greatly exercised lest the Windy City be distanced in population and territory, might reproduce the jokes perpetrated by the Gotham papers at Chicago's expense while the annexation fever prevailed there. Some of them were very good—equal to any which the Chicago wits could evolve.

Mr. Redmond, one of the Irish leaders in the British parliament, thinks that if Gladstone would appeal to the people he would have an enormous majority in the new house of commons. The difficulty at present is not with the commons. That body is in full accord with the premier on the Irish question. The trouble lies in the house of lords, and that body would not be affected by a thousand elections.

The great oaks in Waverly, Mass., are survivals of an oak forest that must have existed in that region, according to the geologists, as far back as the tenth century. They bear every evidence of great age and an elm tree in the neighborhood is now almost dismantled, with its great limbs lying around on the ground. Only one other oak tree in New England is known that can be compared with them. That is located at Ipswich and is larger and more venerable than the Waverly oaks.

Billy Deutsch, "the man who broke the bank of Monte Carlo," has just died at Denver in extreme poverty. His exploit at the famous gambling den brought him a large fortune. He was notorious the world over and thought himself a genuine social lion. He spent his money freely, gambled recklessly, and ultimately "went broke" in Denver. For some time past he has been practically a pauper. His life and death again illustrates the dangers of sudden wealth acquired by questionable means.

Mrs. Rebecca Ann Lichner, who lives near New-May, Ill., is supposed to be the oldest living woman in Illinois, if not in the United States. She was born Dec. 18, 1776, and is consequently over 117 years old. She is of the Norwegian descent, and her father was for many years an officer in the Norwegian army. She was married in 1800 and had eight children, of whom the youngest, Samuel, 81 years old, lives with his mother and works daily in the fields. Mrs. Lichner moved to this country in 1820 and got a small piece of land from the government, which she has ever since retained. Her experience with Indians in the early days of Illinois were adventurous. She is at present feeble, and cannot live much longer.

The safety and rapidity of communication between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, across the Cordilleras, will be facilitated and improved through a recent decree of Senor Jorge Montt, the president of Chili. It is shown that work is actively being pushed to cut the immense tunnel through which the railroad is destined to connect Chili and the Argentine Republic. It will pass under the top of the Andes, or rather, the Cordilleras. But until this tunnel is completed, which will not be before six or eight years, the portion of the route which occupies the summit of the mountain, between the terminus of the Argentine and that of the Chilian railroad, has to be traversed by means of a road, or rather, a path, not always in good shape for traveling. The decree of President Montt says that "Whereas, there exists between Juncal and the summit of the mountain only a path dangerous for riding, especially in the portion called the Suesta de los Caragobs," the government approves the plan proposed by the department of public works, the cost of which will amount to $88,070, and bids are invited from the contractors toward the improvement of that part of the Cordilleras road.

A MISER'S FORTUNE.

It Amounted to $100,000 and Was Left Outside of His Relations.

A peculiar history has been revealed by the filing of the will of William Larkin, who died recently in St. Mary's hospital. Larkin has led a miserly and solitary life ever since his arrival in this city from Ireland in 1850. He worked at odd jobs and had no means until a few years later, when a brother died and left him $8,000.

With this money Larkin commenced the business of selling flour to miners. At the same time he made fortunate mining investments and lived on a mere pittance. For five years prior to his death he occupied a miserable room at 1307 1-2 Polk street, for which he paid $5 a month. The room was so filthy with dirt as to be almost uninhabitable.

Amid these squalid surroundings Larkin lived and hoarded his money. His only companion was his library, which embraced a few old battered volumes. Everything that came into his house he saved, including even the wrapping paper from his groceries. His meals he cooked on a little oil stove.

The expenditures of this queer character did not exceed a few cents a day. The amounts were carefully noted from day to day in a memorandum book made of paper sacks cut and sewed together. As the result of all this miserly saving Larkin died at the age of sixty years worth $100,000, nearly all of which he bequeathed to the family of Eliza Kavanagh, a widow, residing at 2025 Pacific avenue. When Larkin was taken sick he sent for Mrs. Kavanagh, who had him removed to the hospital, where he died. His will was executed at midnight on the day of his death. It was drawn by ex-Judge Sullivan, and left the dying man's property to Mrs. Kavanagh.

The miserly instinct remained with Larkin up to the time of his death. The night before he tried to induce his landlady to accept his ragged clothing for the room rent of December, which he had not paid.

The Kavanaghs took immediate possession of the old man's books, bonds and papers. Mrs. Kavanagh states that she had no claim upon Larkin, although he had been a friend of her husband and she had known him for years.

Larkin had made two wills previous to the one now offered for probate. The contents of these wills and their present whereabouts are unknown. The latest will gives Mrs. Kavanagh everything except $500 for a coffin, $500 for masses and $10,000 for a tombstone.

It is not known whether or not Larkin had any relatives in Ireland or elsewhere who may come forward to contest the distribution of his property.—San Francisco Chronicle.

BANDITS ARE CAPTURED

EVANS AND MORRELL NOW SAFE BEHIND THE BARS.

They Visit Evans' House in Visalia, Cal., When They Are Discovered by a Sheriff's Posse and Are Forced to Surrender.

Visalia, Cal., Feb. 20.—Chris Evans, the train robber and outlaw who escaped from Fresno jail a month ago, is again in custody. It was discovered last night that he had come into Visalia from the mountains with his partner, Edward Morrell, who assisted him to escape from Fresno jail, and that the two men had hidden in Evans' house here. Officers surrounded the house early this morning and a few hours later practically all the inhabitants of the town were present. Evans recognized the fact that escape was impossible, and after brief negotiations with Sheriff Kay, of this county, he and Morrell surrendered.

The town of Visalia was thrown into a state of wild excitement by the news which was brought last night to the officials that the notorious bandits had come down from their mountain retreat and were at Evans' house. They arrived in town on foot, having left a horse and cart tied to a fence at the ranch of Elijah Perkins, near the stone corral. As soon as Sheriff Kay was informed of this a posse of determined men was quickly gathered and proceeded quietly to Evans' house. When Evans saw the house was surrounded he opened negotiations with the deputies to surrender, Evans' son carrying the correspondence. Evans agreed to come out if Kay woul disperse the crowd. The officers ordered all the spectators to leave, which they did, then Evans came out on the porch unarmed and Sheriff Kay and Undersheriff Hall went forward and shook hands with him. Evans and Morrell at the time of surrender had two Winchester rifles, two pistols and plenty ammunition. Marshal Gard says the man arrested with Evans is Ed Martin, known here as Morrell; that he formerly ran a merry-go-round with Fredericks, who is a circus man, having killed Sheriff Pascott of Nevada county. Morrell assisted in stealing arms from a saloon in this city and Fredericks took them to Folsom prison for George Sontag. The bandits are worn out. The officers have kept them traveling, and they had to find some place to rest, and they took that chance here. The citizens are very indignant at Evans, and if the prisoners are not removed soon they may be lynched.

Willis to Dole.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The president has transmitted to congress another chapter in the volume of Hawaiian correspondence. Mr. Willis' reply to the letter of President Dole is the only other important enclosure. In his letter to Dole Mr. Willis protested his peaceful intentions in Hawaii and explained in detail his reasons for acts which President Dole had complained. He explained the demonstration made by the sailors of the Philadelphia on the night of Nov. 15, by saying that he had heard rumors of threatened mob violence and foreign residents had asked for protection. He denied being in constant communication with Liliuokalani, having had but three interviews with her. Regarding the refusal to allow the Dole government to send dispatches by the Corwin, Mr. Willis says that permission was withheld from everybody alike. Mr. Willis closes with a statement that the gentlemen whom ex-Marshal Wilson had in his interview of Dec. 9 cited as supplementary advisers had nearly all of them promptly denied his statements.

Fired by the Governor.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 20.—The governor to-day removed Secretary of State Jochim, Treasurer Hambitzer and Land Commissioner Berry. The result of the alleged carelessness or wilful misconduct of these officers, who compose the board of state canvassers, was the increasing of the state officers' salaries as follows: state treasurer and superintendent of instruction, from $1,000 to $1,000; secretary of state and land commissioner, $800 to $2,000 each; lieutenant governor, from $3 per day during actual service to $1,200 per year; attorney general, $2,500 to $3,000 per year. The latter officer's salary was also raised from $1,000 to $2,500 in 1891, but the returns of the vote on that amendment were also doctered, supposedly, after they reached Lansing, apparently in order to show a result in his favor.

Sixty Went Down.

New Orleans, Feb. 20.—The rumor prevailing here that the steamer Millard, belonging to the Nicaragua Navigation company, having on board sixty men, had been lost off the Nicaragua coast a week ago, has been confirmed. Not a man on board the unfortunate vessel survived to tell the story. A reporter met an English gentleman last night in the St. Charles hotel, who is going to Nicaragua to-day, and who has interests in that section. He has received word from Greytown confirming the rumor of the lost vessel. To-day this authority said a cable was sent to London telling of the loss and the watery grave found by all on board.

Anarchs on Trial.

Vienna, Feb. 20. — The trial of the twelve anarchists arrested in September last, charged with conspiring the life of Emperor Francis Joseph, began to-day. The defense asked that part of the proceedings be made public, but the court ruled that the trial should take place in secret. The proceedings promise to be memorable in the history of anarchy, as the case is one of the most sensational and romantic on record. The trial of these twelve men, in view of the recent anarchist exploits in Europe, will be followed with the keenest interest here, and doubtless in the United States as well, for the prisoners are said to be closely connected with the anarchists of America.

Matthew Ashton Dead.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 20. — Matthew Ashton, the Rock county murderer of his aunt, has been ill with smallpox at the Dane county jail in this city, and died during the night. No new cases have developed.

A Boom Hotel for Sale.

Barboursville, Ky., Feb. 20.—The $1,000,000 hotel at Middlesboro, Ky., constructed there a few years since in the palmy days of the "magic city," is advertised by the receiver for sale on March 12.

St. Paul and the G. A. R.

Minneapolis, Feb. 17. — The Grand Army department commander, Sam R. Van Sant, accompanied by his wife, left last evening for the West, to be gone a month. Part of his time will be devoted to a particular mission he has determined on. Otherwise he had intended to spend the entire four weeks at the midwinter fair at San Francisco. This mission is to make a campaign en route and back, in the interest of St. Paul for the national encampment in 1895, in the four departments of Montana, Oregon, Washington and California. This effort he has decided on account of the earnest indorsement given the St. Paul move in the recent department encampment, and the determination of the commander is to leave no stone unturned to secure the prize for the Capital City.

Sold Diseased Pork.

West Union, Iowa, Feb. 17. — John Benda, a farmer living in the southern part of Howard county, is in jail, the result of selling poisoned meat. A few days ago several hogs died from some unknown cause. Benda dressed them, took the pork to Cresco and Ridgway, where he sold it to the local butchers. The dealers soon learned of the facts and Benda was arrested, and in default of payment of a fine was jailed. It is said this is not the only time this has been done.

Morton Hanged in Effigy.

Omaha, Feb. 17.—Secretary of Agriculture J. Sterling Morton was hanged in effigy at his home town, Nebraska City, last night. The perpetrators are not known.

A Social Sensation at Belle Plaine.

Belle Plaine, Iowa, Feb. 17.—H. C. Sanford, a business man of this village, is charged with assaulting, with intent to outrage, Mrs. J. Martin, and also administering a drug with the intention of committing the assault. Mr. Martin stabbed Sanford, who is recovering. Sanford says Mrs. Martin was drunk, and he was taking her home.

In the Hands of a Mob.

Ironwood, Mich., Feb. 19.—A serious riot occurred at Bessemer yesterday over the distribution of supplies sent to this section for the benefit of the starving miners. It was learned recently that many of the men who had been receiving help were possessed of a plentiful supply of provisions and considerable money, and, in justice to those who have been sending contributions to this section it was decided to refuse further help to such people. Notices to this effect were sent out during the week. Friday W. J. Haggerson, justice of the peace and poor commissioner at Bessemer, received several threatening letters warning him death if the decision of the poor commissioner should be enforced.

Yesterday morning a large gang of Italians and Poles assembled in front of the poor supply store and threatened to commit depredations unless contributions were continued. Three men entered the store and, brandishing knives and guns, helped themselves to a supply of flour and pork. Several officers stood by, but were so alarmed over the situation that they dared not interfere.

The mob then started for the residence of W. J. Haggerson, but he had removed his wife and children to a place of safety. He returned to his home with a Winchester and had been joined by about fifteen of his friends, who were thoroughly armed. They succeeded for awhile in subduing the disturbance, but an hour later the tumultuous gang became so strong that Haggerson and his friends were obliged to flee for the woods. Haggerson and his family and many of his friends drove through the deep snow to Ironwood.

They were forced to leave that place to protect their lives. A drunken mob of Italians and Polacks hold possession of the town and threaten death to all who have been instrumental in cutting off supplies.

A strong posse was organized in Ironwood last night for the purpose of proceeding to Bessemer to protect life and property. David F. Foley, ex-sheriff of this county, who became notorious through the United States in connection with the capture of Holzhay, the Black Bart of the Lake Superior country and a successful train robber, in that he held up half a dozen trains without any assistance, volunteered to go to Bessemer and quell the tumultuous gathering. Foley is a desperate man. He has been a cow boy in his time, and has roughed it in all of the tough mining camps of the West. He knows and fears no danger, and would willingly risk his own life for a friend.

Cattle—But one bunch offered, and yards cleaned up early at about steady prices with yesterday, at 10a25c lower than a week ago. There is a fair demand.

The Knights of Labor.

Philadelphia, Feb. 19.—If a bombshell had been exploded in the midst of their camp, local Knights of Labor could not have been more surprised than they were when John W. Hayes, general secretary-treasurer of the order, issued the following notice: "To the Order Wherever Found—Greetings: Brothers T. V. Powderly, past general master workman; A. W. Wright and John Devlin, of the late general executive board, have entered suit against the order of the Knights of Labor for balances of salary which they claim are due them. This notice is published to prevent any credence being given to unreliable statements which may be made in the public press. If by decree of court it is learned that the order is indebted in any way to these claimants, the order is, and will be, fully able to meet any just claims."

Pope Leo Says Mass.

Rome, Feb. 19.—The closing ceremony in connection with Pope Leo XIII.'s jubilee year took place yesterday and consisted of a mass celebrated by him in St. Peter's, followed by the "Te Deum." The details of this impressive ceremony were arranged by the executive committee of the jubilee fetes. Sixty thousand tickets were given out for this final celebration, and it is estimated that 50,000 people were present. The mass was celebrated at the papal altar. Leo was borne into the basilica in the sedia gestatoria at 9:40 o'clock. He was preceded by a cortege of cardinals and bishops. His appearance was followed by the enthusiastic cheering of the immense multitude.

After Arid Lands.

San Francisco, Feb. 19.—The trans-Mississippi convention passed a resolution memorializing congress to enact legislation donating to the various states and territories all arid lands within their boundaries susceptible to irrigation, prescribing such conditions as will secure the lands to actual settlers through purchase from the state. An ineffectual attempt was made to pledge congress in favor of the system of irrigation and control of lands by the general government. Adjourned sine die.

Statue of Napoleon Demolished.

Boulogne, Feb. 19.—The statue of Napoleon, which was erected here in 1854 by Englishmen, has been blown down and broken to pieces.

Mining Suit.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Attachment proceedings have been commenced here by the Davis Mining Company of Negaunee against the Weston Furnace Company of Manistique, Mich. The mining company claims that the furnace company is indebted to it in the sum of $11,484.

Bill Nye Ill.

New York, Feb. 19.—Bill Nye, reported dying, is lying ill at the Hotel Imperial, Niagara Falls, and his manager has canceled all his engagements for next week.

Charges Against Wanamaker.

New York, Feb. 17.—The names of John Wannamaker of Philadelphia and Mrs. Hart, wife of Dr. Ernest Hart, editor of the Medical Record of London, figure as the principal characters in an affidavit made yesterday before the United States immigration authorities. Four Irish immigrants, in their sworn testimony, make serious charges against both, and they may be prosecuted for a violation of the alien contract labor laws. The affidavits tell how they signed contracts to come here and work, and detail how they were sent to Mrs. Hart, manager of one of the Wannamaker departments. The immigration authorities will investigate thoroughly.

Grip Fatal Among the Sioux.

Chamberlain, S. D., Feb. 17.—Information from a reliable source at Pine Ridge agency is to the effect that quite a number of Indians have died at that agency from the grip, but that the reports of wholesale deaths from this cause are greatly exaggerated. The deaths this winter have exceeded those of other winters. The Indians at Pine Ridge are for the most part contented and happy.

Umatilla Reservation.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The senate committee on Indian affairs offered a favorable report on the bill providing for the sale of the unsold portion of the Umatilla reservation in Oregon.

The Terrors of Typhoid.

Rock Rapids, Iowa, Feb. 17.—Typhoid fever has been raging in Little Rock for a few days. John Tau lost his son Hoyt, aged eighteen years, about fifteen days ago, and last night his wife succumbed, while he, at last report, was not expected to live more than a few hours. This will leave only a girl of ten years out of the entire family. Hoyt had his life insured during the fall for $2,000, and the parents were surprised to receive the notice from the company that the money was ready on proof being filed.

THE MINNESOTA G. A. R.

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT AT MINNEAPOLIS.

Large Attendance of the Boys in Blue at the Flour City—Pulling the Strings for St. Paul for the Next National Encampment.

Minneapolis, Feb. 13.—Minneapolis is once more in the hands of the boys in blue. The state G. A. R. encampment began in Harmonia Hall to-day with a large attendance. The convention will last two days, and the most important matter to come up is the election of officers. John Day Smith, the present commander, will retire, and S. I. Van Sant of Winona and Adjt. Gen. P. H. Mullen are in the field for the position. The matter of pensions will probably come up in some form during the state encampment, but just what shape it will assume it is difficult to say at the present time. In all probability efforts will be made to get a resolution passed asking that all pension frauds be investigated very carefully in order not to work any hardship to old soldiers who are entitled to pension money.

Minneapolis, Feb. 14.—There was an increased attendance at the second day's sesion of the fourteenth annual encampment of the Minnesota G. A. R. Commander Smith announced the following committees: Officers' reports, Comrades W. P. Robinson of Minneapolis, L. M. Lange of Marshall, W. Jacoby of Mankato, W. G. Van Brook of Duluth, J. M. Bowler of Bird Island.

Resolutions, Comrades L. L. Wheelock of Owatonna, Ell Torrance of Minneapolis, Harrison White of Beaver Creek, G. S. Ives of St. Pter, L. Aldrich of Farmington.

A resolution expressing sympathy with Corporal Tanner, who has had to undergo another surgical operation, was adopted. It declared that the shorter he grows the more the G. A. R. loved him. A committee fro the W. R. C., consisting of Mrs. John Day Smith, Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Savage, appeared in the hall at this time, and a committee, consisting of Judge Ell Torrance, Gen. Baker and Col. John Richardson, was appointed to escort them to the front. Each of the ladies made addresses. Commander Smith made a brief reply.

The matter of attending the national encampment at Pittsburg was taken up, and a resolution adopted instructing the delegation to use their best efforts to secure the ensampment for 1895 for St. Paul. An adjournment was then taken for lunch.

The arrangements locally for the encampment have been confined for the most part to the details of the convention, but a grand camp fire has been arranged for. It will be held at the Lyceum theater.

The first thing taken up after dinner was the matter of sending delegates to the national convention at Pittsburg. It was decided that the delegates from each congressional district should meet and decide upon whom they want to represent them. Minnesota is entitled to seven delegates from districts and two at large, besides alternates.

The reading of the report of Assistant Adjt. Gen. J. K. Mertz occupied considerable time. The total membership at the time of the last encampment was 7,976, and the representation at the encampment was 415. The total gain during the year was 575. During the year the losses by death were 585, and net gain for the year 61. The total amount expended for charity during the year was reported to be $990.28.

The report of the department quartermaster was next read.

Apparently all the comrades of the G. A. R. now attending the department meeting have brought their "women folks" with them, and they are not behind their husbands, brothers and fathers in their patriotism and devotion to the G. A. R., for they are all members of the Women's Relief Corps or the Ladies of the G. A. R., both of which organizations are now in session in this city.

The sessions of the W. R. C. are being held in Century hall, and 275 delegates assembled there yesterday morning, besides a large number of visitors, both within and without the society, for the meeting was an interesting one. The convention was called to order by the president, Mrs. Leavens of Faribault. After the preliminary business, the president made her report and annual address. The outlook for the order is very encouraging and the growth is steady and healthy. The membership is 2,971 in 95 corps. The treasurer reported the expenditure of $2,828.89 in relief work, and 303 old soldiers have been aided during the year.

Minneapolis, Feb. 15. — Capt. S. R. Van Sant of Winona will be the commander of the Minnesota G. A. R. for the coming year. Two candidates had been prominently mentioned for the position of Commander, Capt. Van Sant and Gen. J. H. Mullen, and interest among the friends of each was at white heat. It was expected that the fight would be lively and that the victory would be close. Contrary to all expectations, Gen. Mullen finally concluded not to permit his name to be used. "Little Jack," as the comrades love to call him, gave a number of reasons for withdrawing it, and his speech was received with applause. Alphonse Barto then made a eulogistic address, nominating Capt. Van Sant, and the election was made unanimous by a rising vote.

Capt. A. H. Reed of Glencoe was elected to the position of senior vice commander. While the ballots were being counted for the latter office a committee consisting of Past Department Commanders Charles D. Parker and L. M. Lange was detailed to escort Gen. Mullen to the stand. The appearance of Gen. "Jack" on the platform precipitated a demonstration in his favor and three ringing cheers and a tiger greeted him. He balanced himself on his crutches, and, advancing to the front of the stage, made a characteristic speech in which he thanked those present for the kind manner in which they had acted toward him. He also congratulated Commander-in-Chief Van Sant upon his election.

Department Commander Van Sant said that the department headquarters would remain in this city. He prefers Minneapolis on account of the large number of Grand Army posts in the city and the following the order has here.

In regard to the office of adjutant general it is stated that he will reappoint J. K. Mertz, the present incumbent, and that there will be scarcely any change in the administration of affairs following the change in commanding officer.

For junior vice commander, Charles W. McKay of Fergus Falls was selected. A resolution was adopted instructing the assistant adjutant general to prepare a roll of the dead of the year, giving name, age at death and past record, also branch of service during the war, with regiment company and rank. This roll is to be designated "The Honored Dead," and the resolution was introduced by Comrade J. G. Graham, of Post 19, Mankato. It was adopted by a unanimous rising vote.

The delegates to the national encampment at Pittsburg were selected, as follows:

At Large—Delegate, Robert Stratton, Minneapolis; alternate, J. H. Davidson, St Paul.

First District — Delegate, George B. Arnold, Kasson; alternate, A. . Christie, Austin.

Second District — Delegate, J. H. Baker, Mankato; alternate, C. C. Goodnow, Pipestone.

Third District—Delegate, James Hunter, Faribault; alternate, D. S. Hall, Stewart.

Fourth District—Delegate, John Espy, St. Paul; alternate, Samuel Bloomer, Stillwater.

Fifth District—Delegate, L. W. Collins, St. Cloud; alternate, N. R. Gerhart, Duluth.

Seventh District — Delegate, M. S. Counse, Detroit; alternate, A. B. Ackerman, Ada.

The question of pledging the encampment to work for any particular city for the '95 encampment came up and created some discussion. It was decided to pledge the support of the entire state to St. Paul, and this decision was received with applause by the St. Paul delegation. It was decided to let the per capita tax remain at 40 cents per annum.

The Minnesota Association of Ex-Prisoners of War held a session in the rooms of the Business union, in the Lumber exchange. There were about fifty members present and eight new ones were added. The by-laws were amended to permit the holding of four stated meetings each year and two special meetings, one at the time of the G. A. R. encampment and the other on any date that it was deemed necessary. Post commanders will be requested to send to the officers of the association a list of all ex-prisoners of war under their respective jurisdictions.

The culminating event of the G. A. R. encampment was the camp fire at the Lyceum theater last evening. This was the formal ceremony that will close the encampment, and great preparations had been made. The theater was decorated by a committee of ladies, and the stage draped in the colors and there were displays of potted plants and flowers in the boxes and on the stage. Rousing speeches were made by well known men.

No Doubt Dead.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 15.—The rescuers at work in the Gaylord mine did not make much headway yesterday. At 3 o'clock there was another cave-in of the roof which wrecked the inside workings of the mine badly. The workers were compelled to retreat to the foot of the shaft. Great fissures have now appeared on the earth's surface over the mine, and a number of houses are in danger of toppling over. It is estimated that the area affected by the cave-in covers twenty-two acres. The crowds about the mine to-day were less demonstrative but no less eager and earnest for the faintest news that may come up establishing the fate of those below. Many prominent mine inspectors and engineers visited the scene, and it was the general opinion of those best able to understand the condition of things that all of the men have perished either by being crushed to death or by suffocation.

On the Tariff.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Senators Vest, Jones (Ark.), Gorman, Ransom and Cockrell were in conference to-day in the room of the senate committee on appropriations. At times they called in other Democratic senators for consultation. The senators who took part in the conference were exceedingly uncommunicative concerning the proceedings, but it is known that they had under consideration the Democratic policy with reference to the tariff bill, and that the sugar schedule engaged the greatest share of their attention. Their efforts were in the direction of harmonizing the Democratic party; and while no decision was reached, it is believed by those well informed that the conference is likely to result in the placing of a duty of a cent a pound on sugar.

Prey of Lions.

San Francisco, Feb. 15.—Carlo Thieman, attendant at Col. Daniel Boone's wild animal show at the midwinter fair, was attacked by three lions last night and so horribly mangled that he may die. The large crowd of spectators became panic-stricken and started for the doors. Women shrieked and fainted, but the crowd was finally induced to remain seated by attendants who had retained their presence of mind. Finally lanterns were brought, and there in the cage lay Thieman, with three lions clawing and munching his prostrate form. Col. Boone seized an iron bar and entered the cage. With shouts and blows he drove the beasts from their prey and dragged the prostrate and unfortunate man from the cage.

Mineral Lands.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The house committee on public lands voted to favorably report the bill of Representative Hartman of Montana for determining the title to mineral lands in Montana and Idaho within the limits of the land grants of the Northern Pacific railway. Under this bill commissioners to be appointed by the president are to examine and classify as soon as possible all the lands within these grants with regard to their mineral character. They are to reject all claims which are made or may be made hereafter or behalf of the Northern Pacific on mineral lands, exclusive of coal and iron property. The action of the commissioners is to be final.

Clemency for All but One.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The president has acted on applications for pardon in the following cases: A. B. Johnson, Missouri, making false affidavit for pension claim, denied; James F. Newcomb, Texas, incest, granted; Rufus Black, Connecticut, postoffice burglary, sentence commuted to two years' imprisonment, granted; John B. Smith, Arizona, adultery, granted; F. H. Van Hoesen, Ohio, perjury, granted.

Attached Hill's Property.

Miller, S. D., Feb. 15.—Treasurer Rosenkrans, in behalf of the county, has taken out a writ of attachment against Receiver Hill's bank property, though no levy has been made yet. The assignee has not yet given bonds, and a few private depositors are becoming uneasy.

Working on the Tariff.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The senate subcommittee on tariff is sitting almost constantly now, not only through the day, but well into the night, and is holding frequent conferences with the full Democratic membership of the committee. The subcommittee has almost completed its work on the minor details of the bill, but the more important questions which have puzzled them from the beginning, unless it may be the income tax, are still giving them worry, and many of them do not appear to be any nearer settled now than they were when the bill first reached the senate. There no longer appears a disposition to change the income tax in any way, and it may be accepted that it will be returned. Indications still point to an increase of the whisky tax to $1.20 per gallon and an extension of the bonded period, though there is some disagreement in the committee.

One Dead, the Other Dying.

Brainbridge, Ga., Feb. 17.—From Colquitt county comes news of a double tragedy. Frank Byrd, an employe of a Mr. Brice, while burning over a tract of land, was assaulted by John Cooper, who also claimed the land. Cooper drew a pistol and Byrd struck him with a club. As he fell Cooper shot Byrd Cooper is dead and Byrd dying.

Veteran Congressman Dead.

Lansaster, Pa., Feb. 17.—Ex-Congressman A. Kerr Smith died to-day from a complication of diseases, aged seventy-nine years. He served in the Forty-third, Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth congresses.

Peers Know When to Hedge.

London, Feb. 17.—The Telegraph in a leading article says: It is becoming dreadfully probable that the lords will show such an amount of sweet reasonableness on parishes as to make it extremely difficult for the ministers to pick a quarrel with them.

A Lawyer in Limbo.

Ashland, Wis., Feb. 17—Sheriff O'Brien arrested John F. Dufur on the charge of perjury. Dufur is a member of the law firm of Sanborn, Dufur & Anderson. The firm has recently commenced forty different suits against the city for various citizens in order to prevent the city treasurer from collecting certain special paving and sewer taxes assessed against property. Mayor O'Keefe swore out the warrant for Dufur's arrest. Dufur signed complaints for one of his clients who is in Texas. The mayor alleges in the warrant that the complaint, which is the same in all cases, contains a number of allegations that are false. City officials claim that they will arrest several of the other plaintiffs on the same charge. The cases have aroused much interest, and as the arrest of Dufur was wholly unexpected, the action of the city officials couses considerable excitement. Dufur claims his arrest is made simply to frighten his clients, and expresses confidence that he will be acquitted.

Starting Up at Reduced Wages.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Feb. 17.—The Winnebago Furniture company will start up their plant, after being nearly four months idle, on Monday. Employment will be given to 250 hands. The wage scale will be cut from 10 to 20 per cent.

"Their Pictures Took."

St. Croix Falls, Wis., Feb. 17.—Quite a sensation was created here by the arrest of F. W. Purcell and Frank Harris, photographers. They had been in this village about ten days, coming here from Clear Lake, Wis., where they had been located for a short time in the same business. Harris was charged with "jumping" a board bill, and both he and Purcell were escorted to Clear Lake by Under Sheriff Jones. Their gallery, which is a portable one, is locked up in consequence, and many who have given their orders for work, paying part in advance, are anxious.

THE WORK OF CONGRESS

RESUME OF PROSEEDINGS OF THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

Condensed Record of the Important Transactions of Our National Lawmakers—The Work Done in Both Branches.

Washington, Feb. 15.—All efforts to agree upon a time for closing the debate upon the Bland bill have so far failed, and debate is still proceeding without limit. Mr. Bland will probably permit this to go on until to-morrow night, and there are quite a number of gentlemen who insist upon their right to be heard. The opponents of the measure have decided that they will insist upon a quorum of the advocates of the measure being present at every stage of the parliamentary procedure hereafter, so that a motion to close debate will require a quorum of those who are in favor of it. There are many members of the house who are absent at this time and it will probably require two days at least to secure the attendance necessary to bring the bill to a vote. To-morrow it is Mr. Bland's intention to make a motion to close debate, and as this motion will probably develop the lack of a quorum, the opponents of the bill refusing to vote, he will then offer a resolution to bring in absentees. A quorum favoring the bill being here, if necessary, a special order will be brought in to bring the measure to a final vote. Mr. Raynor and some of the other Democrats who are leading the opposition, still insist that the bill can be beaten, but Mr. Tracy, who is floor leader of the opposition on the Republican side, frankly confessed that he believes the bill will pass when it reaches a vote. As to whether it will be vetoed, however, he gives no opinion. The debate was without startling incident of any kind.

The entire time of the senate was consumed in the discussion of the house bill compelling the Rock Island Railroad company to stop its trains at the new towns of Enid and Round Pond, in the Indian Territory. The measure is especially championed by Senator Berry of Arkansas, and is proving a subject of great attention, as some Democratic senators see in the proposed exercise of congressional power, usurpation of rights. No action was reached on the bill, but a vote will probably be taken to-morrow.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The vice president of the United States came to the rescue of the Oklahoma town-site bill today and by his vote broke the tie and passed the bill compelling the Rock Island Railroad company to stop its trains at the new towns of Enid and Round Pond. This measure has been under discussion in the senate nearly a week and has been one of the most hotly contested bills of the session. Senator Blackburn moved to lay the bill on the table. The roll call resulted: Yeas 25, nays 31, and the motion to table the bill was defeated. Senator Peffer then presented an amendment to provide that in any election for the location of county seats "all citizens of the United States," irrespective of sex, shall be entitled to vote. It was opposed by Senator Blackburn, but Senator Peffer made a strong speech in support of his amendment. "I intend," said he in conclusion, "to avail myself of every opportunity to give to woman—God bless her—every advantage, every right and every privilege that I have got." (Applause). The amendment was defeated, the vote being yeas 15, nays 4. Those voting for woman's suffrage were Senators Allison, Carey, Davis, Dolph, Frye, Gallinger, Hansbrough, Kyle, Manderson, Mitchell of Oregon, Peffer, Perkins, Stewart, Teller and Wilson. The bill was then reported as amended and after the third reading, the roll was called. The result was a tie. "The vote on this bill," said Vice President Stevenson, "is yeas 27, nays 27, a tie. The chair votes yea." This vote of the vice president saved the bill and it was declared to be passed. The senate then adjourned and the Peckham nomination goes over until to-morrow.

The debate on the Bland seigniorage bill in the house was characterized by several strong Democratic speeches against the measure. Mr. Bland has given up hope of reaching an agreement to close debate by unanimous consent and to-morrow he will move to close debate. As the opponents of the bill will decline to vote it will require a quorum of the advocates of the measure to carry this motion. Mr. Bland does not expect to secure a quorum to-morrow, but as soon as this lack of a quorum is demonstrated, steps will be taken to compel the attendance of absentees and Mr. Bland is confident that on Monday a quorum will be present to pass the bill.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The senate adjourned after spending the better part of two days considering the nomination of W. H. Peckham of New York to be associate justice of the supreme court. The nomination was rejected by a vote of 32 to 41. The vote in detail was as follows:

Ayes—Bate, Blackburn, Brice, Butler, Caffery, Dixon, Faulkner, George, Gray, Hale, Harris, Hunton, Kyle, Lindsay, McPherson, Martin, Mills, Mitchell (Or.), Mitchell (Wis.), Palmer, Pasco, Pettigrew, Platt, Proctor, Ransom, Roach, Squire, Stockbridge, Turpie, Vilas, Voorhees, White (La.)—32.

Nays — Aldrich, Allen, Allison, Berry, Call, Cameron, Carey, Chandler, Cockrell, Coke, Cullom, Daniel, Davis, Dolph, Frye, Gallinger, Gibson, Gorman, Hansbrough, Hawley, Higgins, Hill, Hoar, Irby, Jones (Ark.), Lodge, McLaurin, Manderson, Morrill, Murphy, Peffer, Perkins, Power, Pugh, Shoup, Stewart, Teller, Vest, Washburn, White (Cal.), Wilson—41.

Paired for Peckham—Camden, Gordon, McMillin, Martin, Morgan—5.

Paired Against Peckham — Dubois, Jones (Nev.), Quay, Vance, Wolcott—5.

Absent Without Pairs—Colquitt and Sherman.

Senator Colquitt released Senator Wilson, who voted against confirmation, and Senator Sherman released Senator Brice, who voted for confirmation.

Recapitulation—For confirmation, Democrats, 23; Republicans, 8; Populists, 1—32. Against confirmation, Democrats, 15; Republicans, 23; Populists, 3—41. Paired for confirmation, Democrats, 4; Republicans, 1—5. Paired against confirmation, Democrats, 1; Republicans, 4—5. Absent and unpaired, Democrats, 1; Republicans, 1—2.

Mr. Bland began his coercive tactics to compel a vote on the silver seigniorage bill. The bulk of the Republicans and the Democratic opponents of the measure inaugurated a filibuster with the intention of forcing him to produce a quorum of the advocates of the bill to pass it, and the entire day was consumed in roll calls. The highest number of votes Mr. Bland was able to poll was 163 in favor of his demand for the previous question on the motion to close debate. Of these 145 were Democrats, 9 Populists and 9 Republicans. Mr. Page (R. I.) and Mr. Ryan (N. Y.) refused to join the filibuster, but voted against the motion. The Republicans who voted with Mr. Bland are as follows: Bowers (Cal.), Broderick, Doolittle, Funston, Marshal, Hermann, Post and Sweet. Mr. Bland abandoned any further attempt to secure a quorum, and the house passed a resolution instructing the sergeant-at-arms to telegraph for absentees.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The Democratic members of the senate committe on finance have decided that they will not be able to report the tariff bill to the full committee on Tuesday next, as they had announced they would be, and one of the members of the subcommitte which has had the bill under consideration said to-day that he would not attempt to say when the bill could be reported. "I shall be very well satisfied," he said, "if the bill is in shape to be reported by the beginning of next week." The reason for the postponement is discovered in the fact that the work of satisfying Democratic senators has been found a very difficult one, and the construction of a bill that is sure to be accepted by them, the undertaking requiring many changes of purpose and alterations oft he figures as first made. When the subcommittee began their work they had before them the draft of a bill upon which it was believed it would be an easy matter to secure agreement, but this bill has been changed in some respects several times and has become so worn from handling and erasures that it has become necessary to destroy the original copy and replace it with a new one. There is still much demand for concessions on the part of senators on minor items, and many of the most important features in the bill are unacted upon. Sugar is included in this list and it looks as if its fate would be about the last question to be determined by the subcommittee.

The fight over the silver seigniorage bill was resumed in the house to-day, and Mr. Bland is confident that there will be a quorum on hand to order the previous question to-morrow. Once the necessary quorum is obtained, and that is only a question of time, as the opponents of the measure have practically abandoned hope of defeating the bill, it will be brought to a vote if need be by a special order from the committee on rules, the speaker having promised a special rule if the emergency demands it.

Minor matters occupied the attention of the senate to-day. Senators Daniel, Caffery and White of California have notice of speeches on the Hawaiian resolution for this week, and it is probable that other senators will speak upon the subject before next Saturday.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The president to-day sent to the senate the nomination of Senator Edward D. White of Louisiana to be an associate justice of the United States supreme court, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Blatchford. The senate had hardly time to recover from the surprise which the nomination had caused when the confirmation was announced. While months had been spent in consideration of the nominations of Messrs. Hornblower and Peckham, and much time devoted to them by the senate committee on judiciary, the name of Mr. White was not referred to the committee at all, and in less than an hour after the nomination had been received the senate had placed its seal of approval upon the selection and robbed itself of an esteemed member and had given the supreme court the one man necessary to make a full bench. Edward Douglas White will take his seat on the supreme bench as the youngest of the justices, and with the exception of Justices Field and Harlan, he will have entered at an earlier period in life than any of the other justices, and will have the exceptionally long term of twenty-one years to serve before retirement. He was born in the parish of La Fourche, La., and was forty-eight years of age last November. He was educated at Mount St. Mary's, near Emmetsburg, Md., at the Jesuit college in New Orleans, and finally at Georgetown college, District of Columbia. He entered the Confederate army, and after the war was admitted to the bar by the Louisiana supreme court, and practiced his profession during the troubled years which followed the reconstruction period. In 1874 he began his political experience as a state senator, lapsing into the law again he became associate justice of the supreme court of Louisiana in 1878, but again turning to political pursuits, he was elected to the United States senate to succeed Senator Eustis, at present minister to France, taking his seat March 4, 1891. By his appointment to-day he will leave a vacancy of full two years in his senatorial term. The new justice is a bachelor at present, but there is a well defined rumor afloat that before the year expires he will espouse a well known society woman who has been a brilliant figure in Washington.

The session of the senate was unusually devoid of interest. Senator Hale presented a resolution to investigate certain printing contracts, but the matter did not even create a discussion in the senate, although the resolution was adopted. Senator Daniel opened his argument in support of the administration in the Hawaiian matter, and will conclude to-morrow.

The filibuster over the silver bill in the house continued to-day, and an adjournment was had to give the Democrats an opportunity to consider the situation in caucus. An order arresting absentees was passed.

The success of the filibuster against the Bland silver seigniorage bill, which has blocked proceedings in the house for five days, forced the Democratic advocates of the measure to invoke the decree of a caucus. There were present 130 Democrats, but not a Democratic member of the New York delegation, all of whom have joined the obstructive movement, was present, nor in fact any of the others who joined hands with them. A resolution was unanimously adopted that all Democrats record their votes either for or against the measure. This will bring the bill to a vote to-morrow in all probability.

A Tailor Swindle.

West Union, Iowa, Feb. 20.—Swindlers have been roping in the farmers in the eastern part of Mitchell county on a cloth racket. They secured cash or notes, leaving a roll of cloth, securely wrapped, supposed to be like sample shown. A tailor was to follow in a few days and make the cloth into suits for only $3. When the bundle was opened it was found to contain the cheapest kind of shoddy goods and the tailor failed to show up.

Struck the Doctor.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Feb. 16.—There was a free-for-all fight in the Bandbox saloon last night over the A. P. A. James Broderick, a well known sport, invited all present to drink with him, but excluded all who were friendly to the A. P. A. A doctor from Sioux City was present and innocently remarked that this was a peculiar request. Broderick said, "I believe you are an A. P. A." and with that struck the doctor. A free-for-all fight resulted, during which Officer Mullen went into the saloon. Broderick struck Mullen, who fell. Broderick with a billy. McCarrier, another sport, who came to Broderick's rescue, was also struck with the billy. No arrests have been made and none will be.

First Navigator of the Soo Dead.

Bayfield, Wis., Feb. 16.—Capt. J. D. Angus, a pioneer of the Lake Superior region, died at La Pointe, on Madeline island, yesterday. He was 81 years of age, and was prominently identified with the early history of the development of this section. He sailed the first vessel that was brought over the falls of the "Soo" early in the 40's, and continued active marine life for many years. He has been incapacitated for work for several years. He is almost the last of the early settlers at the west end of Lake Superior.

M'Kane Is Guilty.

Brooklyn, Feb. 16.—The jury in the McKane trial filed into the court room this morning, and five minutes later the prisoner appeared in charge of a deputy sheriff. He was surrounded by his counsel and his faithful friends from Gravesend. Mr. Shephard and the counsel for the prosecution sat around their table. Clerk Byrne asked the foreman of the jury if they had agreed upon a verdict. "We have," was the answer. "What is it?" "Guilty." The prisoner sat quiet, but his friends were very much affected. The verdict may mean an imprisonment in state's prison for two years, or ten, at the discretion of the court. He was convicted on the charge of conspiracy to falsify election returns.

Treason Among Peixoto's Subordinates.

Buenos Ayres, Feb. 16.—Advices from Pernambuco say Jose Mariano, the leader of the autonomists, who was recently arrested, has escaped to Parahyba, where he is conducting an outbreak. A dispatch from Rio Janeiro says: President Peixoto, suspecting that Barbosa de Lima, the governor of Pernambuco, is plotting to make the Northern states a separate republic, with himself as president, has ordered Gen. Castro Leite to arrest the governor at the first sign of disloyalty.

British Africa Were Merciless.

London, Feb. 16.—The Chronicle prints an interview which was obtained by a representative of the Pretoria Press with Capt. Lloyd Francis who was engaged that Capt. Francis admitted that wounded Matables, many of them naked and helpless, were shot by the forces of the British South Africa company, their orders being to take no prisoners, but to shoot every native they came across.

Selous Begins a Libel Action.

London, Feb. 16.—F. G. Selous, the South African hunter who obtained prominence during the Matable campaign, has commenced an action for libel against Henry Labouchere, M. P., charging misrepresentation in the columns of Truth regarding certain statements made in connection with the Matable war and the part which Selous took in it.

Enforced Vaccination.

Black River Falls, Feb. 16.—The school board to-day ordered the city schools closed for two weeks to give a chance for the pupils to be vaccinated. Upon the reopening of school no pupils will be admitted without a certificate of successful vaccination. Many of the parents declare they will not submit to the order.

Employes Will Fight.

Milwaukee, Feb. 16.—In the United States court late this afternoon, a petition for a modification of Judge Jenkins' famous strike order, was filed by the representatives of the different railroad organizations.

THE BRAINERD DISPATCH.

VOLUME 13, NUMBER 14. BRAINERD, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1894. INGERSOLL & WIELAND, PUBLISHERS.

SHALL WOMAN SMOKE?

Shall woman smoke? Why should she not, if she is minded to?
Why shouldn't woman do the things that lordly man may do?
He makes her stand on tramway cars, a-clinging to a strap, E'en though she step upon his feet or tumble in his lap.
She's entered into politics; she practices at law;
She's taken up the surgeon's work with lancet and with saw.
Some play at football, so we're told, and there are also some Who on their safety bicycles like Boreas do hum.
Man makes her do a thousand things that once were his to do.
If she assumes his duties, pray, why not his pleasures too?
She wears his collars, and her clothes are cut quite as his are.
If she be mannish in her dress, why not have her cigar?
And, furthermore, man has encroached on woman's sphere of late.
He's taken on dressmaking at a truly wondrous rate,
And some men's clubs for gossip beat the Dorcas out of sight.
To thus encroach and yield no jot most surely is not right.
Of course 'twill not be pleasant just at first to see Minette,
Like any fellow, puffing at a horrid cigarette,
Nor will the sight be of a strongly pleasurable type
When first we see our daughters lighting up their evening pipe.
But men get used to all things, be it soon or be it late,
And this, like other problems, must fulfill its settled fate.
'Tis very safe to prophesy the time is not so far
When women all will smoke who live beyond their first cigar.

—London Tit-Bits.

THE BRIDAL OF THE LADY AIDEEN.

"Oh, Lady Aideen, will you wed with me, wed with me in the early morning,
A silken gown for your body's wear, a golden crown for your hair's adorning?
(One airting magpie on the quicken tree flies from his perching 'twixt you and me.)
The proudest colt that my land has fed
For you shall chafe first harnessed,
And for your bidding six maidens be."
(Oh, bird of sorrow, between hope and me!)

"Oh, Earl Desmond, I am loath to speak, loath to speak for your true heart's sorrow.
I'll be a bride at no man's altar, though I be a wedded bride tomorrow.
(Death's hand closes on the digging spade.
Rest forever 'neath the yew tree's shade.)
Six slow steeds my body bear;
To fret or prance they will not care,
And no handmaiden with me would dwell."
(Hark, the tolling of the passing bell.)

"Oh, Lady Aideen, will you name for me, name for me who won my refusing?
Who hath the singing and all the sun on earth forever, and I the losing?
(Oh, the plow horses going off from me!
Sorrow and tears will my harvest be.)
My arms were strong for your woman's fear,
My heart were weak for your loving, dear.
What can he give whom you will not name?"
(Clings a winding sheet by the candle's flame.)

"Oh, Earl Desmond, be you brave for sorrow, brave for sorrow which is no man's shielding;
Love has wept till his eyes grew blind, and victory's not in a weapon's yielding.
(Six black horses awaiting me; the ring of the spade has ceased to be.)
My lord is named with a bated breath,
Whom hope calls Life and despair names
Death.
And oh, his love no world can kill!"
(The banshee waits on the windowsill.)

—From Verses by Dora Sigerson.

Morality of the Queensberry Rules.

There is a higher justification of boxing than the mere consideration of its utility. I hold that a thorough course of training with the gloves is in itself a moral education. Of all forms of physical exercise this is the one best calculated to promote muscle and morality at the same time.

It sharpens up, to a degree that no other exercise can, all those virile qualities which are at the foundation of all the vir[illegible]. Never forget that virility and vi[illegible] go hand in hand. Says John B[illegible] O'Reilly, "There is character as well as strength in muscle."

To men who have studied boxing at the ringside and who have personally endured the somewhat rigorous discipline of "getting into condition" for a friendly but earnest sparring contest—there are, fortunately, a large and increasing number of such men in all our American cities, and that is where they are most needed—it will not seem an exaggeration to say that the reading of no books in the English language can possibly teach certain primary moral lessons so speedily and so impressively as the two or three months of severe training required to fit a man for that experience.

The rules that govern the boxing ring are in themselves a tolerably complete moral code. The Marquis of Queensberry, properly understood, is entitled to a place among the great precept makers of mankind—to rank with Lycurgus, Plato, Socrates and Solomon and the other men whose minds served as mints for the coinage of maxims and proverbs that have passed into the common currency of wisdom and goodness.—Donahoe's Magazine.

Stopped a Leak With Sawdust.

To stop the leakage of a boat by the use of sawdust appears at the first suggestion ridiculous. It is a common method, however, employed by backwoodsmen of the Adirondack region.

One day a party having considerable baggage discovered upon loading it into a scow at the end of one of the regular "carries" that the boat leaked badly. To delay for repairs would occasion considerable annoyance, and without repairs to proceed seemed impossible.

At this juncture one of the guides said: "I think I can fix it. Just unload the boat again." This was done, and then the guide brought from a sawmill near the spot a quantity of sawdust. This he sprinkled thickly upon the water on either side of the boat.

"Now," continued he, "load up again." This was done, and when the weight again sank the boat the influx of water through the sides and bottom sucked in the sawdust, which finally accumulated in the crevices, swelled under the action of the water and actually stopped the leakage.—New York Herald.

The reins may guide the horse, the bit may inspire him by its careful manipulation, and the whip may urge him forward to greater ambition, but the human voice is far more potent than all these agencies. Its assuring tones will more quickly dispel his fright, its sharp, clear, electric commands will more thoroughly arouse his ambition, and its gentle, kindly praises will more completely encourage the intelligent road horse than the united force of the bit and reins and the lash. No animal in domestic use more readily responds to the power of kindness than the road horse.—Ploughman.

Took Him Up.

"There was a man came in here the other day," thoughtfully remarked the elevator man as he slammed the door to in the face of the man who was in a hurry, "who wanted to bet $500 to $50 on the big game—and I took him up."—Kansas City Times.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Crow Wing. } ss

I, Louis Tache, auditor of the county of Crow Wing and State of Minnesota, do solemnly swear that the foregoing is a true and correct list of delinquent taxes upon real estate within the County of Crow Wing for the year 1892, which became delinquent on the first day of June 1893, and remained delinquent on the 20th day of January, 1894.

LOUIS TACHE,
Co. Auditor, Crow Wing County, Minn.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 20th day of January, A. D. 1894.

[SEAL] S. F. ALDERMAN,
Clerk District Court, Crow Wing County, Minn.

Delinquent Tax List,

—OF—

Cass County.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, Counties of Crow Wing and Cass. } ss

District Court, Fifteenth Judicial District.

The State of Minnesota to all persons, companies or corporations, who have or claim any estate, right, title or interest in, claim to or lien upon any of the several pieces or parcels of land in the list hereto attached described.

The list of taxes and penalties on real property for the county of Cass remaining delinquent on the first Monday of January 1894, has been filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the County of Crow Wing to which Cass County is attached for judicial purposes, of which that hereto attached is a copy. Therefore you and each of you, are required to file in the office of said clerk, on or before the 20th day of March, 1894, your answer in writing, setting forth any objection or defense you may have to the taxes or any part thereof, upon any piece or parcel of land described in said list, in, to or on which you have or claim any estate, right, title, interest, claim or lien, and in default thereof, judgment will be entered against such piece or parcel of land, for the taxes on said list appearing against it, and for all penalties, interest and costs.

[SEAL] S. F. ALDERMAN,
Clerk of the District Court, Crow Wing and Cass Counties, Minnesota.

A List of delinquent taxes upon Real Estate, within the County of Cass, State of Minnesota, for the year A. D. 1892, remaining delinquent and unpaid on the first Monday in January, 1894, and the penalties accrued thereon.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Crow Wing. } ss

I, Louis Tache, Auditor of the Counties of Crow Wing and Cass, and State of Minnesota, do solemnly swear that the foregoing is a true and correct list of delinquent taxes upon real estate within the County of Cass for the year 1892, which became delinquent on the first day of June 1893, and remained delinquent on the 20th day of January, 1894.

LOUIS TACHE,
Auditor of Crow Wing and Cass Counties.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 20th day of January A. D. 1894.

[SEAL] S. F. ALDERMAN,
Clerk of the District Court, Crow Wing County, Minn.

THE BRAINERD DISPATCH.

VOLUME 13, NUMBER 14. | BRAINERD, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1894. | INGERSOLL & WIELAND, PUBLISHERS.

SHALL WOMAN SMOKE?

Shall woman smoke? Why should she not, if she is minded to?
Why shouldn't woman do the things that lordly man may do?
She makes her stand on tramway cars, a-clinging to a strap,
E'en though she step upon his feet or tumble in his lap.
She's entered into politics; she practices at law;
She's taken up the surgeon's work with lancet and with saw.
Some play at football, so we're told, and there are also some Who on their safety bicycles like Boreas do hum.
Man makes her do a thousand things that once were his to do.
If she assumes his duties, pray, why not his pleasures too?
She wears his collars, and her clothes are cut quite as his are.
If she be mannish in her dress, why not have her cigar?
And, furthermore, man has encroached on woman's sphere of late.
He's taken on dressmaking at a truly wondrous rate,
And some men's clubs for gossip beat the Dorcas out of sight.
To thus encroach and yield no jot most surely is not right.
Of course 'twill not be pleasant just at first to see Minette,
Like any fellow, puffing at a horrid cigarette,
Nor will the sight be of a strongly pleasurable type
When first we see our daughters lighting up their evening pipe.
But men get used to all things, be it soon or be it late,
And this, like other problems, must fulfill its settled fate.
'Tis very safe to prophesy the time is not so far
When women all will smoke who live beyond their first cigar.
—London Tit-Bits.

THE BRIDAL OF THE LADY AIDEEN.

"Oh, Lady Aideen, will you wed with me, wed with me in the early morning,
A silken gown for your body's wear, a golden crown for your hair's adorning?
(One flirting magpie on the quicken tree flies from his perching 'twixt you and me.)
The proudest colt that my land has fed
For you shall chafe first harnessed,
And for your bidding six maidens be."
(Oh, bird of sorrow, between hope and me!)

"Oh, Earl Desmond, I am loath to speak, loath to speak for your true heart's sorrow.
I'll be a bride at no man's altar, though I be a wedded bride tomorrow.
(Death's hand closes on the digging spade. Rest forever 'neath the yew tree's shade.)
Six slow steeds my body bear;
To fret or prance they will not care,
And no handmaiden with me would dwell."
(Hark, the tolling of the passing bell.)

"Oh, Lady Aideen, will you name for me, name for me who won my refusing?
Who hath the singing and all the sun on earth forever, and I the losing?
(Oh, the plow horses going off from me!
Sorrow and tears will my harvest be.)
My arms were strong for your woman's fear,
My heart were weak for your loving, dear.
What can he give whom you will not name?"
(Clings a winding sheet by the candle's flame.)

"Oh, Earl Desmond, be you brave for sorrow, brave for sorrow which is no man's shielding;
Love has wept till his eyes grew blind, and victory's not in a weapon's yielding.
(Six black horses awaiting me; the ring of the spade has ceased to be.)
My lord is named with a bated breath,
Whom hope calls Life and despair names Death.
And oh, his love no world can kill!"
(The banshee waits on the windowsill.)
—From Verses by Dora Sigerson.

Morality of the Queensberry Rules.

There is a higher justification of boxing than the mere consideration of its utility. I hold that a thorough course of training with the gloves is in itself a moral education. Of all forms of physical exercise this is the one best calculated to promote muscle and morality at the same time.

It sharpens up, to a degree that no other exercise can, all those virile qualities which are at the foundation of all the vir[illegible]. Never forget that virility and vir[illegible] go hand in hand. Says John Boyle O'Reilly, "There is character as well as strength in muscle."

To men who have studied boxing at the ringside and who have personally endured the somewhat rigorous discipline of "getting into condition" for a friendly but earnest sparring contest—there are, fortunately, a large and increasing number of such men in all our American cities, and that is where they are most needed—it will not seem an exaggeration to say that the reading of no books in the English language can possibly teach certain primary moral lessons so speedily and so impressively as the two or three months of severe training required to fit a man for that experience.

The rules that govern the boxing ring are in themselves a tolerably complete moral code. The Marquis of Queensberry, properly understood, is entitled to a place among the great precept makers of mankind—to rank with Lycurgus, Plato, Socrates and Solomon and the other men whose minds served as mints for the coinage of maxims and proverbs that have passed into the common currency of wisdom and goodness.—Donahoe's Magazine.

Stopped a Leak With Sawdust.

To stop the leakage of a boat by the use of sawdust appears at the first suggestion ridiculous. It is a common method, however, employed by backwoodsmen of the Adirondack region.

One day a party having considerable baggage discovered upon loading it into a scow at the end of one of the regular "carries" that the boat leaked badly. To delay for repairs would occasion considerable annoyance, and without repairs to proceed seemed impossible.

At this juncture one of the guides said: "I think I can fix it. Just unload the boat again." This was done, and then the guide brought from a sawmill near the spot a quantity of sawdust. This he sprinkled thickly upon the water on either side of the boat.

"Now," continued he, "load up again." This was done, and when the weight again sank the boat the influx of water through the sides and bottom sucked in the sawdust, which finally accumulated in the crevices, swelled under the action of the water and actually stopped the leakage.—New York Herald.

The reins may guide the horse, the bit may inspire him by its careful manipulation, and the whip may urge him forward to greater ambition, but the human voice is far more potent than all these agencies. Its assuring tones will more quickly dispel his fright, its sharp, clear, electric commands will more thoroughly arouse his ambition, and its gentle, kindly praises will more completely encourage the intelligent road horse than the united force of the bit and reins and the lash. No animal in domestic use more readily responds to the power of kindness than the road horse.—Ploughman.

Took Him Up.

"There was a man came in here the other day," thoughtfully remarked the elevator man as he slammed the door to in the face of the man who was in a hurry, "who wanted to bet $500 to $50 on the big game—and I took him up."—Kansas City Times.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss
County of Crow Wing.

I, Louis Tache, auditor of the county of Crow Wing and State of Minnesota, do solemnly swear that the foregoing is a true and correct list of delinquent taxes upon real estate within the County of Crow Wing for the year 1892, which became delinquent on the first day of June 1893, and remained delinquent on the 20th day of January, 1894.

LOUIS TACHE,
Co. Auditor, Crow Wing County, Minn.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 20th day of January, A. D. 1894.

{Seal.} S. F. ALDERMAN,
Clerk District Court, Crow Wing County, Minn.

Delinquent Tax List,

—OF—

Cass County.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss
Counties of Crow Wing and Cass.

District Court, Fifteenth Judicial District.

The State of Minnesota to all persons, companies or corporations, who have or claim any estate, right, title or interest in, claim to or lien upon any of the several pieces or parcels of land in the list hereto attached described.

The list of taxes and penalties on real property for the county of Cass remaining delinquent on the first Monday of January 1894, has been filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the County of Crow Wing to which Cass County is attached for judicial purposes, of which that hereto attached is a copy. Therefore you and each of you, are required to file in the office of said clerk, on or before the 20th day of March, 1894, your answer in writing, setting forth any objection or defense you may have to the taxes or any part thereof, upon any piece or parcel of land described in said list, in, to or on which you have or claim any estate, right, title, interest, claim or lien, and in default thereof, judgment will be entered against such piece or parcel of land, for the taxes on said list appearing against it, and for all penalties, interest and costs.

{Seal.} S. F. ALDERMAN,
Clerk of the District Court, Crow Wing and Cass Counties, Minnesota.

A List of delinquent taxes upon Real Estate, within the County of Cass, State of Minnesota, for the year A. D. 1892, remaining delinquent and unpaid on the first Monday in January, 1894, and the penalties accrued thereon.

Italian Etiquette.

If the woman who visits Rome wishes to follow traditions and "do as the Romans do," she will be careful never to take an escort's arm in a Catholic church. Indeed, the guides instruct those who stroll innocently arm in arm about St. Peter's looking at the pictures, frescoes and altars of that wonderful cathedral that they are committing an impropriety. Italians are very particular about the etiquette of kissing the hand. A man kisses the right hand of his mother, aunt or elderly friend, and the left hand of his sweetheart. It is not permitted him to kiss the palm of the hand except in great and affection te intimacy; it is regarded as a token that he is very much in love. Upon arriving at a formal dinner a gentleman takes the hand of his hostess and bends low over it as if about to kiss it, but does not do so. After dinner etiquette demands that he take her hand again and kiss it.

Always Sit Down When You Can.

Mother's motto was: "Always sit down when you can," writes an old housekeeper. Sit to beat eggs, to mix cake, to peel the vegetables for dinner, and I have seen mother with a small board in her lap sit tranquilly ironing handkerchiefs with her tired feet on a cricket and near enough to the stove to obviate the necessity of rising for a hot iron. Now there are self heating irons, so that one may not be troubled changing flats. And when at the end of the day I have said:

"It has been a hard day for mother," she has replied, "Yes, but I am not so tired as I expected to be."

Don't you suppose the few moments rest at every change was a help in the end? Don't say it won't pay to get a chair for those few moments, for though you may not see it now it will add to your years and help to keep your strength in the long run.

A Reasonable Request.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands can testify. Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most, of the remedies in general use afford but temporary benefit. A cure certainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes. Ely's Cream Balm, which is so highly commended, is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient.

Highest Type of Savages.

The natives of the Hawaiian islands are thought to belong to the Indo-Germanic race. They are fine specimens of manhood and womanhood, with straight, black hair and beautiful brown skin, very much different in color from the skin of the American negro. While the Kanakas, as the inhabitants of the islands are called, are not lazy, they are industrious only by fits and starts. They do not want steady work, and scarcely ever do anything more arduous than cattle-ranching. This style of life seems to suit them, and the Kanaka cowboy is as good a cowboy as there is in the world.

The native Hawaiians who live in the cities spend most of their leisure drinking rum, which has entirely superseded the national beverage, awa. The natives will not work on the sugar or rice estates, most of those plantations being worked by Chinese and Japanese. I have yet to see a full-blooded Kanaka who could not read and write. They are the very highest type of savages, but they have proved very susceptible to European diseases. Epidemics of measles, small-pox and other diseases common to civilization have taken off hundreds of thousands of them.—From an interview with Dr. Benjamin Sharp.

The Irish Queen of Patiala.

The Maharaja of Patiala, who is about to visit the British islands, will bring with him his wife Florence, known as the Queen of Patiala, who is an Irish lady and sister of Charles Bryan, a gentleman well known in Indian racing circles. The maharaja who will make this occasion his first visit to Europe, belongs according to Sir Roper Lethbridge's "Golden Book of India" to the renowned Sidhu-Jat Clan of Sikhs. The title of maharaja was bestowed on the Patiala chief in 1810 by the Emporer Akhbar on the recommendation of General Achteriony. During the Nepal war he assisted the English government, and at its close was rewarded with the addition to his territories of parts of the Kheonthal and Baghat states. In the Sutlej campaigns of 1845-6 he rendered good service. During the mutiny the present maharaja's grandfather sent an auxiliary force to Delhi and offered other aid, in recognition of which he received large extensions of territory, with additions to his titles and powers. He is in his 22d year, rules over a state comprising 5,419 square miles, with a population of about 1,467,433, consisting of 408,151 Sikhs, 321,351 Mussulmans and the remainder Hindus. 100 BUS. OF WHEAT FROM TWO ACRES.

This remarkable yield was reported by Frank Close, Minnesota, on two acres of Marvel Spring Wheat. Speaking of this wheat, this new sort takes the cake. It is the greatest cropping spring wheat in the world. Farmers who tried it in the past season believe seventy-five to one hundred bushels can be grown from one acre, and are going to get this yield for 1894. At such yield wheat pays at 30 cents a bushel. Salzer is the largest grower of vegetable and farm seed in the world.

216 BUS. 8 LBS. OATS FROM ONE BUS. SEED.

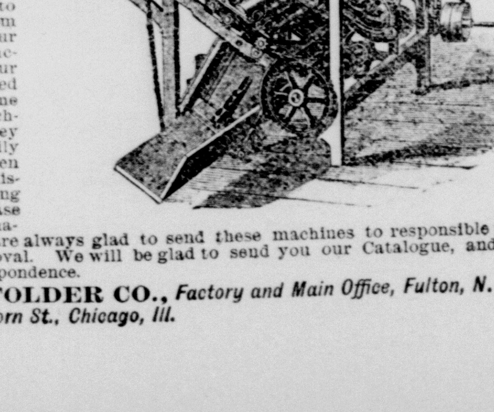

This remarkable, almost unheard-of, yield was reported by Frank Winter of Montana, who planted one bushel of Great Northern Oats, carefully tilled and irrigated same, and believes that in 1894 he can grow from one bushel of Great Northern Oats three hundred bushels. It's a wonderful oat.

If You Will Cut This Out and Send It with 7 cents postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will get free their mammoth catalogue and a package of above spring wheat, or send 8 cents and get catalogue and package of above named oats. W

We take pride in calling attention to our "Intermediate" Folder. We have designed this machine with a special view of supplying a thoroughly well made, simple, durable folding machine to publishers whose circulation does not justify them in purchasing one of our "Regular" machines. It will be readily understood that we have special advantages in the construction of this moderate-priced machine, being able to use many parts that are made from the same patterns intended for our more expensive folders. The accompanying cut illustrates our Hand Feed machine. The Attached Folders are built from the same patterns, but have press attachments in place of feed board. They are so arranged as to be readily moved back from the press when not needed. You will make no mistake by thoroughly investigating this machine before you purchase any of the "so-called" cheap machines now on the market. Chapter I—(Continued)

"I hardly know," he replied a little sheepishly, his entranced gaze fixed on the maiden's large gray eyes.

"Here, grandad!" called she loudly. "Pray walk into our cottage, Sir Basil; my grandfather will be pleased to see you in his humble abode. I am so sorry that Wolf flew at you; I trust he has not hurt you in any way."

"No, no; not at all, I thank you," he stammered, scarcely knowing what he said.

"Oh, I am so glad to hear that!" she frankly said, at once leading the way into the house, Sir Basil, his thoughts all in confusion, following her. "My grandfather is rather deaf, Sir Basil," she explained, as she ushered her unexpected visit into the cottage parlor, where there was sitting a venerable man, with long locks of silver hair, and a countenance expressive of benevolence and goodness.

The old gentleman rose on the entrance of Sir Basil, looked greatly surprised and mystified at his unlooked-for appearance there.

"Sir Basil Dovetree, grandfather," said the young girl in the old man's ear.

"I'm proud to see him here, Gertrude," he replied, with a courteous bow to the young baronet. "Well I knew your father, the late Sir Basil Dovetree, and likewise your grandsire; and I am delighted to have an opportunity of personally wishing you health to enjoy the possessions you are heir to."

The young baronet bowed confusedly in acknowledgment of the old man's gracious words, and tried to stammer a suitable reply; but his brain was in a whirl, his lips clung to each other, and his voice was no longer under his control.

Gertrude placed a chair for him, and bade him be seated. She then proceeded to inform her grandfather how Wolf misbehaved himself towards Sir Basil Dovetree.

The old gentleman listened to her in great perplexity, at a loss to understand what the baronet could have been doing in the cottage garden. But although unable to fully comprehend matters as they stood at present, Gertrude's grandparent was altogether too well bred to trouble his visitor with many questions.

"My grandfather was the curate of Ravensmarsh for upwards of fifty years," Gertrude explained to Sir Basil. "No wonder that he knew your father, your uncle, and your grandsire."

"No wonder at all!" stammered he, growing emboldened by the unaffected manners of his beautiful and fascinating hostess, and now plunged head over ears in love with her. "I am quite delighted to become acquainted with your grandfather, and I shall esteem it a great favour—happiness, I should say—to be permitted to call upon him now and then!"

"Oh, he will, I am sure, feel quite honored by your visits, Sir Basil!" Gertrude frankly answered, pleasure sparkling in her eyes, and dimpling her soft, round cheeks as she spoke.

"How shall I address your grandfather?" asked he.

"His name is John Gilruth."

"And what may I call you?" the young baronet further asked, sinking his voice, and fixing his eyes on hers.

"Gertrude Gilruth," returned she, simply, wholly unconscious of his admiring gaze.

"Gertrude Gilruth!" repeated he. "I shall remember that name!" he added, uttering his words with soft and insignificant intonation.

* * * * *

"I have seen her, talked to her, clasped hands with her, Warrington, and she is charming in every respect!"

This was said by the young master of Ravensmarsh, after his return home when he unceremoniously burst in upon the creole's meditations.

Pelham Warrington looked up in astonishment.

"You have seen her, talked with her, clasped hands with her! How, when and where may I ask?"

"How?—without the slightest difficulty. When?—half an hour ago. Where?—under her own roof," Sir Basil triumphantly replied. "You look as if you doubted my word, Warrington!" he added, I may live in hope—that you will one day reciprocate my passion—or I shall ——"

"Rise, Sir Basil, I beg," said she, with calm dignity.

"No, no! Here will I kneel until you answer me—until you tell me that one day you will be mine!"

"Impossible, Sir Basil!"

"Impossible!" he echoed, in a scared tone. "What mean you?"

"That I can never be yours."

He started up as if electrified. He, the rich and petted child of fortune, was unused to disappointment, and could not quickly realize its presence.

"Gertrude!" he gasped, as soon as he could command his voice, "Gertrude, I have not heard aright; no, no—tell me that I have not!"

"I cannot tell you so," she replied, gently and firmly. "I cannot utter a falsehood!"

Sir Basil's face blanched, and his whole frame quivered like a reed. "What mean you, Gertrude?" he exclaimed frantically endeavoring to take her hand.

"I wish Sir Basil, you would spare me the pain of answering you. Pray talk to my grandfather."

"No, no, Gertrude!" he burst forth; "from your own lips I must learn my fate!"

"I entreat your patience until my grandfather's return home," said she, "Indeed, indeed, Sir Basil, you had better talk to him upon this subject."

"Wherefore all this mystery in your replies Gertrude?" he demanded. "Am I hateful in your presence?"

"Oh, no, indeed, Sir Basil."

"Then why do you say you never can be mine?"

"My grandfather will explain all to you."

"All! repeated, he with a look of bewilderment. "Great heavens, what is there to explain to me?"

She was silent.

"What—what means all this mystery? I must know!" he cried out, vehemently. "I—oh, forgive me, forgive me, Gertrude," he added, in a softer tone. "I really know not what I am saying. I am frenzied —I cannot bear this state of doubt. Have some mercy on me and no longer keep me in this horrible suspense!"

During the above frantic appeal, Sir Basil had seized Gertrude's unwilling hands, and was on his knees again, suing at her feet.

Still she was silent.

"Be not cruel!" proceeded the young baronet, in broken accents. "Beautiful Gertrude, my heart throbs only for you!"

"I wish it were otherwise," she rejoined, much distressed.

"It cannot surely be that you——"

"That I love another?" interrupted she, with averted head. "Yes, it is so."

He uttered a sharp cry, and shudderingly dropped her hands.

"I am sorry and pained to make such a confession," Gertrude proceeded, stammeringly; "but you drew it from me; I did not make it willingly. I would rather have left you to hear the disclosure from my grandfather; it would have been better to——"

"Gertrude Gilruth!" the baronet broke forth, in a hoarse voice, "my life will henceforth be a blank and a misery to me; and you, you have made it such!"

And starting to his feet once more, he paced the room with rapid strides. Suddenly he stopped, his face white as snow, his eyes glaring wildly.

"Who is this favored, happy lover of yours, Miss Gilruth?" he inquired, sternly. "Nay, never heed me! What right have I to ask you such a question? Pray forgive me—I think I am going mad!"

Saying which, Sir Basil resumed his rapid pacings to and fro. Presently he dashed out of the room, flung open the cottage door, rushed out into the street, and was gone.

Sir Basil Dovetree's nature was not at all a secretive one; and moreover than that, he had not sufficient patience to bear trouble of any kind without complaint. Into Warrington's ear he therefore poured, at once, the whole relation of his heart's recent disappointment.

With a placid countenance the creole listened to his friend's tale. His bosom was all aglow with triumph and satisfaction, for the explanation which had just occurred between Sir Basil and Gertrude Gilruth was the very event which Warrington had been longing for.

The young baronet might now be molded according to the creole's pleasure—might be drawn into any extravagance, dissipation, riot or wrong. Sir Basil, he knew, would henceforth become thoroughly reckless of what he did, and might perhaps be led to squander away his gold without the least reflection or regard. His character had been closely studied by this seeming friend, who had studied it for his own peculiar purpose, and he was acquainted with all its vacillation and all its weakness.

Out of that weakness Warrington hoped to draw his own strength, and on the ruins of Sir Basil's fortunes he contemplated building his own.

There was no necessity to weave any very subtle meshes to ensnare the young baronet; for the simplest maze would confuse his brain, and the slightest entanglement would be likely to confine and hold him firmly.

The creole had an easy task before him.

"So Gertrude Gilruth has actually refused your love? I can hardly credit your tale!"

"You may do so, for it is a true one," Sir Basil replied, his head leaning on his open palms, his voice sounding hoarsely.

Refused to become the legitimate mistress of Ravensmarsh?"

"Ay, that she did, Warrington."

"Without a moment's consideration?"

"Without a moment's pause. But she loves another."

"Oh!" exclaimed the creole, his features suddenly brightening. "And who is that other whom she loves?"

"She did not inform me," answered Sir Basil, very simply.

"Oh, woman—woman!" Warrington ejaculated, with a shrug and a pretended sneer.

The young baronet moaned through his clasped fingers.

THE MIRACLE OF THE GULLS.

Why a Fine of $5 Is Imposed for Killing This Bird in Utah.

Most interesting of the birds that we saw on our daily way to the pasture were the gulls, great, beautiful, snowy creatures, who looked strangely out of place so far away from the seashore. Stranger, too, than their change of residence was their change of manners, from the wild, unapproachable sea birds, soaring and diving, and apparently spending their lives on wings. From this high place in our thoughts, from this realm of poetry and mystery, to come down almost to the tameness of the barnyard fowl is a marvelous transformation, and one is tempted to believe the solemn announcement of the Salt Lake phophet that the Lord sent them to his chosen people.

The occasion of this alleged special favor to the Latter Day Saints was the advent, about twenty years ago, of clouds of grasshoppers, before which the crops of the Western states and territories were destroyed as by fire. It was then, in their hour of greatest need, when the food upon which depended a whole people was threatened, that these beautiful winged messengers appeared. In large flocks they came, from no one knows where, and settled, like so many sparrows, all over the land, devouring almost without ceasing the hosts of the foe. The crops were saved, and all Deseret rejoiced. Was it any wonder that a people trained to regard the head of their church as the direct representative of the Highest should believe these to be really birds of God, and should accordingly cherish them? Well would it be for themselves if other Christian people were equally believing and protected and cherished other winged messengers sent just as truly to protect their crops.

The shrewd man who wielded the destinies of his people beside the Salt lake secured the future usefulness of what they considered the miraculous visitation by fixing a penalty of $5 upon the head of every gull in the territory. And now, the birds having found congenial nesting-places on solitary islands in the lake, their descendants are so fearless and so tame that they habitually follow the plow like a flock of chickens, rising from almost under the feet of the indifferent horses and settling down at once in the furrow behind, seeking out grubs and larvae and mice and moles that the plow has disturbed in its passage. The Mormon cultivator has sense enough to appreciate such service, and no man or boy dreams of lifting a finger against his best friend.

Extraordinary indeed was this sight to eyes accustomed to seeing every bird that attempts to render such like service shot and snared and swept from the face of the earth. Our hearts warmed toward the "Sons of Zion," and our respect for their intelligence increased as we hurried down to the field to see this latter-day wonder.—Mrs. Olive Thorne Miller in the Atlantic.

CHINA HAS A SANDOW.

Wonderful Feat of a Chinaman at a Militia Examination.

A Hankow correspondent gives an account of the discovery of a young Samson at the militia caminationsx. There were about 900 candidates, of whom sixty-three gained the degree of promoted men. They are tried in archery, lifting, sword and spear exercise, etc., also in writing. The senior wrangler was a young man, only 22 years of age fro Kinhua. His particular success was in lifting, and his strength is estimated at 800 catties (the cattie is about one and one-half pounds,) though, really, they say it is only 600 catties. This is tested by lifting a square stone of 300 catties weight as high as the breast. This man not only lifted it to that height, but gave it a toss up and caught it as it came down.

The governor was astonished and asked him to repeat the feat. The young man supposing that he was suspected of having some secret help, threw off his coat, exposed his bare body, and repeated the feat to the entire satisfaction of the judges. Though in archery and other practices his skill was not conspicious, he was awarded the first place on the list of successful candidates, and the governor did him the honor of asking who had been his teacher and trainer. He replied that it was his father, who was himself a military officer and had served at Ningpo and elsewhere.

The Grocer Did Not Advertise.

A few days ago a prominent citizen cut into a pound of butter which he had purchased at a grocery whose proprietor does not advertise and found therein a small tin box, which contained a piece of paper bearing the following written in a neat feminine hand:

"I am a girl of 18 years, good looking and an excellent housekeeper. Should this be found by some unmarried Christian gentleman, will he please write to the following address," etc.

The finder being a bachelor decided to unravel the affair and succeeded only to destroy the romance. The girl who had written the note had died many years ago, leaving an aged husband and a grown family.—Pittsburg Messenger.

A DEAL OF WASHINGTON'S.

HISTORY OF A SHREWD LAND PURCHASE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Method of a Crafty Bargain—Washington's Old Flouring Mill, Built in the Wilderness 120 Years Ago, Still in Operation.

And they went Washington mad!

By they the people of Perryopolis, a little town in the back woods of Fayette county, Pa., are meant. How the accident of calling the place Perryopolis ever occurred no one can tell, because, perhaps, the godfathers were afterward ashamed of the awful mistake they had made. But those who came later tried hard to rectify the error. They have fairly beggared the resources of the name in their efforts to perpetuate it.

First, they fashioned the plan of the town after that of the capital city, because it was named after their patron saint. The central part is an octagon shaped public square, covering an acre and a half. Two main streets cross the square at right angles, and between the streets are two alleys, running diagonally. The square is thus the exact focussing point of eight thoroughfares, radiating from it like wheel spokes from the hub. The earliest inhabitants built their houses around the square and then along the avenues. When it became necessary to lay out a cross street it took the form of a circle, completely surrounding the square and making of each block a sort of trapezoid. Then, as the years wore on, another cross street of the same kind was added and then another.

Then the christeners had an inning. They called the public square, or rather octagon, "Washington square," and the main street that intersected it "Washington street." Of course an alley is not a street, so "Washington alley," as they named one of the narrower ways, did not conflict with the other. The site of the town and all the surrounding country generally was named "Washington's Meadows," and the little stream which flowed through all this lovely land from the low hills to the southeast was "Washington's Run." Part of its course lay along "Washington Bottoms," and it fell as Washington's Falls" over a great ledge of rock a short distance north of the town and set the wheels going in "Washington's Mill" to make "Washington flour."

Everything entitled to a name had and has "Washington" tacked onto it. The family that failed to get in the name of Washington somewhere in the naming of the first offspring was subjected to a sort of social ostracism by Perryopolitan society. Later editions of the same family were not subjected to such conditions, but as regards the first the rule was invariable. In fact, "Washington" is a sort of generic title for everything, animate and inanimate, in or about Perryopolis.

How It All Happened.

How did it come about? One must go back a good distance into history to get at the starting point of the story.

On next July 9 it will be 139 years since what a certain popular writer would term "a good fight" took place between Englishmen on the one side and French and Indians on the other, on the banks of the Monongahela river, in Pennsylvania, only a few miles from its mouth.

There were good fighters on the English side and they tried hard to make the best of it after they were surprised, but at length craft and numbers prevailed against them, and the throng of panic stricken soldiers, borderers and camp followers mingled in confusion with riderless horses and driverless cannon and wagon teams, all flying helter-skelter across the shallow summer stream, told that Braddock, the egotist, was defeated.

He himself paid the penalty of his obstinacy, and deeply he repented of it as he lay mortally wounded after the battle on the south side of the Monongahela, still in plain view of skulking groups of savages searching the ravines and gullies of the battle field for unfound scalps. Surrounding the silken couch upon which the dying commander reclined was a group of faithful friends, ready to defend or die with him should occasion arise. But the victors attacked them not. The triumph was dearly won, and the fear that Gen. Dunbar might be close at hand prevented them from attempting more than they had already accomplished.

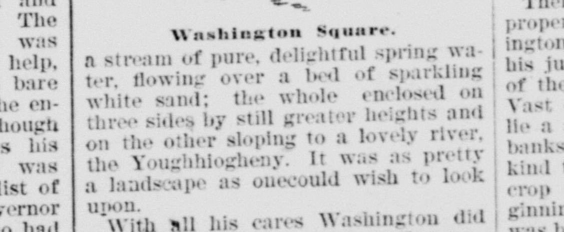

Among that group about Gen. Braddock was one, a tall, dignified young officer. Just at that time he appeared in ill health, as one who should have been on a sick bed instead of fighting battles. Col. George Washington was really sick. He had been suffering with a fever for some time and it was only his indomitable pluck that kept him on his feet at all. Previous to this hour Braddock would not listen to Washington's proffered advice regarding the proper method to cope with redskin warfare. Now, in this bitter moment, he sought it.

Evening was close at hand, when, as the result of that consultation, Washington mounted his horse and galloped swiftly up the river with dispatches for Gen. Dunbar. Three miles away he was joined by two soldiers. Night came, and with it the storm that usually follows the battle. But the riders kept on, through dark, gloomy forests, across streams and up and down mountains. Sometimes they noted their way by the fitful flashes of lightning; again they felt their way along by hand. Sick, sad and oppressed though he was, Washington cared little for obstacles if progress could be made.

At daybreak the storm clouds passed away, but it was not until the sun shot his first golden spear across the hilltops that the messengers drew rein for the first rest in all that long, wearisome journey.

An Alluring Prospect.

A fair scene was that upon which Washington gazing that morning. A wide table land it was, resting on the hilltops. Flat almost as a board, covered with rich grass and here and there a clump of trees growing along a stream of pure, delightful spring water, flowing over a bed of sparkling white sand; the whole enclosed on three sides by still greater heights and on the other sloping to a lovely river, the Youghhiogheny. It was as pretty a landscape as onecould wish to look upon.

With all his cares Washington did not fail to observe the attractive surroundings. He took careful note of its advantages. It had many, but first of all it was an ideal location for a "plantation," as they called the farm in those days.

The future head of this great nation was but twenty-three years of age at that time, but he knew the value of land. Therefore he did not allow that splendid piece of Fayette county land to go out of his recollection, though years intervened before he had opportunity to carry out his schemes concerning it. Through all the interesting periods following the Braddock episode that "promised land" was kept in his mind's eye. A dozen years later his chance came. He wrote to his old friend, Captain William Crawford, of Stewart's Crossings (now New Haven,) as follows:—

"I then desired the favor of you (as I now understood rights might now be had for the lands which have fallen within the Pennsylvania line,) to look me out a tract of about fifteen hundred, two thousand or more acres, somewhere in your neighborhood, meaning only by this, that it may be contiguous, to your own settlement as such a body of good land can be found."

A Shrewd Land Dealer.

Few of those people who revere the memory of our first President will believe that one formed in so fine a mould was ready and willing to transgress a law for his own private gain, yet the continuation of this same letter shows that he was not averse to doing so or engaging in any of the petty trickery of a common real estate jobber when his own personal ends were concerned.

Here is the evidence:—"It is possible, but I do not know that it really is the case, that the custom in Pennsylvania will not admit so large a quantity of land as I require to be entered together; if so, this may be arranged by making several entries to the same amount if the expenses of doing it are not too heavy."

He does not say exactly how the entries were to be made, and we have no information how Crawford went about the business. It is known, however, that on the opening of the land office of the proprietaries for the sale of land west of the mountains, April 3, 1769, a piece of land called "The Meadows," amounting to 329 acres, was transferred to George Washington; another piece of like amount, or thereabouts, called "The Forks," went to John Augusta (Augustine) Washington; another called "Bear Hills," to Lawrence Washington; "Deer Range," 332 acres, to Thomas Jones; "Crab Tree Run," 330 ocres, to John Paty; "Spring Run," 331 ocres, to William Atael, and "Flatt," 319 acres, to John Bishop. No further transactions are recorded, but the reports of the General's executors in 1802 showed that they belonged to him.

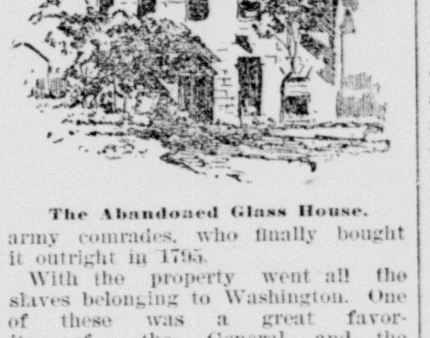

Be that as it may, immediately Washington secured possession he set about improving the place. He sent workingmen to build houses and a mill and slaves to work on the plantation. Remains of some of these improvements still exist. The visitor to Perryopolis who made his way from Layton Station, on the Youghiogheny Railroad will see the flourmill Washington built still in operation and practically in the same condition it was when it left his hands more than a century ago. It is located in a ravine near the town and the machinery is still put in motion by water power derived from Washington Run, which here makes its way down a steep declivity. A family named Smith are the present owners. They pride themselves greatly on its possession, as well as from the fact that it has been in their hands ever since it passed from the control of its original proprietor.

A Costly Venture.

Probably it was the construction of this building that first wearied Washington of his bargain. He always liked the place and spent considerable time there, residing the while with Colonel Simpson, his overseer or superintendent. But before it was finished that mill cost him a lot of money.

Although commenced in 1774, several years passed before it was fairly completed. No sooner was the work fairly commenced than the Indians would become troublesome the laborers would get frightened and shortly desert to the protection of old Redstone Fort, a few miles away. Block house wer built in the vicinity of the mill in the hope that they would rely on them for protection in case of attack, but the first fresh atrocity of the redskins, who were continually raiding the frontiers at that time. would create a new panic. In a few minutes the whole force would have disappeared and not be heard of again until the fort was reached. Valentine Crawford who had succeeded his brother as Washington's agent, wrote about this time:—"I consider it a pity that the mill was ever begun in these times."

Finally Washington set about to dispose of the whole business. The Revolutionary War, then going on, prevented him from giving it the attention it demanded. so that it was not until 1789 that he succeeded in leasing it to Colonel Isaac Shreve, one of his old army comrades, who finally bought it outright in 1795.

With the property went all the slaves belonging to Washington. One of these was a great favorite of the General, and the poor darky in after years never tired of sounding the praise of his former master. Funty Munty—so he was called—became famous in the history of old Fayette on account of his interesting recollections. He lived to be 116 years of age, dying as recently as 1875. According to the Fayette county records Funty Munty was valued at £60 in the 30's, but had fallen in value to £10 at the opening of the rebellion.

Visited by Lafayette.

From a town situated as Perryopolis is, away from all railroads, navigable streams or main thoroughfares, that might bring it a sort of transient importance, it is singularly fortunate in historical or generally interesting incident. In 1825 the popular General Lafayette stopped there while on his famous tour of the states. From a porch of a building on one of the eastern sides of the public square he addressed a multitude of people who had assembled to give him welcome. Lafayette had promised to speak the same day at Rehoboth Church, six miles away, and so great was the enthusiasm that a chain of sentinels was stationed all along the road leading there. Each one of the men passed the signal of Lafayette's starting from Perryopolis to Rehoboth by waving a red handkerchief to the other. In less than three minutes the roar of cannon announcing the fact could be heard at the latter place.

Within recent years Perryopolis has taken more interest in the affairs of the outside world than ever before. Previously, the people seemed satisfied to live in the recollection of the past. In fact, it was really all they had to live for in some respects. They had very little communication with other points on account of the difficulty in reaching them. For that reason, perhaps, little if any improvement was made. Those who lived there were generally to the manor born, comfortably endowed and satisfied with their happy, if humdrum, existence. In half a century but three houses were built and the town to-day is practically what it was at the beginning. The addition of a few modern styled verandas, awnings, etc., however, have given the old buildings a newer appearance than they are really entitled to.

There is hardly any doubt that with proper transportation facilities Washington's famous plantation would verify his judgment. It is the center of one of the best fruit districts in the state. Vast coal fields, heretofore unworked, lie a short distance southward. Great banks of the finest white sand, just the kind that a glass manufacturer wants, crop up everywhere. About the beginning of the century a glass house was built, which was kept in continuous operation up to within a score of years ago, when the disadvantageous situation rendered competition with other works of the kind out of the question, notwithstanding the abundant sand stores that it could draw upon so freely if it chose.

Facing a Dire Dilemma.

We have a good, gentle family horse that we are anxious to exchange for a good "possum" dog or a reasonable amount of fish bait. There is positively nothing wrong with the horse but his voracious appetite. We have had him with us now about three weeks and he has eaten up three loads of cypress shingles, two lot gates, licked the bottom out of a cast-iron sugar kettle and commenced on the gable end of our residence, and the fact is we have just got to swap, sell or kill, or be without a house or home.—Hawkinsville, Ga., Dispatch.

HOBBIES OF NOTED WOMEN.

Actors and Singers Particularly Noticeable for Their Odd Fads.

The princess of Wales has a mania for collecting postage stamps. Queen Victoria's hobby finds vent in the collection of curious coins. The late Comtesse Ruspoli spent many years of her life in collecting Napoleonic relics and succeeded in acquiring a very valuable assortment.

Professional women are, according to the Philadelphia Times, most given to this sort of thing. Clara Morris and Mrs. Langtry dote on horses, the latter having put to good use her love of them by the discretion she exercises in buying those that win many a purse for her on the turf.

Mrs. Bernard Beere buys mechanical dolls as other women invest in bon bons, and her collection is a large and valuable one. Fanny Davenport goes in for antique jewelry and odd hair pins, while Pauline Hall's more modern taste inclines her toward sapphires and turquoises. It is said she possesses more beautiful marquise rings than any woman in the profession.

Christine Nilsson has a fancy for fans of rare lace and exquisite workmanship. This little hobby is one of the most expensive ones that can be thought of, and unless one possesses royal friends or a royal pocketbook the mania should be transferred to something less apt to bankrupt one.

Agnes Repplier, as a representative literary woman, divides her time between her essays and a large and interesting family of cats that she adores. Bernhardt's fads are too numerous to mention, while there are many women in private life who let their fancy run rampant on shoes, old silver, laces, autographs and in fact hundreds of queer fancies, for individual tastes lie in different directions, and the world of women is ever growing larger.

KNOWN OF ALL OBSERVERS.

The Bride and Groom Unable to Say Why They Attracted so Much Attention.

One stormy day recently a handsome carriage came dashing down Fifth avenue, New York, with a yard of white ribbon flying at the pole, says a correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch. Everybody paused long enough to take a second look at it, and everybody who did saw more white ribbon tied in the door handles. As it went by the cabmen congregated in front of the Fifth Avenue hotel turned and stared, and the gentlemen loungers within rubbed their noses against the plate glass at the curious sight. Behind the carriage and pendant from the axle swung a dainty white kid slipper by a white ribbon. And the wind blew and the snow and rain swept by in vicious gusts, and the flying mud and water splashed the white ribbon and flecked the delicate little slipper; but the bright young couple, snugly wrapped to the chin on the back seat, were blissfully unconscious of all. It is possible they may have wondered how everybody seemed to know that they were just married and were on their way to the railway station for the happy wedding tour. Perhaps they marvelled that one carriage on Fifth avenue among so many should attract so much attention, and why everybody smiled and beckoned to his fellow and smiled again. "We're married," was thus flaunted in the face of all New York. The street urchins shouted a wild approval as the carriage passed and some of them yelled: "Git on to the bride!" "Good-by, darling!" and so on, after the fashion of the gamin world, while the big black coachman on the box grinned from behind his big astrakhan livery and was the envied of his kind. If that young couple entertained any doubts as to the reason for all these unexpected demonstrations they were probably duly enlightened when they reached the station. Their friends who sent them thus gayly heralded on their wedding journey possibly enjoyed the joke better than the newly made bride and groom.

A New Method of Exchanging Messages Between Ships.

A new method of signaling through water is the invention of Capt. Neale, and is intended for the exchange of messages and the carrying on of conversation between ships on the sea or on rivers, whether moving or stationary, or between ships and lighthouses and harbors, forts or piers on the shore. Communication is effected without any connection whatever between the two objects except the body of water in which the ships float or the lighthouse stands. The system utilizes a well known law of acoustics. If a musical note in a given key be sounded, an object capable of emitting sound in the same key will, under certain conditions, sympathetically respond with a sound similar to that which induced it, it being, of course, a primary condition that the two objects shall be normally tuned in unison. Capt. Neale's invention is based on this principle, and, utilizing the high conductivity of water for the transmission of sound, he has constructed a signaling apparatus consisting of a transmitting and receiving instrument, which are effectively operated without being in any way connected with each other, except through the medium of water. In the recent test the apparatus was mounted on two punts, moored about two-thirds of a mile apart, and carried a transmitter and a receiver respectively. The transmitter consists of a bell about sixteen inches in diameter, attached to the lower end of a framing, which is fixed to the side of the punt, at the upper end of which is a crank handle. This handle, worked from the punt, actuates a double beat hammer, which strikes and sounds a bell submerged about six feet. The Morse code is employed. The receiving apparatus consists of a pair of metallic drums about ten inches in diameter, open at one end and fixed, mouth to mouth, upon a piece of board placed between them. These drums, suspended in the water, are connected up with a small battery, and through it with a tape-recording instrument. Messages were correctly transmitted and recorded. The speed of operating was somewhat slow, as the signaling had to be carried on by hand instead of by electricity, which will shortly be utilized. The trial, however, was most successful, and it is said to have demonstrated the practical character of the invention and the correctness of the principles upon which it is based.

A New Merry-Go-Round.

A writer in Youth's Companion tells of a new merry-go-round game for children. This evolution from an old game is full of mirth. A row is formed, the children taking hold of hands. They are to imitate the movements of the leader. They begin to move to the following ditty, recited in monotone:

I put my right foot in,
I put my left foot out,
I give myself a shake, a shake, a shake
And turn myself about.

The class recites the ditty in action in harmony with the leader, each putting out the right foot and turning. But the leader changes the ditty from right foot to left foot, or right or left arm, and if any one makes a mistake and puts out the wrong foot or arm, that player is to be turned out of the society in the following way, which is clearly indicated by the recitation:

He puts his left in,
He puts his right foot out,
And we'll give him a shake, a shake, a shake,
And then we'll turn him out.

The play goes on until all, or nearly all, have made mistakes and are turned out. Those turned out become a committee to detect the mistakes of the others. If the players become too expert the rhyme may be suddenly turned to the eyes:

I shut my right eye in,
I look my right eye out, etc.

The leader may easily disconcert those whose long remain in the class by sudden changes in the rhyme. The imitation of the "shake, a shake, a shake," and the whirling about is lively and amusing, and the turning out of those who make mistakes by giving them a shake is a frolic.

Rats Forced to Keep Gnawing.

Have you any idea why it is that rats mice and squirrels are continually gnawing at something? They do not do this for "pure devilment," as people generally imagine, but because they are forced to. Animals of that class, especially the rats, have teeth which continue to grow as long as their owner lives. In the human species the teeth are developed from pulps which are absorbed and disappear as soon as the second set are full grown, but in the case of the much maligned rat the pulp supply is perpetual, and is continually secreting materials by which the incisors gain in length. This being the case, the poor creature is compelled to keep up his regular gnawing operations in order to keep his teeth ground off to a proper length.—St. Louis Republic.

Did it ever occur to you that the man who will not properly bed his cows is the last one to brush off the filth that may get on the udder from such neglect?

The Grip
Has shown by its sudden attacks, its terrible prostration, and its serious, often fatal results, that it is a disease to be feared. For a fully developed case of the Grip, the care of a skilled physician is necessary.
To Prevent the Grip
we confidently recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies the blood, keeps the kidneys and liver in healthy action, gives strength where it is needed, and keeps up the health-tone so that the system readily throws off attacks of the Grip or of Diphtheria, Typhoid Fever, Pneumonia, etc.
After the Grip
Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequaled for purifying the blood and restoring strength.
Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures
Hood's Pills cure all liver ills, biliousness jaundice, indigestion, sick headache.

CHIEF OF THE COMANCHES.

Romantic Story of Quanah Parker and His White Mother.

Quanah Parker is chief of the Comanches says the Little Rock Gazette. Years ago a wagon train was attacked in Texas by the raiding and marauding Comanches and all but one infant girl killed. She was raised by the chief and married his son, who, at the death of his father, was also chief. The rangers defeated the Indians in a battle and captured the woman and her infant child. She could only talk Comanche and had almost lost all resemblance to the waite race. She was taken to her people, but she longed for her Indian home and her husband, and soon pined away and died. The child was put at school and was being raised as a white child. He was called by the name his mother was always saying "Quanah," the name of his father. A bitter warfare was during all this time kept up unremittingly. It is history that there was always war on the border. At length they succeeded in recapturing the child. He was much more like a white person in looks than his mother, after her long captivity, and he also had the ways and education of a white man. He was chief when his father died and has been for a number of years. He held the surname of his mother, having an an Indian given name and an English surname. Owing to his education and his mother's treatment while with them, he has always been friendly with the whites. He has done much to make peace, and trying to civilize his tribe. He favors and works hard with his people for allotment in severalty of their lands, and the sale of the surplus to the government. He recognizes the advantages of his people from contact with the white man, and if the Comanches ever amount to anything in civilization it will be due to the efforts of Quanah Parker.

Curing Boiler Incrustation by Petroleum.

Petroleum, which is one of the most useful liquids in commercial use, has appeared in a new role. It is said that it affords the best remedy yet known for boiler incrustation. The petroleum is either squirted against the inside walls of the boiler after the latter has been cleaned, or it is added to the water of the boiler when full, so that when the water is slowly run off the petroleum acts gradually on the sedimentary deposit, rendering it so loose and brittle that it can be easily removed by tools, or even by a powerful stream of water. So far no prejudicial action of the petroleum on the boiler plates has been noticed. It is said that the state railways administration in Prussia has adopted petroleum as an incrustation-removing medium throughout the whole of its lines.

Ugly Tempers
Are a product of bad digestion. Your dyspeptic is almost invariably a cross-patch. The way to renew cheerfulness of disposition and an equabl temper soured by indigestion, is to take a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which not only banishes dyspepsia, but also relieves billiousness, constipation, chills and fever, rheumatism and kidney trouble. Use it with persistence three times a day.

Throughout the entire world there are annually about 180,000 suicides.

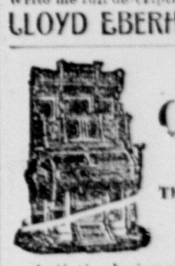

KNOWLEDGE
Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.
Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.
Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

"August Flower"
"One of my neighbors, Mr. John Gilbert, has been sick for a long time. All thought him past recovery. He was horribly emaciated from the inaction of his liver and kidneys. It is difficult to describe his appearance and the miserable state of his health at that time. Help from any source seemed impossible. He tried your August Flower and the effect upon him was magical. It restored him to perfect health to the great astonishment of his family and friends." John Quibell, Holt, Ont.

CLIP. SAVE AND SEND TO US
A complete set of our 13 advertisements, of which this is No. 3. The set is worth $25, and we will allow you that amount for it in the following way: If sent in all at one time by a regular subscriber to this paper immediately after the last one appears, together with the name and address of both subscriber and paper, and dates of papers from which they are clipped. WE WILL ALLOW YOU $25 TOWARD THE PURCHASE OF ONE OF OUR NEW, LARGE SIZE, ALL STEEL FEED CUTTERS, WORTH $40. Only one Feed Cutter to any one person. This makes the cash payment only $15 for this Feed Cutter, which will be found as superior to any now in use as the Aermotor was to anything in existence when it first appeared and will drive from the field all competitors and take and hold the trade in Feed Cutters as the Aermotor, the Aermotor Steel Fixed and Steel Tilting Tower have in Windmills and Towers. The talent which the Aermotor Company has shown in revising, revolutionizing, getting and holding the windmill business of the world, can be turned to many fields in the agricultural implement line and it proposes to show what it can do by taking up a number of articles, making them of steel and putting them in their final shape at a single stroke as was done in the case of the Windmill and Steel Tower, and it proposes to furnish them at greatly reduced prices. This Feed Cutter, for the present, will only be furnished on the above terms. THESE TERMS GIVE TO THIS SERIES OF 13 ADVERTISEMENTS A CASH VALUE OF $25. We shall offer other articles for which we will accept these advertisements, single copies of them, in part payment. We will be a Steel Hand Truck, in which we feel a special pride in showing our skill as revisers and improvers of staple articles. The cash requirement with this will be ridiculously small.
The third advertisement in this series will show a Steel Circular Saw and Frame, for farm and sawyers use. It is a PERFECT POLE SAW WITH PERFECT SAFETY GUARDS and runs with very much less power than ordinary buzz saws and has a better saw. THIS $40 SAW AND FRAME WILL BE GIVEN FOR $15 AND FIVE COPIES CLIPPED AS ABOVE OF ADVERTISEMENT No. 2.
In localities where we can we are going to make liberal offers to accept copies of these advertisements in part payment for Windmills. If you have any thought of using a windmill this year write us at once, stating what you think you will need, whether Pumping or Geared, and if possible we will make you a liberal offer. The past year, though one of unparalleled financial disturbance and business depression was one of great prosperity to the Aermotor Co. The fact that the Aermotor Co. in the past six years has Lessened the Cost of Wind Power to the Consumer to One-Sixth of its former Price has redounded greatly to its benefit and has brought to its factory an enormous volume of business. Even at the very low prices at which we sell Steel Windmills and Steel Towers, made in the most perfect manner, of the most perfect material, and GALVANIZED-AFTER-COMPLETION, THUS PERFECTLY PROTECTING EVERY PORTION OF THE METAL, it is possible to save a few cents on each outfit, and these few cents on the enormous number of outfits are wholly satisfactory to the Aermotor Co., which has always derived more pleasure from the service it has rendered a great number of people and from the pride it takes in doing well whatever it puts its hands to, than from the money it makes from its enterprise. This year, because it buys its material more cheaply and expects an enormous increase in its ever growing business, it offers its patrons a vast increase in the quantity and quality of material employed in the construction of its Steel Towers. The accompanying diagram, 2 1-2 x 2 1-2 shows the smallest angle that will be used by it in the corner posts of Towers, even for the 8-ft. wheel. For the 16-ft. we use 4 x 4. Thousands of tons of angles for Towers, cold-rolled and very straight and perfect are now being delivered at our works. Others who have a few tons, and therefore a year's supply, of 2 x 2 angle which they are using for 8-ft., 10-ft., and even for 12-ft. wheels, will read this paragraph with surprise and sorrow, since we have not previously given them any information concerning what we will use for '94.
The Aermotor Co. proposes to distribute $500 IN CASH IN PRIZES for the best essays written by the wife, son or daughter of a farmer or user of a windmill, answering the question, "WHY SHOULD I USE AN AERMOTOR?" For conditions of competition and amounts and numbers of prizes send for particulars to the Aermotor Co., Chicago, or to its branches, at San Francisco, Kansas City, Lincoln, Neb., Sioux City, Iowa, Minneapolis, Buffalo, or 65 Park Place, New York City. Aermotors, Pumping and Geared same price. All Steel, all Galvanized-After-Completion, delivered free on cars at Chicago and shipped to any one, anywhere at the following prices:

Italian Etiquette.

If the woman who visits Rome wishes to follow traditions and "do as the Romans do," she will be careful never to take an escort's arm in a Catholic church. Indeed, the guides instruct those who stroll innocently arm in arm about St. Peter's looking at the pictures, frescoes and altars of that wonderful cathedral that they are committing an impropriety. Italians are very particular about the etiquette of kissing the hand. A man kisses the right hand of his mother, aunt or elderly friend, and the left hand of his sweetheart. It is not permitted him to kiss the palm of the hand except in great and affectionate intimacy; it is regarded as a token that he is very much in love. Upon arriving at a formal dinner a gentleman takes the hand of his hostess and bends low over it as if about to kiss it, but does not do so. After dinner etiquette demands that he take her hand again and kiss it.

Always Sit Down When You Can.

Mother's motto was: "Always sit down when you can," writes an old housekeeper. Sit to beat eggs, to mix cake, to peel the vegetables for dinner, and I have seen mother with a small board in her lap sit tranquilly ironing handkerchiefs with her tired feet on a cricket and near enough to the stove to obviate the necessity of rising for a hot iron. Now there are self heating irons, so that one may not be troubled changing flats. And when at the end of the day I have said:

"It has been a hard day for mother," she has replied, "Yes, but I am not so tired as I expected to be."

Don't you suppose the few moments rest at every change was a help in the end? Don't say it won't pay to get a chair for those few moments, for though you may not see it now it will add to your years and help to keep your strength in the long run.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands can testify. Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most, of the remedies in general use afford but temporary benefit. A cure certainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes. Ely's Cream Balm, which is so highly commended, is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient.

Dexter Intermediate Folding Machine.

We take pride in calling attention to our "Intermediate" Folder. We have designed this machine with a special view of supplying a thoroughly well made, simple, durable folding machine to publishers whose circulation does not justify them in purchasing one of our "Regular" machines. It will be readily understood that we have special advantages in the construction of this moderate-priced machine, being able to use many parts that are made from the same patterns intended for our more expensive folders. The accompanying cut illustrates our Hand Feed machine. The Attached Folders are built from the same patterns, but have press attachments in place of feed board. They are so arranged as to be readily moved back from the press when not needed. You will make no mistake by thoroughly investigating this machine before you purchase any of the "so-called" cheap machines now on the market. We are always glad to send these machines to responsible publishers subject to trial and approval. We will be glad to send you our Catalogue, and are always pleased to answer correspondence.

Highest Type of Savages.

The natives of the Hawaiian islands are thought to belong to the Indo-Germanic race. They are fine specimens of manhood and womanhood, with straight, black hair and beautiful brown skin, very much different in color from the skin of the American negro. While the Kanakas, as the inhabitants of the islands are called, are not lazy, they are industrious only by fits and starts. They do not want steady work, and scarcely ever do anything more arduous than cattle-ranching. This style of life seems to suit them, and the Kanaka cowboy is as good a cowboy as there is in the world.

The native Hawaiians who live in the cities spend most of their leisure drinking rum, which has entirely superseded the national beverage, awa. The natives will not work on the sugar or rice estates, most of those plantations being worked by Chinese and Japanese. I have yet to see a full-blooded Kanaka who could not read and write. They are the very highest type of savages, but they have proved very susceptible to European diseases. Epidemics of measles, small-pox and other diseases common to civilization have taken off hundreds of thousands of them.—From an interview with Dr. Benjamin Sharp.

The Irish Queen of Patiala.

The Maharaja of Patiala, who is about to visit the British islands, will bring with him his wife Florence, known as the Queen of Patiala, who is an Irish lady and sister of Charles Bryan, a gentleman well known in Indian racing circles. The maharaja who will make this occasion his first visit to Europe, belongs according to Sir Roper Lethbridge's "Golden Book of India" to the renowned Sidhu-Jat Clan of Sikhs. The title of maharaja was bestowed on the Patiala chief in 1810 by the Emperor Akhbar on the recommendation of General Achterlony. During the Nepal war he assisted the English government, and at its close was rewarded with the addition to his territories of parts of the Kheonthal and Baghat states. In the Sutlej campaigns of 1845-6 he rendered good service. During the mutiny the present maharaja's grandfather sent an auxiliary force to Delhi and offered other aid, in recognition of which he received large extensions of territory, with additions to his titles and powers. He is in his 22d year, rules over a state comprising 5,419 square miles, with a population of about 1,467,433, consisting of 408,151 Sikhs, 321,351 Mussulmans and the remainder Hindus. 100 BUS. OF WHEAT FROM TWO ACRES.

This remarkable yield was reported by Frank Close, Minnesota, on two acres of Marvel Spring Wheat. Speaking of this wheat, this new sort takes the cake. It is the greatest cropping spring wheat in the world. Farmers who tried it in the past season believe seventy-five to one hundred bushels can be grown from one acre, and are going to get this yield for 1894. At such yield wheat pays at 30 cents a bushel. Salzer is the largest grower of vegetable and farm seed in the world.

ATONED AT LAST

Chapter I—(Continued)

"I hardly know," he replied a little sheepishly, his entranced gaze fixed on the maiden's large gray eyes.

"Here, grandad!" called she loudly. "Pray walk into our cottage, Sir Basil; my grandfather will be pleased to see you in his humble abode. I am so sorry that Wolf flew at you; I trust he has not hurt you in any way."

"No, no; not at all, I thank you," he stammered, scarcely knowing what he said.

"Oh, I am so glad to hear that!" she frankly said, at once leading the way into the house, Sir Basil, his thoughts all in confusion, following her. "My grandfather is rather deaf, Sir Basil," she explained, as she ushered her unexpected visit into the cottage parlor, where there was sitting a venerable man, with long locks of silver hair, and a countenance expressive of benevolence and goodness.

The old gentleman rose on the entrance of Sir Basil, looked greatly surprised and mystified at his unlooked-for appearance there.

"Sir Basil Dovetree, grandfather," said the young girl in the old man's ear.

"I'm proud to see him here, Gertrude," he replied, with a courteous bow to the young baronet. "Well I knew your father, the late Sir Basil Dovetree, and likewise your grandsire; and I am delighted to have an opportunity of personally wishing you health to enjoy the possessions you are heir to."

The young baronet bowed confusedly in acknowledgment of the old man's gracious words, and tried to stammer a suitable reply; but his brain was in a whirl, his lips clung to each other, and his voice was no longer under his control.

Gertrude placed a chair for him, and bade him be seated. She then proceeded to inform her grandfather how Wolf misbehaved himself towards Sir Basil Dovetree.

The old gentleman listened to her in great perplexity, at a loss to understand what the baronet could have been doing in the cottage garden. But although unable to fully comprehend matters as they stood at present, Gertrude's grandparent was altogether too well bred to trouble his visitor with many questions.

"My grandfather was the curate of Ravensmarsh for upwards of fifty years," Gertrude explained to Sir Basil. "No wonder that he knew your father, your uncle, and your grandsire."

"No wonder at all!" stammered he, growing emboldened by the unaffected manners of his beautiful and fascinating hostess, and now plunged head over ears in love with her. "I am quite delighted to become acquainted with your grandfather, and I shall esteem it a great favour—happiness, I should say—to be permitted to call upon him now and then!"

"Oh, he will, I am sure, feel quite honored by your visits, Sir Basil!" Gertrude frankly answered, pleasure sparkling in her eyes, and dimpling her soft, round cheeks as she spoke.

"How shall I address your grandfather?" asked he.

"His name is John Gilruth."

"And what may I call you?" the young baronet further asked, sinking his voice, and fixing his eyes on hers.

"Gertrude Gilruth," returned she, simply, wholly unconscious of his admiring gaze.

"Gertrude Gilruth!" repeated he. "I shall remember that name!" he added uttering his words with soft and insignificant intonation.

* * * * * *

"I have seen her, talked to her, clasped hands with her, Warrington, and she is charming in every respect!"

This was said by the young master of Ravensmarsh, after his return home when he unceremoniously burst in upon the creole's meditations.

Pelham Warrington looked up in astonishment.

"You have seen her, talked with her, clasped hands with her! How, when and where may I ask?"

"How?—without the slightest difficulty. When?—half an hour ago. Where?—under her own roof," Sir Basil triumphantly replied. "You look as if you doubted my word, Warrington!" he added, I may live in hope—that you will one day reciprocate my passion—or I shall—"

"Rise, Sir Basil, I beg," said she, with calm dignity.

"No, no! Here will I kneel until you answer me—until you tell me that one day you will be mine!"

"Impossible, Sir Basil!"

"Impossible!" he echoed, in a scared tone. "What mean you?"

"That I can never be yours."

He started up as if electrified. He, the rich and petted child of fortune, was unused to disappointment, and could not quickly realize its presence.

"Gertrude!" he gasped, as soon as he could command his voice, "Gertrude, I have not heard aright; no, no—tell me that I have not!"

"I cannot tell you so," she replied, gently and firmly. "I cannot utter a falsehood!"

Sir Basil's face blanched, and his whole frame quivered like a reed. "What mean you, Gertrude?" he exclaimed frantically endeavoring to take her hand.

"I wish Sir Basil, you would spare me the pain of answering you. Pray talk to my grandfather."

"No, no, Gertrude!" he burst forth; "from your own lips I must learn my fate!"

"I entreat your patience until my grandfather's return home," said she, "Indeed, indeed, Sir Basil, you had better talk to him upon this subject."

"Wherefore all this mystery in your replies Gertrude?" he demanded. "Am I hateful in your presence?"

"Oh, no, indeed, Sir Basil."

"Then why do you say you never can be mine?"

"My grandfather will explain all to you."

"All! repeated, he with a look of bewilderment. "Great heavens, what is there to explain to me?"

She was silent.

"What—what means all this mystery? I must know!" he cried out, vehemently. "I—oh, forgive me, forgive me, Gertrude," he added, in a softer tone. "I really know not what I am saying. I am frenzied—I cannot bear this state of doubt. Have some mercy on me and no longer keep me in this horrible suspense!"

During the above frantic appeal, Sir Basil had seized Gertrude's unwilling hands, and was on his knees again, suing at her feet.

Still she was silent.

"Be not cruel!" proceeded the young baronet, in broken accents. "Beautiful Gertrude, my heart throbs only for you!"

"I wish it were otherwise," she rejoined, much distressed.

"It cannot surely be that you——"

"That I love another?" interrupted she, with averted head. "Yes, it is so."

He uttered a sharp cry, and shudderingly dropped her hands.

"I am sorry and pained to make such a confession," Gertrude proceeded, stammeringly; "but you drew it from me; I did not make it willingly. I would rather have left you to hear the disclosure from my grandfather; it would have been better to——"

"Gertrude Gilruth!" the baronet broke forth, in a hoarse voice, "my life will henceforth be a blank and a misery to me; and you, you have made it such!"

And starting to his feet once more, he paced the room with rapid strides. Suddenly he stopped, his face white as snow, his eyes glaring wildly.

"Who is this favored, happy lover of yours, Miss Gilruth?" he inquired, sternly. "Nay, never heed me! What right have I to ask you such a question? Pray forgive me—I think I am going mad!"

Saying which, Sir Basil resumed his rapid pacings to and fro. Presently he dashed out of the room, flung open the cottage door, rushed out into the street, and was gone.

Sir Basil Dovetree's nature was not at all a secretive one; and moreover than that, he had not sufficient patience to bear trouble of any kind without complaint. Into Warrington's ear he therefore poured, at once, the whole relation of his heart's recent disappointment.

With a placid countenance the creole listened to his friend's tale. His bosom was all aglow with triumph and satisfaction, for the explanation which had just occurred between Sir Basil and Gertrude Gilruth was the very event which Warrington had been longing for.

The young baronet might now be molded according to the creole's pleasure—might be drawn into any extravagance, dissipation, riot or wrong. Sir Basil, he knew, would henceforth become thoroughly reckless of what he did, and might perhaps be led to squander away his gold without the least reflection or regard. His character had been closely studied by this seeming friend, who had studied it for his own peculiar purpose, and he was acquainted with all its vacillation and all its weakness.

Out of that weakness Warrington hoped to draw his own strength, and on the ruins of Sir Basil's fortunes he contemplated building his own.

There was no necessity to weave any very subtle meshes to ensnare the young baronet; for the simplest maze would confuse his brain, and the slightest entanglement would be likely to confine and hold him firmly.

The creole had an easy task before him.

"So Gertrude Gilruth has actually refused your love? I can hardly credit your tale!"

"You may do so, for it is a true one," Sir Basil replied, his head leaning on his open palms, his voice sounding hoarsely.

Refused to become the legitimate mistress of Ravensmarsh?"

"Ay, that she did, Warrington."

"Without a moment's consideration?"

"Without a moment's pause. But she loves another."

"Oh!" exclaimed the creole, his features suddenly brightening. "And who is that other whom she loves?"

"She did not inform me," answered Sir Basil, very simply.

"Oh, woman—woman!" Warrington ejaculated, with a shrug and a pretended sneer.

THE MIRACLE OF THE GULLS.

Why a Fine of $5 Is Imposed for Killing This Bird in Utah.

Most interesting of the birds that we saw on our daily way to the pasture were the gulls, great, beautiful, snowy creatures, who looked strangely out of place so far away from the seashore. Stranger, too, than their change of residence was their change of manners, from the wild, unapproachable sea birds, soaring and diving, and apparently spending their lives on wings. From this high place in our thoughts, from this realm of poetry and mystery, to come down almost to the tameness of the barnyard fowl is a marvelous transformation, and one is tempted to believe the solemn announcement of the Salt Lake phophet that the Lord sent them to his chosen people.

The occasion of this alleged special favor to the Latter Day Saints was the advent, about twenty years ago, of clouds of grasshoppers, before which the crops of the Western states and territories were destroyed as by fire. It was then, in their hour of greatest need, when the food upon which depended a whole people was threatened, that these beautiful winged messengers appeared. In large flocks they came, from no one knows where, and settled, like so many sparrows, all over the land, devouring almost without ceasing the hosts of the foe. The crops were saved, and all Deseret rejoiced. Was it any wonder that a people trained to regard the head of their church as the direct representative of the Highest should believe these to be really birds of God, and should accordingly cherish them? Well would it be for themselves if other Christian people were equally believing and protected and cherished other winged messengers sent just as truly to protect their crops.

The shrewd man who wielded the destinies of his people beside the Salt lake secured the future usefulness of what they considered the miraculous visitation by fixing a penalty of $5 upon the head of every gull in the territory. And now, the birds having found congenial nesting-places on solitary islands in the lake, their descendants are so fearless and so tame that they habitually follow the plow like a flock of chickens, rising from almost under the feet of the indifferent horses and settling down at once in the furrow behind, seeking out grubs and larvae and mice and moles that the plow has disturbed in its passage. The Mormon cultivator has sense enough to appreciate such service, and no man or boy dreams of lifting a finger against his best friend.

Extraordinary indeed was this sight to eyes accustomed to seeing every bird that attempts to render such like service shot and snared and swept from the face of the earth. Our hearts warmed toward the "Sons of Zion," and our respect for their intelligence increased as we hurried down to the field to see this latter-day wonder.—Mrs. Olive Thorne Miller in the Atlantic.

CHINA HAS A SANDOW.

Wonderful Feat of a Chinaman at a Militia Examination.

A Hankow correspondent gives an account of the discovery of a young Samson at the militia caminationsx. There were about 900 candidates, of whom sixty-three gained the degree of promoted men. They are tried in archery, lifting, sword and spear exercise, etc., also in writing. The senior wrangler was a young man, only 22 years of age fro Kinhua. His particular success was in lifting, and his strength is estimated at 800 catties (the cattie is about one and one-half pounds,) though, really, they say it is only 600 catties. This is tested by lifting a square stone of 300 catties weight as high as the breast. This man not only lifted it to that height, but gave it a toss up and caught it as it came down.

The governor was astonished and asked him to repeat the feat. The young man supposing that he was suspected of having some secret help, threw off his coat, exposed his bare body, and repeated the feat to the entire satisfaction of the judges. Though in archery and other practices his skill was not conspicuous, he was awarded the first place on the list of successful candidates, and the governor did him the honor of asking who had been his teacher and trainer. He replied that it was his father, who was himself a military officer and had served at Ningpo and elsewhere.

The Grocer Did Not Advertise.

A few days ago a prominent citizen cut into a pound of butter which he had purchased at a grocery whose proprietor does not advertise and found therein a small tin box, which contained a piece of paper bearing the following written in a neat feminine hand:

"I am a girl of 18 years, good looking and an excellent housekeeper. Should this be found by some unmarried Christian gentleman, will he please write to the following address," etc.

The finder being a bachelor decided to unravel the affair and succeeded only to destroy the romance. The girl who had written the note had died many years ago, leaving an aged husband and a grown family.—Pittsburg Messenger.

A DEAL OF WASHINGTON'S.

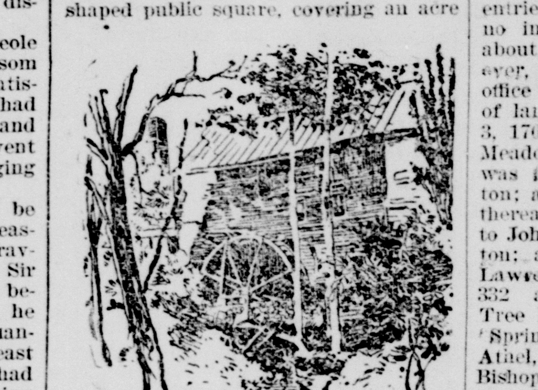

HISTORY OF A SHREWD LAND PURCHASE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Method of a Crafty Bargain—Washington's Old Flouring Mill, Built in the Wilderness 120 Years Ago, Still in Operation.

And they went Washington mad!

By they the people of Perryopolis, a little town in the back woods of Fayette county, Pa., are meant. How the accident of calling the place Perryopolis ever occurred no one can tell, because, perhaps, the godfathers were afterward ashamed of the awful mistake they had made. But those who came later tried hard to rectify the error. They have fairly beggared the resources of the name in their efforts to perpetuate it.

First, they fashioned the plan of the town after that of the capital city, because it was named after their patron saint. The central part is an octagon shaped public square, covering an acre and a half. Two main streets cross the square at right angles, and between the streets are two alleys, running diagonally. The square is thus the exact focussing point of eight thoroughfares, radiating from it like wheel spokes from the hub. The earliest inhabitants built their houses around the square and then along the avenues. When it became necessary to lay out a cross street it took the form of a circle, completely surrounding the square and making of each block a sort of trapezoid. Then, as the years wore on, another cross street of the same kind was added and then another.

Washington's Mill.

Then the christeners had an inning. They called the public square, or rather octagon, "Washington square," and the main street that intersected it "Washington street." Of course an alley is not a street, so "Washington alley," as they named one of the narrower ways, did not conflict with the other. The site of the town and all the surrounding country generally was named "Washington's Meadows," and the little stream which flowed through all this lovely land from the low hills to the southeast was "Washington's Run." Part of its course lay along "Washington Bottoms," and it fell as Washington's Falls" over a great ledge of rock a short distance north of the town and set the wheels going in "Washington's Mill" to make "Washington flour."

Everything entitled to a name had and has "Washington" tacked onto it. The family that failed to get in the name of Washington somewhere in the naming of the first offspring was subjected to a sort of social ostracism by Perryopolitan society. Later editions of the same family were not subjected to such conditions, but as regards the first the rule was invariable. In fact, "Washington" is a sort of generic title for everything, animate and inanimate, in or about Perryopolis.

How It All Happened.

How did it come about?

One must go back a good distance into history to get at the starting point of the story.

On next July 9 it will be 139 years since what a certain popular writer would term "a good fight" took place between Englishmen on the one side and French and Indians on the other, on the banks of the Monongahela river, in Pennsylvania, only a few miles from its mouth.

There were good fighters on the English side and they tried hard to make the best of it after they were surprised, but at length craft and numbers prevailed against them, and the throng of panic stricken soldiers, borderers and camp followers mingled in confusion with riderless horses and driverless cannon and wagon teams, all flying helter-skelter across the shallow summer stream, told that Braddock, the egotist, was defeated.

He himself paid the penalty of his obstinacy, and deeply he repented of it as he lay mortally wounded after the battle on the south side of the Monongahela, still in plain view of skulking groups of savages searching the ravines and gullies of the battle field for unfound scalps. Surrounding the silken couch upon which the dying commander reclined was a group of faithful friends, ready to defend or die with him should occasion arise. But the victors attacked them not. The triumph was dearly won, and the fear that Gen. Dunbar might be close at hand prevented them from attempting more than they had already accomplished.

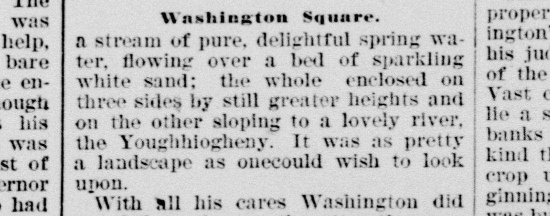

Among that group about Gen. Braddock was one, a tall, dignified young officer. Just at that time he appeared in ill health, as one who should have been on a sick bed instead of fighting battles. Col. George Washington was really sick. He had been suffering with a fever for some time and it was only his indomitable pluck that kept him on his feet at all. Previous to this hour Braddock would not listen to Washington's proffered advice regarding the proper method to cope with redskin warfare. Now, in this bitter moment, he sought it.

Evening was close at hand, when, as the result of that consultation, Washington mounted his horse and galloped swiftly up the river with dispatches for Gen. Dunbar. Three miles away he was joined by two soldiers. Night came, and with it the storm that usually follows the battle. But the riders kept on, through dark, gloomy forests, across streams and up and down mountains. Sometimes they noted their way by the fitful flashes of lightning; again they felt their way along by hand. Sick, sad and oppressed though he was, Washington cared little for obstacles if progress could be made.

At daybreak the storm clouds passed away, but it was not until the sun shot his first golden spear across the hilltops that the messengers drew rein for the first rest in all that long, wearisome journey.

An Alluring Prospect.

A fair scene was that upon which Washington gazing that morning. A wide table land it was, resting on the hilltops. Flat almost as a board, covered with rich grass and here and there a clump of trees growing along a stream of pure, delightful spring water, flowing over a bed of sparkling white sand; the whole enclosed on three sides by still greater heights and on the other sloping to a lovely river, the Youghiogheny. It was as pretty a landscape as onecould wish to look upon.

Washington Square.

With all his cares Washington did not fail to observe the attractive surroundings. He took careful note of its advantages. It had many, but first of all it was an ideal location for a "plantation," as they called the farm in those days.

The future head of this great nation was but twenty-three years of age at that time, but he knew the value of land. Therefore he did not allow that splendid piece of Fayette county land to go out of his recollection, though years intervened before he had opportunity to carry out his schemes concerning it. Through all the interesting periods following the Braddock episode that "promised land" was kept in his mind's eye. A dozen years later his chance came. He wrote to his old friend, Captain William Crawford, of Stewart's Crossings (now New Haven,) as follows:—

"I then desired the favor of you (as I now understood rights might now be had for the lands which have fallen within the Pennsylvania line,) to look me out a tract of about fifteen hundred, two thousand or more acres, somewhere in your neighborhood, meaning only by this, that it may be contiguous, to your own settlement as such a body of good land can be found."

A Shrewd Land Dealer.

Few of those people who revere the memory of our first President will believe that one formed in so fine a mould was ready and willing to transgress a law for his own private gain, yet the continuation of this same letter shows that he was not averse to doing so or engaging in any of the petty trickery of a common real estate jobber when his own personal ends were concerned.

Here is the evidence:—"It is possible, but I do not know that it really is the case, that the custom in Pennsylvania will not admit so large a quantity of land as I require to be entered together; if so, this may be arranged by making several entries to the same amount if the expenses of doing it are not too heavy."

He does not say exactly how the entries were to be made, and we have no information how Crawford went about the business. It is known, however, that on the opening of the land office of the proprietaries for the sale of land west of the mountains, April 3, 1769, a piece of land called "The Meadows," amounting to 329 acres, was transferred to George Washington; another piece of like amount, or thereabouts, called "The Forks," went to John Augusta (Augustine) Washington; another called "Bear Hills," to Lawrence Washington; "Deer Range," 332 acres, to Thomas Jones; "Crab Tree Run," 330 ocres, to John Paty; "Spring Run," 331 ocres, to William Atael, and "Flatt," 319 acres, to John Bishop. No further transactions are recorded, but the reports of the General's executors in 1802 showed that they belonged to him.

Be that as it may, immediately Washington secured possession he set about improving the place. He sent workingmen to build houses and a mill and slaves to work on the plantation. Remains of some of these improvements still exist. The visitor to Perryopolis who made his way from Layton Station, on the Youghiogheny Railroad will see the flourmill Washington built still in operation and practically in the same condition it was when it left his hands more than a century ago. It is located in a ravine near the town and the machinery is still put in motion by water power derived from Washington Run, which here makes its way down a steep declivity. A family named Smith are the present owners. They pride themselves greatly on its possession, as well as from the fact that it has been in their hands ever since it passed from the control of its original proprietor.

A Costly Venture.

Probably it was the construction of this building that first wearied Washington of his bargain. He always liked the place and spent considerable time there, residing the while with Colonel Simpson, his overseer or superintendent. But before it was finished that mill cost him a lot of money.

Although commenced in 1774, several years passed before it was fairly completed. No sooner was the work fairly commenced than the Indians would become troublesome the laborers would get frightened and shortly desert to the protection of old Redstone Fort, a few miles away. Block house wer built in the vicinity of the mill in the hope that they would rely on them for protection in case of attack, but the first fresh atrocity of the redskins, who were continually raiding the frontiers at that time, would create a new panic. In a few minutes the whole force would have disappeared and not be heard of again until the fort was reached. Valentine Crawford who had succeeded his brother as Washington's agent, wrote about this time:—"I consider it a pity that the mill was ever begun in these times."

Finally Washington set about to dispose of the whole business. The Revolutionary War, then going on, prevented him from giving it the attention it demanded, so that it was not until 1789 that he succeeded in leasing it to Colonel Isaac Shreve, one of his old army comrades, who finally bought it outright in 1795.

The Abandoned Glass House.

With the property went all the slaves belonging to Washington. One of these was a great favorite of the General, and the poor darky in after years never tired of sounding the praise of his former master. Funty Munty—so he was called—became famous in the history of old Fayette on account of his interesting recollections. He lived to be 116 years of age, dying as recently as 1875. According to the Fayette county records Funty Munty was valued at £60 in the 30's, but had fallen in value to £10 at the opening of the rebellion.

Visited by Lafayette.

From a town situated as Perryopolis is, away from all railroads, navigable streams or main thoroughfares, that might bring it a sort of transient importance, it is singularly fortunate in historical or generally interesting incident. In 1825 the popular General Lafayette stopped there while on his famous tour of the states. From a porch of a building on one of the eastern sides of the public square he addressed a multitude of people who had assembled to give him welcome. Lafayette had promised to speak the same day at Rehoboth Church, six miles away, and so great was the enthusiasm that a chain of sentinels was stationed all along the road leading there. Each one of the men passed the signal of Lafayette's starting from Perryopolis to Rehoboth by waving a red handkerchief to the other. In less than three minutes the roar of cannon announcing the fact could be heard at the latter place.

Within recent years Perryopolis has taken more interest in the affairs of the outside world than ever before. Previously, the people seemed satisfied to live in the recollection of the past. In fact, it was really all they had to live for in some respects. They had very little communication with other points on account of the difficulty in reaching them. For that reason, perhaps, little if any improvement was made. Those who lived there were generally to the manor born, comfortably endowed and satisfied with their happy, if humdrum, existence. In half a century but three houses were built and the town to-day is practically what it was at the beginning. The addition of a few modern styled verandas, awnings, etc., however, have given the old buildings a newer appearance than they are really entitled to.

There is hardly any doubt that with proper transportation facilities Washington's famous plantation would verify his judgment. It is the center of one of the best fruit districts in the state. Vast coal fields, heretofore unworked, lie a short distance southward. Great banks of the finest white sand, just the kind that a glass manufacturer wants, crop up everywhere. About the beginning of the century a glass house was built, which was kept in continuous operation up to within a score of years ago, when the disadvantageous situation rendered competition with other works of the kind out of the question, notwithstanding the abundant sand stores that it could draw upon so freely if it chose.

Facing a Dire Dilemma.

We have a good, gentle family horse that we are anxious to exchange for a good "possum" dog or a reasonable amount of fish bait. There is positively nothing wrong with the horse but his voracious appetite. We have had him with us now about three weeks and he has eaten up three loads of cypress shingles, two lot gates, licked the bottom out of a cast-iron sugar kettle and commenced on the gable end of our residence, and the fact is we have just got to swap, sell or kill, or be without a house or home.—Hawkinsville, Ga., Dispatch.

HOBBIES OF NOTED WOMEN.

Actors and Singers Particularly Noticeable for Their Odd Fads.

The princess of Wales has a mania for collecting postage stamps. Queen Victoria's hobby finds vent in the collection of curious coins. The late Comtesse Ruspoli spent many years of her life in collecting Napoleonic relics and succeeded in acquiring a very valuable assortment.

Professional women are, according to the Philadelphia Times, most given to this sort of thing. Clara Morris and Mrs. Langtry dote on horses, the latter having put to good use her love of them by the discretion she exercises in buying those that win many a purse for her on the turf.

Mrs. Bernard Beere buys mechanical dolls as other women invest in bon bons, and her collection is a large and valuable one. Fanny Davenport goes in for antique jewelry and odd hair pins, while Pauline Hall's more modern taste inclines her toward sapphires and turquoises. It is said she possesses more beautiful marquise rings than any woman in the profession.

Christine Nilsson has a fancy for fans of rare lace and exquisite workmanship. This little hobby is one of the most expensive ones that can be thought of, and unless one possesses royal friends or a royal pocketbook the mania should be transferred to something less apt to bankrupt one.

Agnes Repplier, as a representative literary woman, divides her time between her essays and a large and interesting family of cats that she adores. Bernhardt's fads are too numerous to mention, while there are many women in private life who let their fancy run rampant on shoes, old silver, laces, autographs and in fact hundreds of queer fancies, for individual tastes lie in different directions, and the world of women is ever growing larger.

KNOWN OF ALL OBSERVERS.

The Bride and Groom Unable to Say Why They Attracted so Much Attention.

One stormy day recently a handsome carriage came dashing down Fifth avenue, New York, with a yard of white ribbon flying at the pole, says a correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch. Everybody paused long enough to take a second look at it, and everybody who did saw more white ribbon tied in the door handles. As it went by the cabmen congregated in front of the Fifth Avenue hotel turned and stared, and the gentlemen loungers within rubbed their noses against the plate glass at the curious sight. Behind the carriage and pendant from the axle swung a dainty white kid slipper by a white ribbon. And the wind blew and the snow and rain swept by in vicious gusts, and the flying mud and water splashed the white ribbon and flecked the delicate little slipper; but the bright young couple, snugly wrapped to the chin on the back seat, were blissfully unconscious of all. It is possible they may have wondered how everybody seemed to know that they were just married and were on their way to the railway station for the happy wedding tour. Perhaps they marvelled that one carriage on Fifth avenue among so many should attract so much attention, and why everybody smiled and beckoned to his fellow and smiled again. "We're married," was thus flaunted in the face of all New York. The street urchins shouted a wild approval as the carriage passed and some of them yelled: "Git on to the bride!" "Good-by, darling!" and so on, after the fashion of the gamin world, while the big black coachman on the box grinned from behind his big astrakhan livery and was the envied of his kind. If that young couple entertained any doubts as to the reason for all these unexpected demonstrations they were probably duly enlightened when they reached the station. Their friends who sent them thus gayly heralded on their wedding journey possibly enjoyed the joke better than the newly made bride and groom.

A New Method of Exchanging Messages Between Ships.

A new method of signaling through water is the invention of Capt. Neale, and is intended for the exchange of messages and the carrying on of conversation between ships on the sea or on rivers, whether moving or stationary, or between ships and lighthouses and harbors, forts or piers on the shore. Communication is effected without any connection whatever between the two objects except the body of water in which the ships float or the lighthouse stands. The system utilizes a well known law of acoustics. If a musical note in a given key be sounded, an object capable of emitting sound in the same key will, under certain conditions, sympathetically respond with a sound similar to that which induced it, it being, of course, a primary condition that the two objects shall be normally tuned in unison. Capt. Neale's invention is based on this principle, and, utilizing the high conductivity of water for the transmission of sound, he has constructed a signaling apparatus consisting of a transmitting and receiving instrument, which are effectively operated without being in any way connected with each other, except through the medium of water. In the recent test the apparatus was mounted on two punts, moored about two-thirds of a mile apart, and carried a transmitter and a receiver respectively. The transmitter consists of a bell about sixteen inches in diameter, attached to the lower end of a framing, which is fixed to the side of the punt, at the upper end of which is a crank handle. This handle, worked from the punt, actuates a double beat hammer, which strikes and sounds a bell submerged about six feet. The Morse code is employed. The receiving apparatus consists of a pair of metallic drums about ten inches in diameter, open at one end and fixed, mouth to mouth, upon a piece of board placed between them. These drums, suspended in the water, are connected up with a small battery, and through it with a tape-recording instrument. Messages were correctly transmitted and recorded. The speed of operating was somewhat slow, as the signaling had to be carried on by hand instead of by electricity, which will shortly be utilized. The trial, however, was most successful, and it is said to have demonstrated the practical character of the invention and the correctness of the principles upon which it is based.

A New Merry-Go-Round.

A writer in Youth's Companion tells of a new merry-go-round game for children. This evolution from an old game is full of mirth. A row is formed, the children taking hold of hands. They are to imitate the movements of the leader. They begin to move to the following ditty, recited in monotone:

I put my right foot in,
I put my left foot out,
I give myself a shake, a shake, a shake
And turn myself about.

The class recites the ditty in action in harmony with the leader, each putting out the right foot and turning. But the leader changes the ditty from right foot to left foot, or right or left arm, and if any one makes a mistake and puts out the wrong foot or arm, that player is to be turned out of the society in the following way, which is clearly indicated by the recitation:

He puts his left in,
He puts his right foot out,
And we'll give him a shake, a shake, a shake,
And then we'll turn him out.

The play goes on until all, or nearly all, have made mistakes and are turned out. Those turned out become a committee to detect the mistakes of the others. If the players become too expert the rhyme may be suddenly turned to the eyes:

I shut my right eye in,
I look my right eye out, etc.

The leader may easily disconcert those whose long remain in the class by sudden changes in the rhyme. The imitation of the "shake, a shake, a shake," and the whirling about is lively and amusing, and the turning out of those who make mistakes by giving them a shake is a frolic.

Rats Forced to Keep Gnawing.

Have you any idea why it is that rats mice and squirrels are continually gnawing at something? They do not do this for "pure devilment," as people generally imagine, but because they are forced to. Animals of that class, especially the rats, have teeth which continue to grow as long as their owner lives. In the human species the teeth are developed from pulps which are absorbed and disappear as soon as the second set are full grown, but in the case of the much maligned rat the pulp supply is perpetual, and is continually secreting materials by which the incisors gain in length. This being the case, the poor creature is compelled to keep up his regular gnawing operations in order to keep his teeth ground off to a proper length.—St. Louis Republic.

Did it ever occur to you that the man who will not properly bed his cows is the last one to brush off the filth that may get on the udder from such neglect?

The Grip
Has shown by its sudden attacks, its terrible prostration, and its serious, often fatal results, that it is a disease to be feared. For a fully developed case of the Grip, the care of a skilled physician is necessary.
To Prevent the Grip
we confidently recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies the blood, keeps the kidneys and liver in healthy action, gives strength where it is needed, and keeps up the health-tone so that the system readily throws off attacks of the Grip or of Diphtheria, Typhoid Fever, Pneumonia, etc.
After the Grip
Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequaled for purifying the blood and restoring strength.
Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures
Hood's Pills cure all liver ills, biliousness jaundice, indigestion, sick headache.

CHIEF OF THE COMANCHES.

Romantic Story of Quanah Parker and His White Mother.

Quanah Parker is chief of the Comanches says the Little Rock Gazette. Years ago a wagon train was attacked in Texas by the raiding and marauding Comanches and all but one infant girl killed. She was raised by the chief and married his son, who, at the death of his father, was also chief. The rangers defeated the Indians in a battle and captured the woman and her infant child. She could only talk Comanche and had almost lost all resemblance to the white race. She was taken to her people, but she longed for her Indian home and her husband, and soon pined away and died. The child was put at school and was being raised as a white child. He was called by the name his mother was always saying "Quanah," the name of his father. A bitter warfare was during all this time kept up unremittingly. It is history that there was always war on the border. At length they succeeded in recapturing the child. He was much more like a white person in looks than his mother, after her long captivity, and he also had the ways and education of a white man. He was chief when his father died and has been for a number of years. He held the surname of his mother, having an an Indian given name and an English surname. Owing to his education and his mother's treatment while with them, he has always been friendly with the whites. He has done much to make peace, and trying to civilize his tribe. He favors and works hard with his people for allotment in severalty of their lands, and the sale of the surplus to the government. He recognizes the advantages of his people from contact with the white man, and if the Comanches ever amount to anything in civilization it will be due to the efforts of Quanah Parker.

Curing Boiler Incrustation by Petroleum.

Petroleum, which is one of the most useful liquids in commercial use, has appeared in a new role. It is said that it affords the best remedy yet known for boiler incrustation. The petroleum is either squirted against the inside walls of the boiler after the latter has been cleaned, or it is added to the water of the boiler when full, so that when the water is slowly run off the petroleum acts gradually on the sedimentary deposit, rendering it so loose and brittle that it can be easily removed by tools, or even by a powerfull stream of water. So far no prejudicial action of the petroleum on the boiler plates has been noticed. It is said that the state railways administration in Prussia has adopted petroleum as an incrustation-removing medium throughout the whole of its lines.

Ugly Tempers
Are a product of bad digestion. Your dyspeptic is almost invariably a cross-patch. The way to renew cheerfulness of disposition and an equabl temper soured by indigestion, is to take a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which not only banishes dyspepsia, but also relieves billiousness, constipation, chills and fever, rheumatism and kidney trouble. Use it with persistence three times a day.

Throughout the entire world there are annually about 180,000 suicides.

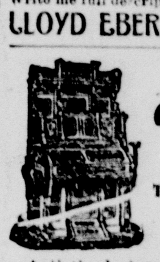

KNOWLEDGE
Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.
Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.
Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

"August Flower"
"One of my neighbors, Mr. John Gilbert, has been sick for a long time. All thought him past recovery. He was horribly emaciated from the inaction of his liver and kidneys. It is difficult to describe his appearance and the miserable state of his health at that time. Help from any source seemed impossible. He tried your August Flower and the effect upon him was magical. It restored him to perfect health to the great astonishment of his family and friends." John Quibell, Holt, Ont.

MERCURIAL Mr. J. C. Jones, of Fulton, Arkansas, says of S.S.S. "About ten years ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison. Leading physicians prescribed medicine after medicine, which I took without any relief. I also tried mercurial and potash remedies, with unsuccessful results, but which brought on an attack of mercurial rheumatism that made my life one of agony. After suffering RHEUMATISM four years I gave up all remedies and began using S.S.S. After taking several bottles I was entirely cured and able to resume work.
S.S.S. Is the greatest medicine for blood poisoning to-day on the market."

CLIP. SAVE AND SEND TO US
A complete set of 13 advertisements, of which this is No. 9. The set is worth $25, and we will allow you that amount for it in the following way: If sent to us all at one time by a regular subscriber to this paper immediately after the last one appears, together with the name and address of both subscriber and paper, and dates of papers from which they are clipped, WE WILL ALLOW YOU $25 TOWARD THE PURCHASE OF ONE OF OUR NEW, LARGE SIZE, ALL STEEL FEED CUTTERS, WORTH $40. Only one Feed Cutter to any one person.
This makes the cash payment only $15 for this Feed Cutter, which will be found as superior to any now in use as the Aermotor was to anything in existence when it first appeared and will drive from the field all competitors and take and hold the trade in Feed Cutters as the Aermotor, the Aermotor Steel Fixed and Steel Tilting Tower have in Windmills and Towers.
The talent which the Aermotor Company has shown in devising, revolutionizing, getting and holding the windmill business of the world, can be turned to many fields in the agricultural implement line and it proposes to show what it can do by taking up a number of articles, making them of steel and putting them in their final shape at a single stroke as was done in the case of the Windmill and Steel Tower, and it proposes to furnish them at a greatly reduced price.
This Feed Cutter, for the present, will only be furnished on the above terms. THESE TERMS GIVE TO THIS SERIES OF 13 ADVERTISEMENTS A CASH VALUE OF $25. We shall offer other articles for which we will accept these advertisements in single copies of them, in part payment. One will be a Steel Hand Truck, in which we feel a special pride in showing our skill as revisers and improvers of staple articles. The cash requirement with this will be ridiculously small.
The third advertisement in this series will show a Steel Circular Saw and Frame, for farm and sawmill use. It is a PERFECT POLE SAW WITH PERFECT SAFETY GUARDS and runs with very much less power than ordinary buzz saws and has a better saw. THIS $40 SAW AND FRAME WILL BE GIVEN FOR $15 AND FIVE COPIES CLIPPED AS ABOVE OF ADVERTISEMENT No. 2.
In localities where we can we are going to make liberal offers to accept copies of these advertisements in part payment for Windmills. If you have any thought of using a windmill this year write us at once, stating what you think you will need, whether Pumping or Geared, and if possible we will make you a liberal offer. The past year, though one of unparalleled financial disturbance and business depression was one of great prosperity to the Aermotor Co. The fact that the Aermotor Co. in the past six years has Lessened the Cost of Wind Power to the Consumer to One-Sixth of its former Price has redounded greatly to its benefit and has brought to its factory an enormous volume of business. Even at the very low prices at which we sell Steel Windmills and Steel Towers, made in the most perfect manner, of the most perfect material, and GALVANIZED-AFTER-COMPLETION, THUS PERFECTLY PROTECTING EVERY PORTION OF THE METAL, it is possible to save a few cents on each outfit, and these few cents on the enormous number of outfits are wholly satisfactory to the Aermotor Co., which has always derived more pleasure from the service it has rendered a great number of people and from the pride it takes in doing well whatever it puts its hands to, than from the money it makes from its enterprise.

This year, because it buys its material more cheaply and expects an enormous increase in its ever growing business, it offers its patrons a vast increase in the quantity and quality of material employed in the construction of its Steel Towers. The accompanying diagram, 2 1-2 x 2 1-2 shows the smallest angle that will be used by it in the corner posts of Towers, even for the 8-ft. wheel. For the 16-ft. we use 4 x 4. Thousands of tons of Angles for Towers, cold-rolled and very straight and perfect are now being delivered at our works. Others who have a few tons, and therefore a year's supply, of 2 x 2 angle which they are using for 8-ft., 10-ft., and even for 12-ft. wheels, will read this paragraph with surprise and sorrow, since we have not previously given them any information concerning what we will use for '94.
The Aermotor Co. proposes to distribute $500 IN CASH IN PRIZES for the best essays written by the wife, son or daughter of a farmer or user of a windmill, answering the question, "WHY SHOULD I USE AN AERMOTOR?" For conditions of competition and amounts and numbers of prizes send for particulars to the Aermotor Co., Chicago, or to its branches, at San Francisco, Kansas City, Lincoln, Neb., Sioux City, Iowa, Minneapolis, Buffalo, or 65 Park Place, New York City. Aermotors, Pumping and Geared same price. All Steel, all Galvanized-After-Completion, delivered free on cars at Chicago and shipped to any one, anywhere at the following prices:
8-ft. $25. 12-ft. $50. 16-ft. $125

The Y. P. S. C. E., of the 1st Congregational Church invite you for an "evening with Longfellow" next Tuesday at the residence of Mrs. Follett on 4th street north. A fine programme is being prepared.

The dance given by Hose Co. No. 2, was a very enjoyable affair and the hall was well filled by merry dancers. The 11th annual will pass into history as one of the most successful parties in the history of the company.

On Monday evening M. Hagberg was surpised at his home on 6th street south by a large party of lady and gentlemen friends, the occasion being the 43d anniversary of his birthday. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed.

J. D. Bruce, the professional and acrobatic skater, of Canada, gave exhibitions of his skill in skating at the covered ice rink on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and they were greatly enjoyed by the audience. Mr. Bruce is certainly an artist in his line.

Some evil minded person did a very mean trick at the covered ice rink on Wednesday night by putting salt on the ice in different places in order to destroy the fine surface. Luckily the proprietors discovered what had been done before any serious damage had resulted.

In speaking of the possible candidates for judge of this district at the coming election the Staples World says: "Hon. Leon E. Lum, of Brainerd, would make an excellent man for the position, and the World would be pleased to see him thus honored, but we fear he could not be induced to accept it."

A telegram from Des Moines, Iowa says that a middleweight contest that will attract interest throughout the Northwest is likely to occur in the near future. A challenge was issued tonight by Mike Fitzpatrick of West Superior, Wis., who offers to fight Harry McCoy to a finish, leaving the time and conditions of the fight to be decided upon by McCoy.

CELEBRATED HIS BIRTHDAY.

Pap. Thomas Post Observes the 162d Anniversary of Washington's Birthday.

Yesterday was the 162d anniversary of the birth of George Washington, and the occasion was celebrated in fitting style by the members of Pap. Thomas Post No. 30, G. A. R., in accordance with General Orders No. 8, Department of Minnesota, Grand Army of the Republic, which was promulgated by the 27th national encampment. The opera house was procured for the occasion, and by special request from the commander of the post, Prof. Hathaway interested the school children, Miss Katie Canan having charge of instruction of scholars who rendered the music. The class of 85 members were perfectly drilled especially in tactics on entering and leaving the stage. Miss Nellie Merritt presided at the piano, and the songs rendernd were received by the audience with enthusiasm.

Prof. Pierce, of the high school, with a committee of five young men, and Miss Minnie Merritt, with a committee of five young ladies, with Mrs. Geo. Forsyth and Mrs. H. Theviot, president and secretary of the Woman's Relief Corps, attended to the stage decorations and embellishments, and the effect was pleasing. Large portraits of George and Martha Washington were suspended directly over the front part of the stage, beautifully decorated with colors and flags. The stage was draped with stars and stripes and the post colors and insignia of the order.

The audience was large and appreciative, the seating capacity being taxed to the utmost, and many were standing during the entire program.

The Germania Maennerchor renderd their peices in very fine shape and were repeatedly encored. The foraging party was rather a surprise to the house as the comrades wanted only cash, while in other days chickens were considered the best of forage; however $13.81 was the result of their trip, the members of the party being Comrades J. M. Martin, A. Nolan, N. M. Maloney and S. Grant.

Washington at Cambridge, by Prof. Hathway, was very interesting and he was applauded at the finish.

Washington as a soldier, by Rev. Geo. West, was a master piece of wit and humor, the remarks being substantial and wholesome as applied to our American liberties.

Several selections were omitted from the programme owing to the lateness of the hour, but the excellence of all that was presented made the evenings entertainment a complete success.

Oil of Arnica is an excellent preparation for chapped hands. At the McFadden Drug Store.

On Friday evening last a meeting of the business men was held at Keene & McFadden's office for the purpose of considering the project of removing the manufacturing concern of P. and E. Wait to this side of the river, and to take under advisement the formation of a stock company. The company manufactures logging sleds and all kinds of tools and implements used by lumbermen, besides snow plows, the patentee of the latter machine, Mr. Brazil, of Sheboygan, being present at the meeting. While no final conclusions were arrived at, it is understood that an effort will be made to secure subscribers sufficient to put in a plant of from $5,000 to $10,000, the gentlemen already interested signifying their willingness to take a majority of the stock.

Liabilities are Large.

The Minneapolis Lumberman has the following to say in regard to the Northern Mill Co.'s assignment:

While the aggregate liabilities are very large there is little doubt but that the enormous assets of the company will be sufficient under proper management to meet all demands in due season. A detailed schedule of the company's affairs will not be ready for a week or more, and at the present time it is only possible to give a rough estimate. It is thought that the liabilities of the company will exceed something over one million dollars, while the assets are roughly placed at $1,600,000. The value of the combined property of the company at both Minneapolis and Brainerd is well known. The company owns a large saw mill and planing mill besides a large stock of lumber in pile and logs in this city, while at Brainerd there is also an extensive manufacturing plant together with a stock of lumber, a large amount of logs and a railroad over 40 miles long, that extends as far north as Leech lake, known as the Brainerd & Northern Minnesota. The latter is a separate corporation, of which the members of the Northern Mill company are members.

A transfer of property made some time ago by the Northern Mill company to the Gull River Lumber company which is the largest creditor. This comprises a lease of the two mills for manufacturning the logs on hand and the business will be conducted without a break the same attention and considerations. J. E. Glass will continue to be identified with the management, but other arrangements have not yet been decided upon. The failure of the Northern Mill company will in no way effect the J. E. Glass Lumber company, as the latter is a stock company and entirely independent in its position. It is a matter of regret on the party of the lumbering fraternity at large that this entrprising company was unable to realize its legitimate end. The property is one of the finest in the northwest, and but for the depression in money affair and business at large in the country during the past year the company would undoubtedly have pulled through in good shape. The officers of the company are well known for their intergrity and honesty of purpose in all their transaction, and they will do the best for their creditors to the very last shilling. All claims for labor will be given the preference and settled as fast as possible.

Chess at the Y. M. C. A.

A remarkable contest was witnessed in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association on Friday evening last when Mr. T. T. Warren engaged six members of the association simultaneously at chess and won four out of six games. Among the gentleman's opponents were some of the best chess players in Brainerd. Mr. Warren stands ready to repeat the contest at any time.

Passed to the Beyond.

George Stickney, aged 45 years, died in the town of Maple Grove on Tuesday, of heart failure. The deceased was in the employ of M. F. Driver, and was loading ties, and when stooping over to lift one end of a tie he fell forward on his face and expired. He had been troubled with heart disease for some time. The funeral was held on Thursday at Ft. Ripley. Three children are left, their mother having died some time previous.

Glen Douglas Green, an 18 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Green, died on Saturday from an abcess, the effects of a severe case of scarlet fever. Mr. and Mrs. Green live at Mapleton, N. D., but the gentleman has been running a tie camp some miles southwest of the city during the winter, and his wife and child came to visit him three weeks ago, the baby contracting the disease on the train with the above result. The funeral was held on Monday, Rev. Geo. West officiating.

Maggie Ellison, the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ellison, died on the 17th inst. of brain fever. The funeral was held on Tuesday, Rev. Tennison conducting the service.

Hazel Scott, the seven months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scott, died on Monday of spinal meningitis. The funeral services occurred on Tuesday, Rev. Geo. West officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Adair are called upon to mourn the death of their only child, Kathleen Mary Adair, aged four months, which occurred Thursday morning, Feb. 22d, from internal convulsions. The funeral takes place this (Friday) afternoon at 4 o'clock, Rev. Fr. Lynch officiating.

Regular Council Meeting.

The city council met in regular session on Monday evening with Ald. Paine, Anderson, Foglestrom and Johnson absent. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted, and the financial report of the city clerk for January was read and accepted. Claims against the city were allowed as follows:

Tribune	$23.18
Larson & Walters, coal	18.00
Slipp Bros., supplies	3.59
Mike Remmels, wood	56.25
Gen. Elec. Co., supplies	1.75
A. Mahlum, recording deeds	3.00
D. M. Clark & Co., supplies	15.53
D. W. Whitford	2.25

Bill of Crow Wing county for $341 for half the expense of putting in sewer to jail was referred to finance committee, and the bill of Slipp Bros. $12.10 was referred to the street committee.

The finance committee was given further time to report.

An unsigned report from the electric light committee in regard to rates was received and referred back with instructions to report at next meeting.

Ordinance No. 114, amending Ordinance No. 105, entitled "An ordinance relating to the cutting, use and sale of ice" received its second reading, and was placed on its final passage and was adopted.

Ordinance No. 115, amending ordinance No. 98, entitled "an ordinance concerning streets, sidewalks and alleys and to prevent injurious, dangerous and unlawful practices in the same" received its first and second reading and was adopted.

Application of I. U. White for the appointment of building inspector was read and ordered filed.

Application and bond of John A. Dennis for liquor license were read, bond approved and license granted.

The council then adjourned.

Rev. Israel Bergstrom, formerly a Baptist clergyman at Brainerd and Mankato, now a convert of the Episcopal denomination, preached at Gethsemane Church last evening, when his reasons were given for having made such a change in his religous convictions. His four reasons for accepting the Episcopal faith were, first, because the church is the fundamental authority; second, the use of prayer books is better than inspirational meditation; third, because the church regards children as members from the first; and fourth, because it is the true center for all church unity. Mr. Bergstrom's address was remarkable for the absence of any criticism on the Baptist Church, his reasons for the change being all positive reasons. He will take a six months' course at the Divinity school at Faribault, after which he will be licensed to take charge, probably of a Swedish mission as he speaks the Scandinavian tongue fluently.—Minneapolis Tribune.

A Little Deceiver.

It cannot be called a little fraud, as it is of too great value and is not to blame for being misused.

Vick's New Branching Aster when cut resembles the chrysanthemum so closely that only experts can tell the difference, and as it comes into flower six weeks before it "mums," and at a time when flowers are scarce, it is a great temptation to the florist to sell these Asters for "mums." The Branching Aster can be easily grow out doors, and the seeds cost only 25 cents per packet, so that every person who has a foot of ground can enjoy a grand treat for almost nothing.

If you want honest goods send 10 cents to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., for Floral Guide, it costs nothing, as the 10 cents may be deducted from first order.

A Trip Up Country.

On Saturday last the writer had the pleasure of visiting several of the lumber camps in the northern part of the county, and for the first time saw what real work in the pineries was. In company with H. J. Spencer, C. H. Paine and A. F. Ferris, we left Brainerd at 8 o'clock in the morning reaching A. T. Kimball's in time for an early dinner. From that place the party drove to Carroll's camp on the Little Pine, where a stop of two hours was made, and during which time the scribe was shown the various workings of camp life in the woods, but the part which was relished most was the culinary department, supper being served at 5 p. m. From Carrol's camp we retraced our steps reaching headquarters on the Cross Lake logging road at 7:30. This company is doing a big business this winter, all their logs being hauled by rail from the woods and dumped into Cross Lake. "Headquarters" as it is called presents a very business like appearance, and the number of buildings give it the appearance of a snug little village, although the place has been built up entirely by the logging firm. There are numerous dwellings and boarding houses, the company's store, depot, round house and various other buildings. The logging trains make four trips a day over the road, and haul 18 cars of logs at a trip. From Cross Lake the party started northwest the objective point being A. Lessard's camp some sixteen miles distant, which was reached at 9:30. Mr. Lessard is engaged in getting out ties and timber for the Cross Lake company, and has just completed a contract for 3200 cords of wood which he has banked on the line of the road. On Sunday morning a trip to Camp four of the Cross Lake Company was made. Here 75 men are employed, and the work of getting out logs is carried on on an extensive scale. The winter's work has been a very satisfactory one, and unless an early break-up comes, many more logs will be banked than was anticipated. On the return trip the camp of L. G. Cook, on Blind Lake, was visited, and a stop of a couple of hours was made. Mr. Cook is about the only lumberman in northern Minnesota who still uses oxen for hauling. On Saturday night the largest load of the season was brought in, measuring 9,370 feet, and containing 50 logs. Excellent work is being done here, the loads during the past ten days averaging 5,100 feet each. Mr. Cook gives his personal attention to the business, dividing his time between the three camps which he is operating. He was "at home" when our party arrived, and made the visit exceedingly pleasant. The return trip to Brainerd was made on Monday after a second nights stop at Lessard's camp.

Columbian Mystery.

The ladies of the G. I. A. of the B. of L. E. will give an entertainment on Tuesday evening next which is termed "A Columbian Mystery" and considerable guessing is being done as to what the mystery is. The admission will be 25 cents for gentlemen and ladies free, while all children accompanied by parents will also be admitted free. The entertainment will take place in the Davis building, next door west of Sanborn's City Hotel on Front street. Music and dancing and a general good time is promised with the mystery to unravel. The attendance will undoubtedly be large.

"What Hath God Wrought!"

The long life of S. F. B. Morse, the inventor of the magnetic telegraph, is one of almost romantic struggle and interest. Born in 1791, he was graduated from Yale College at eighteen, and having strong artistic tastes, studied painting under Allston, which he afterwards followed with success. Returning in 1832 from Europe, he became much interested in a discussion on electricity, and then and conceived the basic idea of telegraphy, the interval in an interrupted current being made long or short at will. But he did not take this up until he failed to be awarded the decorating of the capitol building at Washington. Abandoning painting, he worked for twelve years in poverty and amid many discouragements, until on February 23, 1844, congress made an appropriation for an experimental line between Baltimore and Washington. May 24th, the same year, the line was completed and the words that head this paragraph were sent by the inventor. He rendered possible the present railroad system of our country, for it could be operated in safety only by the aid of the telegraph. Telegraphic operation and synchronized time are what make travel so safe and speedy on the Burlington. For tickets, rates, or any information address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

A house at the corner of Second and Laurel streets, owned by Patsy Clifford and occupied by Stella Brown as a house of illfame, took fire at 1:40 this afternoon from a defective chimney in the second story and was completely wrecked. Most of the furniture was removed from the building. The water pressure was not exactly what could be desired and the department, though early at the scene, labored at a disadvantage. It is understood that the lack of pressure was due to a misunderstanding of the alarm sent in.

Cheap Rates to California.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company has put into effect a series of low round-trip rates to California points. Tickets are good until July 15th, 1894, and are good for stop over under certain conditions.

These rates will enable those desiring to do so, to spend the winter in southern California, or to visit the mid-winter fair to be held at San Francisco. This latter event will undoubtedly be second only to the World's Fair and will repay a visit as it will exhibit the resources and capabilities of California.

Education.

J. Ernest Lane, F. R. C. S., in an address at the commencement exercises of the medical school attached to St. Mary's hospital in London quoted this familiar paragraph, which, while not new, deserves to be published again: "That if a boy destined for a profession were to be taught nothing but reading, writing and arithmetic till he was 11, and after that nothing but Greek, Latin and mathematics till he was 18, at 50 that boy would turn out a more widely cultured, better read man than if in his early years he had been stuffed with geography, history, philosophy and the twopenny-halfpenny fragments of chemistry, botany and zoology, which constitute school science."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Manliness.

Learn from the earliest days to insure your principle against the peril of ridicule. You can no more exercise your reason if you live in the constant dread of laughter than you can enjoy your life if you are in the constant terror of death. If you think it right to differ from the times, and to make a point of morals, do it—however rustic, however antiquated, however pedantic it may appear, do it—not for insolence, but seriously and grandly, as a man who wore a soul of his own in his bosom, and who did not wait till it was breathed into him by the breath of fashion.—Jenness Miller Monthly.

Stopped a Leak With Sawdust.

To stop the leakage of a boat by the use of sawdust appears at the first suggestion ridiculous. It is a common method, however, employed by backwoodsmen of the Adirondack region.

One day a party having considerable baggage discovered upon loading it into a scow at the end of one of the regular "carries" that the boat leaked badly. To delay for repairs would occasion considerable annoyance, and without repairs to proceed seemed impossible.

At this juncture one of the guides said: "I think I can fix it. Just unload the boat again." This was done, and then the guide brought from a sawmill near the spot a quantity of sawdust. This he sprinkled thickly upon the water on either side of the boat.

"Now," continued he, "load up again." This was done, and when the weight again sank the boat the influx of water through the sides and bottom sucked in the sawdust, which finally accumulated in the crevices, swelled under the action of the water and actually stopped the leakage.—New York Herald.

CELEBRATED HIS BIRTHDAY.

Pap. Thomas Post Observes the 162d Anniversary of Washington's Birthday.

Yesterday was the 162d anniversary of the birth of George Washington, and the occasion was celebrated in fitting style by the members of Pap. Thomas Post No. 30, G. A. R., in accordance with General Orders No. 8, Department of Minnesota, Grand Army of the Republic, which was promulgated by the 27th national encampment. The opera house was procured for the occasion, and by special request from the commander of the post, Prof. Hathaway interested the school children, Miss Katie Canan having charge of instruction of scholars who rendered the music. The class of 85 members were perfectly drilled especially in tactics on entering and leaving the stage. Miss Nellie Merritt presided at the piano, and the songs rendernd were received by the audience with enthusiasm.

Prof. Pierce, of the high school, with a committee of five young men, and Miss Minnie Merritt, with a committee of five young ladies, with Mrs. Geo. Forsyth and Mrs. H. Theviot, president and secretary of the Woman's Relief Corps, attended to the stage decorations and embellishments, and the effect was pleasing. Large portraits of George and Martha Washington were suspended directly over the front part of the stage, beautifully decorated with colors and flags. The stage was draped with stars and stripes and the post colors and insignia of the order.

The audience was large and appreciative, the seating capacity being taxed to the utmost, and many were standing during the entire program.

The Germania Maenerchor renderd their peices in very fine shape and were repeatedly encored. The foraging party was rather a surprise to the house as the comrades wanted only cash, while in other days chickens were considered the best of forage; however $13.81 was the result of their trip, the members of the party being Comrades J. M. Martin, A. Nolan, N. M. Maloney and S. Grant.

Washington at Cambridge, by Prof. Hathway, was very interesting and he was applauded at the finish.

Washington as a soldier, by Rev. Geo. West, was a master piece of wit and humor, the remarks being substantial and wholesome as applied to our American liberties.

Several selections were omitted from the programme owing to the lateness of the hour, but the excellence of all that was presented made the evenings entertainment a complete success.

Oil of Arnica is an excellent preparation for chapped hands. At the McFadden Drug Store.

On Friday evening last a meeting of the business men was held at Keene & McFadden's office for the purpose of considering the project of removing the manufacturing concern of P. and E. Wait to this side of the river, and to take under advisement the formation of a stock company. The company manufactures logging sleds and all kinds of tools and implements used by lumbermen, besides snow plows, the patentee of the latter machine, Mr. Brazil, of Sheboygan, being present at the meeting. While no final conclusions were arrived at, it is understood that an effort will be made to secure subscribers sufficient to put in a plant of from $5,000 to $10,000, the gentlemen already interested signifying their willingness to take a majority of the stock.

Liabilities are Large.

The Minneapolis Lumberman has the following to say in regard to the Northern Mill Co.'s assignment:

While the aggregate liabilities are very large there is little doubt but that the enormous assets of the company will be sufficient under proper management to meet all demands in due season. A detailed schedule of the company's affairs will not be ready for a week or more, and at the present time it is only possible to give a rough estimate. It is thought that the liabilities of the company will exceed something over one million dollars, while the assets are roughly placed at $1,600,000. The value of the combined property of the company at both Minneapolis and Brainerd is well known. The company owns a large saw mill and planing mill besides a large stock of lumber in pile and logs in this city, while at Brainerd there is also an extensive manufacturing plant together with a stock of lumber, a large amount of logs and a railroad over 40 miles long, that extends as far north as Leech lake, known as the Brainerd & Northern Minnesota. The latter is a separate corporation, of which the members of the Northern Mill company are members.

A transfer of property made some time ago by the Northern Mill company to the Gull River Lumber company which is the largest creditor. This comprises a lease of the two mills for manufacturning the logs on hand and the business will be conducted without a break the same attention and considerations. J. E. Glass will continue to be identified with the management, but other arrangements have not yet been decided upon. The failure of the Northern Mill company will in no way effect the J. E. Glass Lumber company, as the latter is a stock company and entirely independent in its position. It is a matter of regret on the party of the lumbering fraternity at large that this entrprising company was unable to realize its legitimate end. The property is one of the finest in the northwest, and but for the depression in money affair and business at large in the country during the past year the company would undoubtedly have pulled through in good shape. The officers of the company are well known for their intergrity and honesty of purpose in all their transaction, and they will do the best for their creditors to the very last shilling. All claims for labor will be given the preference and settled as fast as possible.

Chess at the Y. M. C. A.

A remarkable contest was witnessed in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association on Friday evening last when Mr. T. T. Warren engaged six members of the association simultaneously at chess and won four out of six games. Among the gentleman's opponents were some of the best chess players in Brainerd. Mr. Warren stands ready to repeat the contest at any time.

Passed to the Beyond.

George Stickney, aged 45 years, died in the town of Maple Grove on Tuesday, of heart failure. The deceased was in the employ of M. F. Driver, and was loading ties, and when stooping over to lift one end of a tie he fell forward on his face and expired. He had been troubled with heart disease for some time. The funeral was held on Thursday at Ft. Ripley. Three children are left, their mother having died some time previous.

Glen Douglas Green, an 18 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Green, died on Saturday from an abcess, the effects of a severe case of scarlet fever. Mr. and Mrs. Green live at Mapleton, N. D., but the gentleman has been running a tie camp some miles southwest of the city durifg the winter, and his wife and child came to visit him three weeks ago, the baby contracting the disease on the train with the above result. The funeral was held on Monday, Rev. Geo. West officiating.

Maggie Ellison, the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ellison, died on the 17th inst. of brain fever. The funeral was held on Tuesday, Rev. Tennison conducting the service.

Hazel Scott, the seven months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scott, died on Monday of spinal meningitis. The funeral services occurred on Tuesday, Rev. Geo. West officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Adair are called upon to mourn the death of their only child, Kathleen Mary Adair, aged four months, which occurred Thursday morning, Feb. 22d, from internal convulsions. The funeral takes place this (Friday) afternoon at 4 o'clock, Rev. Fr. Lynch officiating.

Regular Council Meeting.

The city council met in regular session on Monday evening with Ald. Paine, Anderson, Foglestrom and Johnson absent. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted, and the financial report of the city clerk for January was read and accepted. Claims against the city were allowed as follows:

Tribune	$23.18
Larson & Walters, coal	18.00
Slipp Bros., supplies	3.10
Mike Remmels, wood	56.25
Gen. Elec. Co., supplies	1.75
A. Mahlum, recording deeds	3.00
D. M. Clark & Co., supplies	15.53
D. W. Whitford	2.25

Bill of Crow Wing county for $341 for half the expense of putting in sewer to jail was referred to finance committee, and the bill of Slipp Bros. $12.10 was referred to the street committee.

The finance committee was given further time to report.

An unsigned report from the electric light committee in regard to rates was received and referred back with instructions to report at next meeting.

Ordinance No. 114, amending Ordinance No. 105, entitled "An ordinance relating to the cutting, use and sale of ice" received its second reading, and was placed on its final passage and was adopted.

Ordinance No. 115, amending ordinance No. 98, entitled "an ordinance concerning streets, sidewalks and alleys and to prevent injurious, dangerous and unlawful practices in the same" received its first and second reading and was adopted.

Application of I. U. White for the appointment of building inspector was read and ordered filed.

Application and bond of John A. Dennis for liquor license were read, bond approved and license granted.

The council then adjourned.

Rev. Israel Bergstrom, formerly a Baptist clergyman at Brainerd and Mankato, now a convert of the Episcopal denomination, preached at Gethsemane Church last evening, when his reasons were given for having made such a change in his religious convictions. His four reasons for accepting the Episcopal faith were, first, because the church is the fundamental authority; second, the use of prayer books is better than inspirational meditation; third, because the church regards children as members from the first; and fourth, because it is the true center for all church unity. Mr. Bergstrom's address was remarkable for the absence of any criticism on the Baptist Church, his reasons for the change being all positive reasons. He will take a six months' course at the Divinity school at Faribault, after which he will be licensed to take charge, probably of a Swedish mission as he speaks the Scandinavian tongue fluently.—Minneapolis Tribune.

A Little Deceiver.

It cannot be called a little fraud, as it is of too great value and is not to blame for being misused.

Vick's New Branching Aster when cut resembles the chrysanthemum so closely that only experts can tell the difference, and as it comes into flower six weeks before it "mums," and at a time when flowers are scarce, it is a great temptation to the florist to sell these Asters for "mums." The Branching Aster can be easily grow out doors, and the seeds cost only 25 cents per packet, so that every person who has a foot of ground can enjoy a grand treat for almost nothing.

If you want honest goods send 10 cents to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., for Floral Guide, it costs nothing, as the 10 cents may be deducted from first order.

A Trip Up Country.

On Saturday last the writer had the pleasure of visiting several of the lumber camps in the northern part of the county, and for the first time saw what real work in the pineries was. In company with H. J. Spencer, C. H. Paine and A. F. Ferris, we left Brainerd at 8 o'clock in the morning reaching A. T. Kimball's in time for an early dinner. From that place the party drove to Carroll's camp on the Little Pine, where a stop of two hours was made, and during which time the scribe was shown the various workings of camp life in the woods, but the part which was relished most was the culinary department, supper being served at 5 p. m. From Carrol's camp we retraced our steps reaching headquarters on the Cross Lake logging road at 7:30. This company is doing a big business this winter, all their logs being hauled by rail from the woods and dumped into Cross Lake. "Headquarters" as it is called presents a very business like appearance, and the number of buildings give it the appearance of a snug little village, although the place has been built up entirely by the logging firm. There are numerous dwellings and boarding houses, the company's store, depot, round house and various other buildings. The logging trains make four trips a day over the road, and haul 18 cars of logs at a trip. From Cross Lake the party started northwest the objective point being A. Lessard's camp some sixteen miles distant, which was reached at 9:30. Mr. Lessard is engaged in getting out ties and timber for the Cross Lake company, and has just completed a contract for 3200 cords of wood which he has banked on the line of the road. On Sunday morning a trip to Camp four of the Cross Lake Company was made. Here 75 men are employed, and the work of getting out logs is carried on on an extensive scale. The winter's work has been a very satisfactory one, and unless an early break-up comes, many more logs will be banked than was anticipated. On the return trip the camp of L. G. Cook, on Blind Lake, was visited, and a stop of a couple of hours was made. Mr. Cook is about the only lumberman in northern Minnesota who still uses oxen for hauling. On Saturday night the largest load of the season was brought in, measuring 9,370 feet, and containing 50 logs. Excellent work is being done here, the loads during the past ten days averaging 5,100 feet each. Mr. Cook gives his personal attention to the business, dividing his time between the three camps which he is operating. He was "at home" when our party arrived, and made the visit exceedingly pleasant. The return trip to Brainerd was made on Monday after a second nights stop at Lessard's camp.

Columbian Mystery.

The ladies of the G. I. A. of the B. of L. E. will give an entertainment on Tuesday evening next which is termed "A Columbian Mystery" and considerable guessing is being done as to what the mystery is. The admission will be 25 cents for gentlemen and ladies free, while all children accompanied by parents will also be admitted free. The entertainment will take place in the Davis building, next door west of Sanborn's City Hotel on Front street. Music and dancing and a general good time is promised with the mystery to unravel. The attendance will undoubtedly be large.

"What Hath God Wrought!"

The long life of S. F. B. Morse, the inventor of the magnetic telegraph, is one of almost romantic struggle and interest. Born in 1791, he was graduated from Yale College at eighteen, and having strong artistic tastes, studied painting under Allston, which he afterwards followed with success. Returning in 1832 from Europe, he became much interested in a discussion on electricity, and then and conceived the basic idea of telegraphy, the interval in an interrupted current being made long or short at will. But he did not take this up until he failed to be awarded the decorating of the capitol building at Washington. Abandoning painting, he worked for twelve years in poverty and amid many discouragements, until on February 23, 1844, congress made an appropriation for an experimental line between Baltimore and Washington. May 24th, the same year, the line was completed and the words that head this paragraph were sent by the inventor. He rendered possible the present railroad system of our country, for it could be operated in safety only by the aid of the telegraph. Telegraphic operation and synchronized time are what make travel so safe and speedy on the Burlington. For tickets, rates, or any information address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

A house at the corner of Second and Laurel streets, owned by Patsy Clifford and occupied by Stella Brown as a house of illfame, took fire at 1:40 this afternoon from a defective chimney in the second story and was completely wrecked. Most of the furniture was removed from the building. The water pressure was not exactly what could be desired and the department, though early at the scene, labored at a disadvantage. It is understood that the lack of pressure was due to a misunderstanding of the alarm sent in.

Cheap Rates to California.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company has put into effect a series of low round-trip rates to California points. Tickets are good until July 15th, 1894, and are good for stop over under certain conditions.

These rates will enable those desiring to do so, to spend the winter in southern California, or to visit the mid-winter fair to be held at San Francisco. This latter event will undoubtedly be second only to the World's Fair and will repay a visit as it will exhibit the resources and capabilities of California.

Education.

J. Ernest Lane, F. R. C. S., in an address at the commencement exercises of the medical school attached to St. Mary's hospital in London quoted this familiar paragraph, which, while not new, deserves to be published again: "That if a boy destined for a profession were to be taught nothing but reading, writing and arithmetic till he was 11, and after that nothing but Greek, Latin and mathematics till he was 18, at 50 that boy would turn out a more widely cultured, better read man than if in his early years he had been stuffed with geography, history, philosophy and the twopenny-halfpenny fragments of chemistry, botany and zoology, which constitute school science."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Manliness.

Learn from the earliest days to insure your principle against the peril of ridicule. You can no more exercise your reason if you live in the constant dread of laughter than you can enjoy your life if you are in the constant terror of death. If you think it right to differ from the times, and to make a point of morals, do it—however rustic, however antiquated, however pedantic it may appear, do it—not for insolence, but seriously and grandly, as a man who wore a soul of his own in his bosom, and who did not wait till it was breathed into him by the breath of fashion.—Jenness Miller Monthly.

Stopped a Leak With Sawdust.

To stop the leakage of a boat by the use of sawdust appears at the first suggestion ridiculous. It is a common method, however, employed by backwoodsmen of the Adirondack region.

One day a party having considerable baggage discovered upon loading it into a scow at the end of one of the regular "carries" that the boat leaked badly. To delay for repairs would occasion considerable annoyance, and without repairs to proceed seemed impossible.

At this juncture one of the guides said: "I think I can fix it. Just unload the boat again." This was done, and then the guide brought from a sawmill near the spot a quantity of sawdust. This he sprinkled thickly upon the water on either side of the boat.

"Now," continued he, "load up again." This was done, and when the weight again sank the boat the influx of water through the sides and bottom sucked in the sawdust, which finally accumulated in the crevices, swelled under the action of the water and actually stopped the leakage.—New York Herald.
